Nation's Deposits Go Skyward

Twenty-eight Billions in American Banks and Trust Companies

$267,180,000 More Than Aggregate for Preceding Year

NEW YORK, Nov. 6. (AP)—In the face of the business depression, savings deposits in American banks and trust companies increased $267,180,000 in the year ended June 30, to a total of nearly $28,- the highest figure on record, the American Banks' Association announced today.

This contrasts with a loss of $2,000,000 in the year ended June 30, 1929. The total number of depositors reported was 52,769,175, a gain of 1,000,000 over last year.

W. Espey Albig, deputy manager of the association, explains the rise was not on the basis of conditions in industry and employment.

"The conditions in industry and employment are not satisfactory," he said, "there is a tendency on the part of those whose income is derived largely from wages to withdraw financially. They withdraw most of their income in the form of deposits from banks. If the depression is long continued, bank deposits are slowly but gradually withdrawn."

SECTIONAL SHOWINGS

Of the New England States, Massachusetts, Maine, Rhode Island and Connecticut showed a substantial gain in deposits and the Pacific States reported a gain in deposits, although the section as a whole had a net loss of 22,414.

The Middle Atlantic States turned in a showing of more than $600,- gain in deposits, with every State reporting, from New York with a gain $262,000,000 to Delaware with a gain of 1,000. Every State, with the exception of Delaware and the District of Columbia, had increased deposits, the net gain being 300,960 in the Southern States, increases being registered in Louisiana, Texas, Oklahoma, Kentucky and Tennessee. The total recession amounted to $1,000,000. Virginia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Kentucky and Tennessee reported more depositors, the net sectional decline was 83,-

INCREASES LISTED

The increase in deposits in the Central States was listed at $1,000,000 with a depositor loss of 1,000. Missouri was the only State to be credited with higher deposits, although Indiana, Michigan and Iowa boasted a larger number of depositors.

The New England Central States dropped $1,000,000 in deposits, but saw their depositors increase by 3698. New Jersey was the only State to register more than a hundred thousand deposits and depositors, while South Dakota, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado and Oklahoma had increased depositors.

The loss for the Pacific States is placed at $37,123,000, Washington and Oregon boosted their deposits by more than $17,000,000, while except California gained depositors, but a loss of 250,000 depositors cut the increase.

California, figured in the grand total, an upward climb of $10 in deposits, a gain of $10

Will Rogers Remarks:

BEVERLY HILLS, Nov. 6. [To Ruth Hanna McCormick:] Dear Ruth, don't you feel bad that you didn't get in that Senate; it's no place for a good woman. In fact it's no place for a good man. But, Ruth, whatever gave you the idea that Illinois was dry? Your own ancestors would reprimand you for such poor political insight. What's the matter with you and Alice? Nick got caught on the wrong side of the fence, too, and just did squeeze by. Alice should have known that Ohio had "gone iniquity," too. Now you girls wake up and keep an ear to the ground and don't let '32 catch you napping agin.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

Speech Ruled Out of Order; No Answer Made by Other Envoys

GENEVA, Nov. 6. (AP)—Resuming its efforts to draft a general disarmament convention, the League of Nations preparatory disarmament commission had its first sitting today enlivened by an attack from Maxim Litvinoff, soviet Foreign Minister.

The Russian delegate, in a declaration declared out of order by Chairman Loudon, denounced the commission for having rejected the soviet disarmament proposals at earlier sessions, spoke with sarcasm of the "speed" with which the League's disarmament program is advancing, and told the assembled statesmen that Europe faces grave war menaces.

Since the commission met last in the spring of 1929, he said, new antagonisms, both political and economic, have arrayed nation against nation in a hostile posture and created a situation dangerous for world peace. His attack was particularly directed against that school of political thought which demands security before disarmament.

GRAPES HIT BY RACKET

Markets Ruined in East

Operations of Rival Gangs in New York Cause Prices to Be Cut in Half

Unloading Stations Guarded and Deaths Threatened in Trade Warfare

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 6. (AP)—Rival gangs of New York racketeers have ruined the closing weeks of eastern markets for California grapes, W. E. Wilkinson, general manager of the California Vineyardists' Association, said today.

The statement, made to all directors, advisers and shippers of the organization, said as a result of gangster operations ruling prices recently have been cut in half by dealers under orders to sell at almost any price to avoid trouble.

Wilkinson said he was informed large forces of civil authorities have been guarding markets and unloading stations. Threats of death, he said, were numerous as racketeers fought for control of incoming grape shipments.

CONTROL PLAN SUCCEEDS, SAYS TEAGUE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6. (AP)—The opinion that the grape and raisin markets would have been "utterly demoralized" this year without the co-operative plan was expressed today by C. C. Teague of the Federal Farm Board.

Teague said he is encouraged by the results this year and he expects next year the movement will go forward and work out better than it did this past season.

UNUSUALLY HEAVY CROP

He said efforts to control distribution started late in the season and the difficulties were augmented by an unusually heavy drop and long season.

Prices for raisin grapes, he said, are firm with an advancing market. At the same time the co-operative efforts were credited by Teague with having strengthened the market for both white and black grapes for juice and table use.

Teague pointed out, however, that recently large shipments of fresh grapes have exceeded the original plans of the co-operative. Whereas up to Thursday of the past week 58,000 carloads had been shipped it was contemplated at the inception of the control movement that only 55,000 cars would be shipped.

TOTAL TO RUN HIGHER

Present indications are, he continued, shipments will total 65,000 cars, an amount which he said is greater than the market will absorb at good prices.

Grapes diverted into by-products, he said, will total perhaps 50,000 tons.

The efforts of the Fruit Industries Co-operatives, the Grape Control Board and the California Raisin pool, he said, indicate the possibilities of what can be done. The market, in addition to other adverse factors, he pointed out, was demoralized at the time the co-operative movement for control was started during the present season.

DO-X Detained at Amsterdam Due to Storm

AMSTERDAM (Holland) Nov. 6. (AP)—A gale which kicked up a choppy sea outside the Zuider Zee held the DO-X, giant German flying boat, at Amsterdam today and prevented continuation of its flight to Southampton.

From Southampton the big ship will go to Havre and Lisbon before taking off on a trans-Atlantic flight to New York.

The DO-X, with sixteen persons aboard, came here yesterday from Altenrhein, Switzerland, where its home hangar is located, making the trip in five hours and twenty minutes.

SAN JOAQUIN TEST WELL PROMISING

Ritchie Wildcat Will Open New Oil Field in Valley if Hopes Materialize

BAKERSFIELD, Nov. 6. (Exclusive)—Strong indications of the probable development of a new oil field on the floor of the San Joaquin Valley were reported late today from the Ritchie No. 1 well, a wildcat project being drilled on Sec. 33, 4-19, on Tejon Ranch property, by Dr. J. J. Ritchie, a Los Angeles oil operator who has had considerable success in Texas and Oklahoma oil fields.

The Ritchie wildcat is approximately six miles east of the Wheeler Ridge oil field which borders on the Tejon Ranch. Reports from the field were to the effect that the Ritchie well experienced a spectacular gas blowout several days ago, and put 1500 barrels of oil into the sump hole before the drillers were able to mud it up and kill the gas pressure.

The formation was topped at approximately 4725 feet, and the crew had cored 175 feet of excellent oil sand when the blowout developed. Tests of the oil in the sump hole indicated that it is about 30 deg. gravity and appears to be of paraffin base. Dr. Ritchie has between 2000 and 3000 acres under lease in the immediate vicinity of the well, and the Tide Water interests are reported to hold at least a half-section near by.

Yesterday it was reported that the drillers were endeavoring to fish out the drill pipe and get the well back in shape to proceed with the drill some distance farther into the oil sand. The most authentic reports indicate that the drill has encountered no water sand down to the present depth.

Development of commercial oil production in this well would give Kern county a new oil field to add to its already impressive string. The Ritchie well is slightly east of south from Bakersfield, and should it become a producer it would probably be the most easterly production in Kern county. Aside from its proximity to the Wheeler Ridge oil field which is perhaps six miles west of it, the Ritchie project's nearest oil fields are Fruitvale on the north and Maricopa Flat slightly to the northwest, but both fields are probably twenty-five miles or more from the Ritchie leases.

Dry Leader Will Say Good-by to Massachusetts

BOSTON, Nov. 6. (NANA)—Having placed her Beverly (Mass.) summer estate, Greenwalls, consisting of two and one-half acres, with a modern residence, on the for sale lists of a leading real estate firm, Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, ardent dry worker and national chairman of the Woman's National Committee for Law Enforcement, will tomorrow say farewell to Massachusetts, an "outlaw" State as she terms it.

She does not plan to return until "Massachusetts has found herself." In discussing her departure for Orlando, Fla., where she will make her legal residence, she said: "If I must live in a Democratic State, it will have to be in a dry Democratic State."

Ingrown Toe Nail Caused King's Death

LONDON, Nov. 6. (AP)—It became known today Charles the Bold died of an ingrowing toe nail, which infected his foot.

Although the histories reveal Charles died in 1477, the manner of his demise has just been related to the National Council of Mental Hygiene by Dr. G. W. James.

Dr. James, who has been diagnosing illnesses which killed ancient kings from historical references to the symptoms, also informed the council Kings Stephen, John, Henry V, and Edward I, died of typhoid. Mary I, he said, was a victim of influenza.

INFECTION GETS BLAME FOR COLDS

Science Finds Virus in Nose of Every Person Suffering From Malady

BALTIMORE, Nov. 6. (AP) — The common cold is infectious, the agency of transmission being one of a group of filterable viruses so small they defy the most powerful microscope, it has been found by the research workers at Johns Hopkins University engaged in a five-year study of the malady.

The announcement is made in the proceedings of the society for experimental biology and medicine.

The infecting agent, the virus, is present in the nose of every person suffering from the cold, the research disclosed.

The effect of the success obtained in transmitting the disease is to strengthen a theory long held the cold is the result of an infection and not merely the product of chemical changes in the body.

REVOLUTION IMPENDING IN URUGUAY

Outbreak Reported as Scheduled for Monday; Armed Force Mobilized

MONTEVIDEO (Uruguay) Nov. 6. (Exclusive)—A revolutionary movement in Uruguay is due to break out before next Monday, according to rumors published in the newspapers here.

A strong force of armed men is reported to be concentrated at the Brazilian frontier under the leadership of Neponuceno Saravia, who threatens to march toward the capital and overthrow the government.

ARGENTINA GETS WORD OF MOVEMENT

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 6. (AP)—Press reports from Montevideo today say rumors are plentiful concerning an impending revolution in Uruguay, centering in the vicinity of the frontier town of Rivera.

The Rivera cofrespondent of the Montevideo newspaper El Dia reports that an outbreak is scheduled for next Monday under the leadership of Neponuceno Saravia, Miguel Berrutti and others said to be discontented with the present government. It also is reported the leaders have prepared a force of armed civilians to begin an advance on Montevideo.

Gov. Roosevelt Boom Launched

GREENVILLE (Ga.) Nov. 6. (AP)—Spontaneous movement for the organization of a Roosevelt-for-President club was reported here today by W. E. Irwin. He said a meeting will be held here next week to perfect an organization to boom the New York Governor for the Presidency.

Hunt Will Have Democratic Help

PHOENIX, Nov. 6. (AP)—When Governor-elect Hunt assumes office in January he will have an overwhelming Democratic Legislature to work with.

Of the nineteen members chosen for the Senate eighteen are Democrats, while at least fifty-one Democrats were successful in gaining membership to the House of Representatives. The House roster contains sixty-three names.

DEMOCRATS TAKE LEAD IN BATTLE FOR HOUSE

Gain 217 Seats to 216 for G.O.P.; Control or Tie Hinges on Yates; Republicans Rule Senate

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Final returns for the Senate in Tuesday's election give the Republicans a plurality of one and probable control of the organization.

In the battle for the House, with one district still doubtful, the Democrats have 217 members and Republicans, 216, with 218 necessary for a majority.

Representative Yates, Republican member at large from Illinois, was slightly ahead of his Democratic opponent in the only undecided contest. Representative Vestal of Indiana, Republican whip, lost by only three votes.

If Representative Yates wins, it will make an even division, which would leave the balance of power with the lone Farmer-Labor member, Kvale of Minnesota.

SENATE LINE-UP

The line-up in the Senate also is so close that it is entirely possible that the lone Farmer-Labor member, Shipstead of Minnesota, might hold the decision on organization there.

The re-election of Senator Schall, Republican, Minnesota, and the defeat of Senator Robsion, Republican, Kentucky, by M. M. Logan, Democrat, ended the Senate contests. The make-up of the next Senate stands: Republicans, 48; Democrats, 47; Farmer-Labor, 1.

This is the same division of parties as prevailed in 1926 and then Senator Shipstead voted with the Republicans, who retained control.

Leaders of both parties continue to claim the House as final returns constantly kept shifting the standings. Democrats neared their goal by recapturing the five districts in Kentucky which they lost in the Hoover landslide and picking up a new one—that represented by Mrs. Langley, Republican, the only one of the woman candidates to go to defeat.

Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader, returned to the capital Thursday night, but he awaited conferences and recounts before claiming control of the next Senate.

"I will only say," he commented, "that whoever is in power in the next Congress, I hope prosperous times return to America."

SHOUSE INSISTENT

Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic National Executive Committee, insisted the Democrats will organize the next House, but Republican chieftains disputed the contention while awaiting final results.

The Democratic Congressional committee announced it would not concede defeat in any of the close contests. Shouse contended that recounts in the Ninth Massachusetts, Thirty-third New York and Tenth Illinois would result in the election of Democrats. All these were close.

In the House it requires a majority vote on all organization matters, and it is possible for either party to have chairmen of committees.

INSURGENT OPPORTUNITY

A small group of insurgents in either branch could wield a powerful hand should the parties maintain the quotas now indicated by returns. In previous Congresses midwestern and northwestern groups have formed important blocs under such conditions.

O. B. Lovette, Independent Republican, who defeated Representative Reese, regular Republican, in the First Tennessee District, said he would "line up with the Republicans" on organization matters "if the Republicans line up with me." Democrats had hoped to obtain his support.

Senator Shipstead of Minnesota, Farmer-Labor, who may become the key man in the Senate, declined to indicate his attitude, saying there was "no point in talking about something that may not happen."

YATES GAIN IN ILLINOIS INCREASES

Horror Stupefies Ohio Town

Other Bodies Feared Buried in Debris and May Never Be Found

Further Fatalities Expected; Seven Officials of Company Killed

MILLFIELD (O.) Nov. 6. (AP)—The inhabitants of this little mining village who were spared in the explosion at the Sunday Creek Coal Company's No. 6 mine resumed their normal ways tonight although still stupefied by yesterday's disaster. The explosion killed seventy-nine persons, including seven officials of the Sunday Creek Company, and injured twenty others who are in hospitals. Some injured are expected to die.

There is a possibility, officials said, that other bodies are still in the mine and might never be recovered. It is feared several others may have been blown to pieces by the explosion in the shaft or buried by falling walls and ceilings.

State and Federal investigations are under way, but actual search of the ruined "west eight" tunnel for the cause of the explosion will not be undertaken until tomorrow. The last of the seventy-nine bodies were removed before noon today.

The bodies of seventy dead miners lay in the company store here until prepared for burial and claimed by their families. They were then turned over to relatives for private burial.

Members of an inspection party which was approaching a recently constructed air shaft a mile and a half from the main entrance were killed instantly by the explosion. They included W. E. Tytus, president, and P. A. Coen, vice-president of the company, both of Columbus, and representatives of other mining companies.

HAWKS SETS NEW RECORD

Noted Flyer Speeds From New York to Havana, Cuba, in Nine Hours, Twenty-one Minutes

HAVANA, Nov. 6. (AP)—Nine hours and twenty-one minutes after leaving the suburbs of New York this morning Capt. Frank M. Hawks tonight set his mystery monoplane "13" down in the semidarkness of Curtiss Airport with a new record for an airplane flight from the American metropolis to the Cuban capital.

Capt. Hawks left Curtiss Field at 8:50 o'clock this morning and landed here at 6:11 tonight. He lost forty-three minutes en route, stopping twenty-three minutes at Jacksonville and twenty at Miami this afternoon.

TERRIFIC SPEED

The previous record — fourteen hours—was made March 3, 1928, by the late Wilmer Stultz, who carried Charles A. Levine and Miss Mabel Boll in a nonstop trip.

The large crowd of watchers which had been waiting at Curtiss Airport since early afternoon for a glimpse of the noted flyer did not see him until he was immediately over the field. He was flying low at terrific speed, when, in the light of the beacons, the form of the tiny ship was discerned.

Hawks made a quick circle of the field and set his ship down to a graceful landing. He addressed Cuban reporters in Spanish as the flashlights boomed.

FLIGHT ENJOYABLE

Hawks told the Associated Press he probably will return to New York Saturday and might attempt to establish a new time record on the return flight. He said the head wind he encountered on the way here greatly impeded him.

But outside of the adverse wind, Capt. Hawks said his flight was a most enjoyable one.

"Guess I've beaten the Mabel Boll-Charles Levine record by more than five hours at that," he said.

The flyer told the Associated Press that he averaged 182 miles an hour during the trip, flying against a thirty-five-mile-an-hour wind.

Yates jumped into the lead after 4807 precincts out of 7109 had reported.

The vote was: Yates, 919,408; Nesbit, 921,823.

The lead of Walter Dieterich, Democrat—high man of the four Congressman-at-large candidates—was not threatened. He was still 30,000 votes ahead of Yates.

Frank L. Smith, elected to the Senate in 1926 and denied his seat, was hopelessly out of the running.

GOODWIN ASSURED VICTORY IN MINNESOTA

ST. PAUL, Nov. 6. (AP)—Godfrey G. Goodwin, Republican Representative in Congress from the Tenth Minnesota District, was assured of re-election today when rural returns gave him a substantial lead over Erling Swenson, Farmer-Laborite, who had Democratic support. As a result the entire roster of Minnesota Representatives in the House, nine Republicans and one Farmer-Laborite, will be returned.

SCHALL ASSURED SENATE RE-ELECTION

ST. PAUL, Nov. 6. (AP)—The re-election of Thomas D. Schall, Republican, as United States Senator from Minnesota was assured tonight with less than 100 rural precincts unreported.

Schall held a lead of more than 8000 votes over Einar Hoidale, Democrat, after 3640 precincts out of 3709 had been tabbed. The vote was: Schall, 285,802; Hoidale, 277,537.

The unreported precincts are in the rural territory in which Schall steadily cut down the lead amassed by Hoidale in the urban centers and gradually forged ahead.

KENTUCKY DEMOCRATS IN SWEEPING VICTORY

LOUISVILLE (Ky.) Nov. 6. (AP)—A sweeping victory over the State marked Kentucky's return to the Democratic fold it left in the Republican landslide of 1928.

On the basis of unofficial returns tonight, Democrats elected their candidates in Tuesday's election for both the long and short Senate terms over the Republican incumbent and had elected nine of the eleven Representatives.

Returns from 3602 of 4115 precincts gave Judge M. M. Logan, Democrat, 289,309 votes to 258,266 for Senator Robsion. Ben Williamson, running-mate of Logan, led by about the same majority in the race for the short Senate term.

In addition to regaining the five Congressional seats lost two years ago, the Democrats picked up a sixth Representative in the Tenth District, which gave a Democratic majority for the first time in history. Mrs. Katherine Langley, Republican, who succeeded her husband in Congress, was defeated by A. J. May, Democrat, by approximately 3000 votes out of 58,000 cast.

BALL WINS INDIANA CONTEST BY THREE VOTES

MUNCIE (Ind.) Nov. 7. (AP)—Claude C. Ball of Muncie, Democrat, upset Congressman Vestal, whip of the House, by three votes in the Eighth Indiana District, on the basis of complete official returns unofficially tabulated early today.

The final figures are: Ball, 44,204; Vestal, 44,201.

The result has been in doubt since the first returns were tabulated, the lead shifting from one to the other. Even after complete unofficial returns were received errors discovered in the count had thrown the lead back and forth.

The Delaware county canvassing board, working yesterday and last night, finally completed its check of the votes shortly after midnight this morning.

Revolts After Other Tariff Changes Cited

The defeat of Senator Henry J. Allen, close friend of President Hoover, was one of the big surprises of Tuesday's elections and in many quarters was regarded as rebuke to the national administration. In the following exclusive statement to The Times and the North American Newspaper Alliance, the Kansas Senator discredits this theory and gives his views concerning the general results of the elections and their effect upon the campaign of 1932.

WICHITA (Kan.) Nov. 6.—Those who persist in reading into the results of Tuesday's election an anti-administration revolt are ignoring the most significant facts in the situation.

In Kansas, for example, the senior Senator, Arthur Capper, made a more active campaign than he has made for years, devoting his entire time to a defense of the administration, the Farm Marketing Act, the farm schedules in the tariff bill, and the fullest indorsement in specific terms of President Hoover and his administrative acts. Senator Capper is re-elected by approximately 100,000 majority. The entire Kansas Republican Congressional delegation, which made a campaign along similar lines, was re-elected

JUNIOR SENATOR ILL

The defeat of the junior Senator was due to a number of causes with which the administration had no connection. Left over animosities from his administration as Governor of Kansas in various circles, including organized labor and the Ku Klux Klan, robbed him of many votes. There was also a protest vote as the result of business depression and the low price of farm products. In addition, the junior Senator had the misfortune to be ill the entire campaign period and unable to give any attention whatsoever to his own interests. If he had been privileged to make a campaign in Kansas, undoubtedly, he would have been elected since his defeat was by a narrow margin.

In the States which constituted the real political battleground, the results show no evidence of a revolt against the administration of President Hoover. The defeat of Senator Pine of Oklahoma did not indicate antiadministration resentment, because Senator Pine had not supported the administration on outstanding issues and in his campaign attacked the administration.

The defeat of Senator McMaster had no administration significance since he did not make his campaign upon any administrative causes. He had not supported the administration on very many issues and his fight was governed by local conditions.

In Massachusetts, where there was a severe political contest on both State and national tickets, the entire Republican membership was re-elected to the lower house of Congress.

In New York, in spite of the sensational victory of Gov. Roosevelt, who was re-elected by something like 600,000 majority, the Republican Congressional strength was not reduced. In Ohio, as in Illinois, the fight was not upon administrative issues but upon the wet and dry controversy.

OTHER REVOLTS WORSE

The reduction of Republican strength was less than has characterized any midterm election in periods of popular emotion during the memory of this generation. The present tariff bill has caused less resentment than any tariff measure adopted within the last fifty years. It will be remembered that in the midterm election of Grover Cleveland's administration, the resentment over the Wilson tariff bill changed a Democratic majority in the lower house to a Republican majority of 100 members.

The revolt against the Payne-Aldrich bill in 1910 so weakened the Republican strength in the House that it led to the defeat of Cannon and the election of Champ Clark as Speaker. The revolt in the Congressional election in 1918, after the late President Wilson had asked for the election of Democratic Congressmen led to an overwhelming Republican majority in Congress.

In the present election there have been few surprises. The administration representation in the Senate has been reduced by six members. The election of Senator Dickinson of Iowa reduces the loss to five. The returns are not yet sufficiently tabulated to indicate just what has happened in the lower house, but enough is known to develop the fact that the party situation has not been reversed.

WET ISSUE INTRODUCED

The result has significance, of course, but not of the character claimed by the enemies of the administration.

The battles in Illinois, Ohio, and Massachusetts, which constituted the real alignment of the contest and had little to do with the national administration, foreshadow a puzzling situation in the national convention of 1932. They introduce, without doubt, the wet and dry issue as a battle between the two parties and force the necessity of definite consideration of that question.

There is added to this confusion the fact that party fealty is not what it was even a half a generation ago. The list of independent voters is growing. The binding influence of party ties is decreasing and we face an uncertain situation, but the issue in this situation has not been created or even affected by this administration.

Kansas Senator Defeated by Double

Which is Which?

A strong facial resemblance may be noted between Senator Henry J. Allen (right) and George McGill, who defeated him in the Kansas Senatorial election Tuesday. They both live in Wichita. Senator Allen, administration spokesman, contends his defeat should not be construed as a slap at the administration.

CONGRESSWOMEN BALANCE

Counterpoise of House Kept in Election Both on Party and Wet-Dry Issues

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6. (AP)—In a house of delicate balance, the women members of the just-elected Seventy-second Congress neatly counterpoise—three Republicans, three Democrats.

Divided along another line much mentioned in this election, the result is the same equilibrium—three are avowedly wet, and three dry.

Three were unopposed, and three fought for their laurels.

The feminine faces which came, smiling and triumphant, from a realm of higher mathematics into which this particular election was catapulted, are:

PARTIES EQUAL

Republicans: Florence P. Kahn, California; Edith Nourse Rogers, Massachusetts; and Ruth Baker Pratt, New York.

On the prohibition question, Mrs. Pratt, Mrs. Kahn and Mrs. Norton are anti-Volstead.

Following close upon the tenth anniversary of woman's suffrage, the story told in ballots last Tuesday could in nowise be interpreted as a numerical gain for the women in the national legislative halls.

HOUSE TO LOSE TRIO

The House will have three fewer women members a year from now than it has at present, with Katherine Langley of Kentucky defeated; Ruth Hanna McCormick of Illinois eliminated by her unsuccessful Senatorial race; and Pearl Peden Oldfield of Arkansas refusing to run.

And the Senate will still be an all-stag affair, with J. Ham Lewis in the seat which tentatively had been dusted off for Mrs. McCormick, whose title was to have been "first woman ever elected Senator."

ROLPH VOTE CONTINUES TO MOUNT

Total of Million Nears for Governor-Elect as Tabulation Proceeds

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 6. (AP)—The vote total for Governor-elect James Rolph, Jr., mounted slowly toward the 1,000,000 mark as the Associated Press tabulated today 9868 precincts of the State's 10,283.

The vote:

Rolph, Republican, 972,274; Milton K. Young, Democrat, 323,250; Upton Sinclair, Socialist, 47,862.

The count for other State offices:

Secretary of State—8532 precincts: Jordan, Republican, 719,620; Maddux, Democrat, 182,031; Hutchins, Prohibition, 135,017.

LOS ANGELES COUNTY TOTALS CHANGE LITTLE

With all 3402 precincts in Los Angeles county in and tabulated from Tuesday's election, Registrar of Voters Kerr announced last night that the totals as reported Wednesday, lacking only four precincts' results, are not materially changed.

Kerr's office made a report of totals Wednesday evening with only the four precincts remaining uncounted at that time. They were located at Chatsworth and on Catalina Island.

Heflin on Radio Charges Fraud

BIRMINGHAM (Ala.) Nov. 6. (AP) Senator Heflin, in his first speech since the Tuesday election in which he was defeated by more that 50,900 votes, tonight reiterated over the radio charges of fraud and corruption in the election, and announced he will demand a Senate investigation.

ABSENTEES WILL ELECT GOVERNOR

Candidates Neck-and-Neck With All Kansas Votes in Except Those Mailed

TOPEKA, Nov. 6. (AP)—Absentee votes, which will not be counted until next week, will be the deciding factor in the Kansas gubernatorial race between Frank (Chief) Haucke, Republican, and Harry Woodring, Democrat, on the face of complete unofficial returns tonight.

The latest revised unofficial returns gave the Democratic nominee an advantage of twenty-six votes after the lead had swung back and forth by a close margin as minor corrections were reported.

The unofficial returns give: Woodring, 214,678; Haucke, 214,552; Dr. John R. Brinkley, Independence, 180,970.

Ballots of persons who were away from home but voted in the State will not be tallied by the county commissioners until next Tuesday. The size of this absentee vote is problematical, but is estimated by the office of the Secretary of State as about 2500.

RUSSIAN FLAYS ARMS PARLEY

Franco-Italian agreement on the naval problem.

Litvinoff's address today was the center of a slight flurry. The chairman ruled it should not be translated into French, as customary, on the ground it was out of order because it has been agreed general discussion of matters already settled should not come up. Litvinoff, however, went ahead with his speech and finished it.

No reply was made by other commission members.

PROGRAM ADOPTED

It was decided the session shall proceed without general discussion and take up immediately where work was left off eighteen months ago in the second reading of a draft treaty.

Tomorrow the commission probably will take up naval limitations. An attempt will be made to transfer the methods arrived at during the London conference with the commission's draft convention, applying them to all powers, great and small.

In his address today Litvinoff recalled two previous Russian proposals to the League's commission. The first was for complete and general disarmament, which failed to find favor among the chief powers. The second was a proposal for reduction of armaments in all branches, land, sea and air, by 50 per cent. This suggestion also, he recalled, was rejected.

RUSSIAN PROPOSALS

The soviets no longer have any hope for favorable consideration of these schemes, said Litvinoff, and will reserve them for the general conference. He made three proposals: First, that disarmament rather than the limitation of armaments be the goal of the treaty draft; second, that trained reserves be included as one object of the treaty and, third, that the limitation of reserves of military material be provided for by a general treaty.

Lord Cecil told newspaper men tonight the British delegation expected to lay before the commission a proposal for limitation of budgetary expenditures on land, sea and air forces and on materials.

The British delegation submitted today a proposal for incorporating in draft convention a provision to establish a permanent disarmament commission. This body would be composed of one representative each of the current members of the League Council and of the United States and Russia. It would have general supervision over questions of execution of a general disarmament treaty.

DRYS DASH COLD WATER ON WETS

Claims of Great Congress Gains Discounted

Rum Friends Say 144 of 160 Candidates Victorious

G.O.P. Says Prohibition Cut Both Party Lines

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6. (AP)—Wet claims of five Senate and seventy House election gains for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment were disputed today by prohibitionists in and out of Congress who contended the dry cause has not been damaged by the sweeping Democratic victories.

One wet organization—the Federal Dispensary Tax Reduction League—replied that all but sixteen of 160 candidates receiving its support had won Tuesday.

While conceding the elections revealed a lack of efficient organization among the drys in many sections, the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals holds the results were "Democratic rather than wet."

The Anti-Saloon League took the view the dry cause had "weathered the Democratic landslide and the unprecedented wet campaign in a remarkable way."

"PROHIBITION SAFE"

A "very significant" fact, it added, was "no former dry who wabbled or betrayed primary declarations was elected."

The re-elected Senator Sheppard, co-author of the Eighteenth Amendment, said the election indicates the people are swinging back to the Democratic party and prohibition will be safe in the new Congress taking office in December, 1931.

"Tremendous wet gains" might be indicated to the average reader at first glance but in reality there will be little change in the "so-called wet and dry line-up," said Edwin C. Dinwiddie, superintendent of the National Temperance Bureau.

Chairman Fess of the Republican National Committee said it is "obvious that prohibition cut both ways across the party lines, but while forming a controlling factor in some instances it developed a nominal wet trend."

Other wet phases of the day's news developed in the announcement at Reno of Representative Arentz, Republican, Nevada, who was re-elected, that upon his return to Congress he would urge a revision of the Eighteenth Amendment to permit a Federal, or State liquor dispensary system or both.

METHODIST VIEW

The Methodist board asserted that "despite claims of hopeful wets" the dry majority in the House has apparently been reduced only a few votes and the overwhelmingly dry majority in the Senate not at all. While the "wet Mr. Bulkley" won the Senatorial race in Ohio, the board said this is offset by the election of the "dry Mr. White" for Governor.

Senator Hastings's defeat of former Senator Bayard in Delaware and Representative Dickinson's victory over Senator Steck in Iowa were described as dry victories.

"The defeat of Mrs. McCormick and Mr. Tuttle," the board added, "show clearly it is suicide for the Republican party to give aid and comfort to the wet cause in nearly any northern State."

The big majorities given the repeal referenda in Illinois, Rhode Island and Massachusetts were described by the board as held in "distinctly wet territory."

SUNDAY SEES END OF WET OFFENSIVE

BINGHAMTON (N. Y.) Nov. 6. (AP) Rev. William A. Sunday, evangelist, declared today he believes the wets reached their maximum strength in the election Tuesday and their gains in Congress mark the climax of the fight to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment.

If You Are Fat At 45 Here's Good News For You

Yes: I'm forty-five today—built like a race horse, my friends say—and I know I feel 10 years younger than I did three months ago—and I'd hate to tell you how much fat I lost with Kruschen.

I call Kruschen Salts the "magic salts" because when I was fat and wretched, despondent and half sick all the time—it took only one bottle that I bought for 85 cents at any Owl & Liggett Drug Store to liven me up—put ambition and energy into me—make me feel years younger and show me how to lose the fat I was so ashamed of.

Let me advise all fat people to fall to take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning.

Every drug store worthy of the name in the world sells Kruschen Salts—an 85 cent bottle lasts four weeks—not much to pay for the vibrant health.—A West Virginia lady lost 15 pounds in 13 weeks—now has no more headaches.—[illegible] tisement.

Employment Drive Leader Talks With Governors

Aid Offered and Suggestions for Campaign Asked

Million Allocated for Road Work in California

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6. (AP)—Chairman Woods of the President's employment committee announced tonight he had talked with forty-four of the forty-eight governors over telephone today in connection with a canvass of the unemployment in their States. In the other four States Woods said he talked with representatives of the governors.

"I wanted to find out in what way we can help and pointed out to them in what way they can help and I said that we are able to render service as a sort of clearing-house, making available to all of them who want it the experiences in different States," he said.

AID OFFERED

"I found many of them in instituting their plans already have obtained the information from other States. Many have been on this work for a long time and were entirely prepared. I pointed out to them that we can be of service here if they will send me an account of the measures they are taking and the results they get from them.

"The governors were very cordial and very co-operative in every way and each is handling the situation in his own State in his own way. It is primarily a matter of the industrial centers and the large cities. In the agricultural districts it is less severe, except in some places where the conditions have been aggravated by the drought."

NEW AIDES NAMED

Woods announced the appointment of Capt. J. F. Lucey of Dallas, Tex., as regional director. Capt. Lucey will direct the work in a group of Southwestern States. Col. Woods also appointed Lewis H. Brown, president of the Johns-Manville Company of New York, a director of employment work among the large industries.

The Shipping Board today provided future employment for between 300 and 500 men by directing the Merchant Fleet Corporation to advertise for bids looking to the sale for scrapping of forty-five idle government-owned steel vessels.

STATE HIGHWAY BOARD ACTS ON MEEK PROPOSAL

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 6. (AP)—The State Highway Commission, meeting here today, allocated $1,000,000 with which to establish labor camps and enlarge highway maintenance crews as recommended by B. B. Meek, director of the Department of Public Works, in way of relieving unemployment in California during the winter months.

In his announcement of this action Meek said the State plans to employ 1000 men in specially established highway camps, two in Northern California and two in the south, and 1000 other men on road work elsewhere in the State.

Disabled Alaskan Liner Rescued by Small Boats; Tugs Awaited

SEATTLE, Nov. 6. (AP)—Favored by wind and tide, the disabled Alaska Steamship Company liner Northwestern was being towed today by two small boats to Dundas Bay, Cross Sound, in Southeastern Alaska, where it will be anchored until tugs arrive from here to bring it to dry dock. The passengers will remain aboard the vessel until the arrival next Wednesday of the liner Alameda, which sails from Seattle Saturday.

Capt. C. A. Glascock, master of the Northwester, wirelessed company officers here the gas boat Emma and the Seattle fishing boat Tordenskjold had taken the liner in tow and probably will be able to take her into Dundas Bay.

The Northwester, carrying passengers for Cordova, Latouche and Seward, sent out SOS signals when she lost her rudder two miles off Cape Spencer, off Icy Straits.

The Ambassador said his complaint was not against the Chilean government, but against Col. Merino, head of the army aviation, who is understood to have ordered the arrest.

Capt. Stevens was detained for three hours, being released after Ambassador Culbertson had interceded in his behalf. His status is not clear today and it was not known whether he will be allowed to resume his journey.

Air Squadron Sees Hoover Present Honor

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6. (AP)—America's World War ace—Capt. Edward V. Rickenbacker—was presented by President Hoover today with the Congressional Medal of Honor, highest military award of the government.

A chilling wind blew across Bolling Field and a group of officials and flyers looked on as the Chief Executive looped over the flyer's shoulders the decoration voted to him by the last Congress.

Although he is credited with twenty-six victories on the western front, more than any other American flyer, Capt. Rickenbacker's citation specified only one of his many clashes.

ATTACKS SEVEN PLANES

"While on a voluntary patrol over the land," the citation read by Maj.-Gen. Fechet, chief of the Army Air Corps, said, "Lieut. Rickenbacker attacked seven enemy planes (five type Fokker, protecting two type Halberstadt.) Disregarding the odds against him, he dived on them and shot down one of the Fokkers out of control. He then attacked one of the Halberstadts and sent it down also."

In presenting the medal President Hoover pointed out that Rickenbacker's feats were done when he flying of airplanes was more hazardous than today. The Chief Executive said: "Your record is an outstanding one for skill and bravery, and is a source of pride to your comrades and your countrymen."

SQUADRON ATTENDS

The ceremony was attended by veterans of the Ninety-fourth Squadron, which Rickenbacker led in France, and present members of the squadron.

The President in presenting the medal said:

"Capt. Rickenbacker: In the name of the Congress of the United States, I take great pleasure in awarding you the Congressional Medal of Honor, our country's highest decoration for conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity above and beyond the call of duty in action. At a stage in the development of aviation when the flying of airplanes was a much more hazardous undertaking than it is today, you were achieving victories which made you the universally recognized ace of aces of the American forces. Your record is an outstanding one for skill and bravery, and is a source of pride to your comrades and your countrymen.

"I hope that your gratification in receiving this medal of honor will be as keen as mine in bestowing it. May you wear it, during many years of happiness and continued usefulness to your country."

EX-JUDGE SUBMITS TO FINGER PRINTING

NEW YORK, Nov. 6. (AP)—George F. Ewald, former city magistrate indicted for asserted purchase of his judgeship, and Mrs. Ewald were finger printed and photographed at police headquarters today. They submitted to the formality only after a court so ordered. "I have done nothing to go through this degradation and have my picture in the rogue's gallery," Mrs. Ewald said. The former magistrate spoke no word except to say, in answer to a question, that he had no occupation and was 43 years of age.

AFTER 40 AILMENT

"PROTECT health between 20 and 40," urges the medical profession. Upon the care taken during this span, determines health in later life.

The wear and tear of life begins to take its toll at 40 unless you fortify against it. One of the most prevalent after 40 ailments is kidney breakdown. Over half of men and women are affected.

Kidneys, through constant passing off of 75% of waste matter from the system, are overworked. Congestion occurs, throwing back into the system poisons which should be eliminated. This is the forerunner of more serious ills.

"Begin at 20 to protect against this after 40 ailment," doctors say. Drink 6 glasses of Puritas distilled water each day. Waste matter in the system is soluble in water; is absorbed and carried off. Thus the load of kidneys is lightened. Protected against excessive strain, their life of normal functioning is lengthened.

Ordinary water fails, in a large measure, in these results because of minerals it contains. These deposit in kidneys, adding further to congestion. Puritas is both mineral-free and impurity-free, made so by scientific distillation. Thus Puritas is drinking water in purest, most healthful form. Though its taste seems different at first, each drink you'll increasingly enjoy.

HOOVER SEEKS DRY FUND DATA

Washington Explains Recall of Woodcock

Reason Offered Fails to Settle Rumors

Conference With Mitchell Also Scheduled

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6. (AP)—Cutting short an inspection trip being made by Amos W. W. Woodcock, prohibition director, to the west coast and Honolulu, the Department of Justice has summoned him to Washington to prepare data requested by President Hoover and to confer with Atty.-Gen. Mitchell on the question of appropriations.

Announcement by Woodcock in San Francisco yesterday he had been called to Washington started rumors as to the cause for his return which were not entirely quashed by an announcement from the Justice Department of the reason. The department did not say what information had been requested by Mr. Hoover, but said it had been asked for some time ago.

HEARING ON FUNDS

After an early assertion Woodcock had been recalled, as he prepared to sail for Honolulu, to confer on routine matters with Atty.-Gen. Mitchell, the department issued a statement saying the conference was to be on matters connected with the prohibition unit. The announcement said the Attorney-General wanted to inform himself about "some matters bearing on appropriations, hearings on which will commence the latter part of this month."

The announcement concluded with the statement:

"The director also was wanted here to make some reports to the Attorney-General to furnish data requested some time ago by the President."

RECALL CAUSES SURPRISE

This was not amplified by the department and nothing came from the White House to indicate what data Mr. Hoover had requested. The President's law enforcement commission was in session with the announced purpose of preparing a report on prohibition within a few months but whether this had any connection with Woodcock's return no one would say.

The recall of Woodcock caused surprise in circles close to the prohibition enforcement unit because of his known desire to spend more time in the field than in his Washington office. For two months he has been visiting New York City, upstate New York, Chicago, Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin points.

SWEDISH LIQUOR PLAN EXPLAINED

Hoover's Committee Hears Facts About Method

Group Now Deep in Work of Preparing Report

Rumor Task Soon Will Be Completed Denied

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6. (AP)—Facts concerning the Swedish method of liquor control, known as the Bratt system, were laid before President Hoover's law-enforcement commission today by John M. Morehead, American Minister to Sweden, as part of the commission's investigation into various liquor-control systems.

The law-enforcement group already is deep in its task of preparing a report on just what, if anything, they believe should be done about the dry law in this country.

Considerable speculation at first surrounded the request to the American Minister that he appear, but assurance was given later the commission also will have before it facts and figures concerning the Canadian system and other control plans in virtually every part of the world in which they exist. Morehead is in the United States on a leave of absence.

THE BRATT SYSTEM

Under the Bratt system, upon which Morehead was questioned not only as to its provisions, but as to its effect upon temperance, liquor is controlled under the government by monopolies financed by private capital. The quantities of liquor purchasable by an individual are limited to a maximum of approximately four and one-fifth quarts of spirits a month.

A second witness to appear before the commission today was Lynn G. Adams, superintendent of the Pennsylvania State police, who is familiar with liquor conditions in that State. The detailed testimony of both witnesses was kept secret. Other witnesses will appear before the commission later.

RUMOR DENIED

A rumor that the group's recommendations might be in shape to lay upon President Hoover's desk by the end of next week was emphatically denied.

Chairman Wickersham himself answered with a smile when asked if his previously expressed hope for presentation of report to Congress "early in December" will materialize. He said:

"I won't mawe any predictions now. I might be wrong."

Later authoritative assurance was given that a majority of the commissioners themselves have not finally decided upon just what the final form of their report will contain, and the possibility arose that a majority and minority report might result.

SPRING RUM-RUNNING PLOT SUSPECTED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6. (AP)—A great spring liquor-smuggling drive to bring Canadian liquor into the United States via the French island of St. Pierre was predicted today by officials of the watchful Coast Guard.

Records disclose that while imports to St. Pierre from Canada have skyrocketed in the wake of the Canadian law banning exportation to the United States, scant, if any, increase in the illicit traffic from St. Pierre has been detected.

During last July and August 370,678 gallons of whisky were exported from Canada to St. Pierre, compared with 39,822 gallons during the same period in 1929. During the first six months of 1930, 686,446 gallons, or an average of 114,408 gallons per month were exported to the island.

These statistics were given to the Customs Bureau by the French government, but no figures were available to indicate exports from St. Pierre.

Buffalo Puts Unwitting Ban on Auto Tags

BUFFALO, Nov. 6. (AP)—The Buffalo City Council has unwittingly legislated out of existence one phase of police work—tagging automobiles for illegal parking.

The Council passed an ordinance prohibiting "the placing of any printed card, handbill or paper on or in any automobile while the same is on any street or public place of the city without the consent of the owner of the automobile."

CUBA MAY ENLARGE HER NAVY

Proposed Expenditure of $3,000,000 Soon to Be Discussed by Congress

HAVANA, Nov. 6. (AP)—Congress soon will discuss the advisability of authorizing a $3,000,000 expenditure for reorganization and enlargement of the Cuban navy.

President Machado asked for the reorganization and addition of nine new units. The appropriation is to be covered at the rate of $500,000 a year for six years.

The program calls for purchase of one transport vessel of 4000 tons with capacity for 500 men and 100 horses to replace the schoolship Patria, reported by the War and Navy Department as being obsolete, construction of two gunboats of 1000 tons each and purchase of six revenue cutters of 500 tons each.

The bill is expected to meet with strong opposition in the House of Representatives.

FRESNO POLICE JUDGE CASE IN HIGH COURT

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 6. (AP)—The case of Earle J. Church, former Fresno police judge who is seeking to compel the Fresno County Board of Supervisors to fill the vacancy created when he resigned from the office, was submitted to the Supreme Court here today. Arthur G. Shepard, Fresno assistant District Attorney, argued briefly for the Supervisors. Church obtained a writ of mandate from the Fourth District Court of Appeal ordering the Supervisors to fill the vacancy on the Police Court bench. The appeal to the Supreme Court, followed.

AID VOTED QUAKE VICTIMS

ROME, Nov. 6. (AP)—The council of ministers today approved a draft bill appropriating 30,000,000 lire (about $1,580,000) for the victims of the October 30 earthquake in the Provinces of Ancona and Pesaro.

Court of Inquiry Delves Into New Angle of Crash

Air Minister Chafed to Be Off, Witnesses Declare

Scotland Yard Investigates Reports of Plot

LONDON, Nov. 6. (AP)—The court of inquiry which heretofore has concerned itself with re-creating the picture of the crash of the dirigible R-101 considered today the possibility the large ship might not have been ready for the flight which ended so tragically.

Sir John Simon, presiding, shot searching questions at Air Ministry officials called as witnesses and there emerged a picture of Lord Thomson, Air Minister, who himself was killed, chafing to get away on the flight to India.

TEST ORDER IGNORED

Hugh Dowding, air vice-marshal created a stir when he testified that he had ordered a full-power test as soon as possible after the R-101 left her mooring mast on that last voyage, but apparently his order had been ignored.

He gave the order to Wing Commander Colmore, who was killed when the dirigible fell against a hillside near Beauvais, France, October 5.

Vice-Marshal Dowding alone of all today's witnesses did not think the ship was in shape for her first long voiage.

Others, while admitting Lord Thomson's haste to be off had hurried preparations for the flight, do not believe the R-101 was unfit Lord Thomson issued the certificate of airworthiness after a brief final inspection by two men who had not time to submit a formal report before the flight began.

PLOT TALK INVESTIGATED

Scotland Yard was called upon to investigate statements made by a man who said he had overheard in a railway carriage conversation concerning a plot to wreck the R-101.

This conversation, the man said, took place on a train between London and Southend the day before the dirigible crashed.

Frederick Montagu, Undersecretary for Air, announced in the House of Commons the government will pay compensation to dependents of the forty-eight lost in the dirigible disaster.

The pensions will run from $600, with a $2250 gratuity plus $120 a year for each child, down to 22s. a week plus 5s. for each child. Civilians will receive amounts varying from $500 to $1500.

SIX BRITISH SHIP LINES COMBINE

Operation as One Gigantic Enterprise Aimed At

All in Deal Among Largest Companies of Empire

Fifty-two Craft Involved; Valued at $275,000,000

[Copyright, 1930, by New York Times]

LONDON, Nov. 6. (Exclusive)—The six largest British ship lines on the North Atlantic have decided to meet the German challenge by cutting out wasteful competition and operating, so far as possible, as a single gigantic enterprise.

The first advertisements appeared in the British newspapers today announcing the sailings of Cunard, White Star, Anchor, Red Star, Canadian Pacific and Atlantic Transport lines together.

Schedules for the slack winter months have been arranged so that only four British ships will sail each week for New York instead of twelve as in the summer months.

Liverpool, London, Southampton and Glasgow are all affected by the new combination, which involves fifty-two ships valued at $275,000,000.

The rearrangement of the sailing schedules is similar to the "gentlemen's agreement" between the Cunard and White Star lines several years ago, whereby those keen competitors decided to alternate sailings.

WOODPECKERS' PECKING CAUSES PECK OF WOE

PALO ALTO, Nov. 6. (AP)—What a peck of trouble five woodpeckers can peck out for one town in one night came to light here today.

Here's what happened: Five woodpeckers congregated on a light and power line pole and started pecking on the wooden casing of a cable. After pecking through the wood the birds continued on into the cable. When they got to the wires things happened.

A false alarm went to the fire department.

The electrically operated high-school furnace would not work today.

The birds were electrocuted and found toasted beneath the pole.

Other bullet holes and bloodstains were found in the rear of the machine, indicating, police said, a gun battle had taken place inside the car.

UNIVERSAL SIGNS SIDNEY FOX

First National Schedule is Replete with Many Stories; Lasky Signs Goodwin of Washington Square Note; Ian Maclaren Wins Important Role

BY GRACE KINGSLEY

Another fascinating young stage notable from Broadway is turning her steps Hollywoodward. She is Sidney Fox, and according to announcement by Carl Laemmle, Jr., has been signed on a long-term contract to Universal. This is in fulfillment of a prophecy made several weeks ago in this column to the effect that the actress would soon be a Universal luminary.

CARL LAEMMLE JR.

Miss Fox is a young actress who last year scored in the leading feminine role in "Lost Sheep," the New York play which set forth the happenings which occurred to an innocent English vicar and his family who moved into a house just vacated by a couple of ladies.

Laemmle saw Miss Fox in the play on Broadway, and decided that she must come into the Universal fold.

"We expect to star or co-star Miss Fox in a number of important productions," he said yesterday. Her first role will probably be the featured feminine lead opposite Lew Ayres in "Mississippi."

MANY STORIES ON STUDIO SCHEDULE

Once First National starts work, a heavy production schedule will be the order of the day. Several notable stories and plays have been secured, according to authentic report received yesterday.

DOROTHY MACKAILL

Included are "You and I," a play by Philip Barry, which was produced in New York during the season of 1922-1923 with H. B. Warner. Ferdinand Gottschalk, Lucille Watson and Geoffrey Kerr in the leading roles. This will be an all-star picture, but will probably have Loretta Young in the leading feminine role.

Another important production will be that adapted from "Fellow Prisoners," a powerful novel by Philip Gibbs, with the locale a German prison camp. John Monk Saunders will probably make the adaptation.

"I Spy," by Barson S. Carla Jenisen, a story of a woman in the secret service with a Bolshevik background, is included on the schedule.

Still another will be "The Night Watch," a remake of the silent picture, wherein First National will depart from its rule of not remaking old silent stories. The original was called "His Wife's Affair" and the new one may have Loretta Young starred.

"Rival Wives" also will be made, according to our informant. This is a novel by Ann Austin and probably will serve Dorothy Mackaill as a starring vehicle, with Michael Curtiz directing.

PARAMOUNT SIGNS NOTED DIRECTOR

If the name of Edward Goodwin means nothing to you, that's because you are uninformed regarding the New York theater Goodwin was the founder and for long producer and director of the Washington Square Players, which was the first organization in New York to definitely break away from the old theatrical trust and organize a company for the production of the best plays.

With which introduction I am happy to state that Paramount has corralled Mr. Goodwin's talents and has signed him as director. So far no assignment has been given him.

Among other achievements, Goodwin was the first producer to recognize the genius and talents of Eugene O'Neill, Zoe Akins, Susan Glaspell and other now noted playwrights.

Goodwin directed Ibsen's "Rosmersholm" as well as "Celebrities," Zoe Akins's "The Magical City," Dreiser's "An American Tragedy," "A Man's Man," and others.

He also authored several plays including the late Holbrook Blinn's starring vehicle, "Dishabille," "Mommer" and others.

Ian MacLaren with Fox

Ian MacLaren is the third of the trio of players who will be featured in the principal roles of "Squadrons," we learned yesterday.

Alfred Santell is to direct the picture, which is to be made as a special.

Benny Rubin's Multiple Roles

Many in one will Benny Rubin be in his next picture. Not content with playing dual roles, nor even with the triple role which he lately finished in "Talking Turkey," made for R.-K.-O., Benny's new one for that organization will present him in no less than fourteen different characters. This is Leigh Jason's new short novelty of the "Humanette" series. Rubin is, in fact, the only member of the cast.

Norma Talmadge Home

Norma Talmadge has returned to Hollywood. She has been in Europe during the past several months, and Wednesday night came back home. So far no story has been decided on as her next United Artists vehicle. She had a pleasant European trip, she said, and was looking exceedingly well yesterday and exceedingly smart in her Paris clothes.

German Actress Here

Another actress has just arrived from Berlin. She is Evelyn Hyde, who follows in the footsteps of Pola Negri and Lena Malena in an endeavor to find fame in the film capital.

Miss Hyde is a vivacious, dark-eyed brunette, who completed the leading feminine role in a film version of a story relating the love affairs of the famous German poet, Schiller, before trekking for Hollywood.

The actress is a skilled linguist, speaking German, Hungarian, French and Italian fluently. At present she is engaged in the translation of certain German and Hungarian plays at the Tec-Art studios.

WAYS TO AID DEFECTIVES POINTED OUT

Committee Urges Bureau for Handicapped Pupils and Publicity Drive

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6. (AP)—A centrally located special education bureau for handicapped children—the lame, the deaf, the blind, the mentally and nervously defective, the undernourished—was asked today in the report on that phase of the child health problem prepared for the coming White House conference.

From such a bureau, the report argued, parents and teachers could readily obtain information concerning treatment and training of all types of handicapped.

The committee on these special classes, of which Dr. Charles S. Berry of Columbia University is chairman, also urged a nation-wide publicity campaign.

More than 3,000,000 children in elementary schools of the United States need special treatment and training because of marked disabilities, the committee estimated. An added 6,000,000 are said to be suffering from malnutrition and 625,000 more have weak hearts.

Slayer Loses Fight for Life

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 6. (AP)—For the third time in eighteen months George Ryley, 22 years of age, was sentenced to hang at San Quentin prison when the State Supreme Court today denied a writ of habeas corpus in which he contended he is being held unlawfully. The court fixed December 5, next, for the execution.

Ryley was convicted in June, 1929, with John Gomez, 22, of the murder of George (Dad) Jones, Livermore taxicab driver. Gomez was hanged August 15, last, but Ryley got a stay of execution.

Chicago Bandits Make Gem Haul

CHICAGO, Nov. 6. (AP)—Diamonds valued at $40,000 were stolen from him last night by three bandits who kidnapsd him near his home, Abe Rothblum, a diamond broker, told police.

Rothblum said he was held up shortly after he had left home to take a train for New York, forced into a car, taken out on a prairie, searched and beaten. He was given medical attention and was held in technical custody pending an investigation.

ZIONIST PRESIDENT'S RESIGNATION FOUGHT

LONDON, Nov. 6. (Jewish Telegraphic Agency)—An appeal to the Zionist actions committee not to accept the resignation of Dr Chaim Weizmann, who quit the presidency of the world Zionist organization, was made by Judge Julian W. Mack, honorary chairman of the Zionist organization of America, before he sailed for home today. Judge Mack declared Dr. Weizmann, who resigned as a protest against the British white paper, was not responsible for the present Zionist situation. The blame is on the entire Jewish people, he said, who were unable to build up Palestine at a more rapid pace.

MAYOR THOMPSON RAPIDLY RECOVERING

CHICAGO, Nov. 6. (AP)—Mayor Thompson, convalescing from an appendicitis operation at the Passavant Hospital, is well on the way to complete recovery and able to take solid nourishment, his physicians reported today.

Philharmonic Orchestra In Symphonic Program

Martha Baird Applauded as Piano Soloist

Rodzinski Offers Berlioz Work as Main Feature

BY EDWIN SCHALLERT

Many and diversified intentions and purposes in the creation of music were illumined with the giving of the second symphony program by the Philharmonic Orchestra last evening. A large audience was drawn to the concert, and indicated enthusiasm in their applause especially for the more modern selections. Dr. Artur Rodzinski conducted, and Martha Baird, pianist, was soloist.

The program, which was presented at Philharmonic Auditorium, included Beethoven's "Egmont" overture, and Berlioz's Fantastic Symphony as representative of the more classical expression. A burlesque from the "Suite Intima" by Piero Coppola, and Enesco's familiar Rhapsodie Roumaine, No. 1, were the more modern flourishes. The solo number was Schumann's well-liked Concerto in A minor.

In a sense, this rather elaborate offering of music was a test for the listener. It seemed so, at least, in the instance of Berlioz's symphony, which, honorable as its position is in the literature of the orchestra, still undeniably inclines to tediousness in the first three of its five different movements.

The Berlioz symphony is nowadays a somewhat neglected work. The performance last evening was, for example, the first by the Philharmonic. "The March to the Scaffold" is heard fairly often, but to a majority of auditors the other sections were perhaps unfamiliar.

The historic import of the fantastic symphony can scarcely be overemphasized, since in form and spirit it was a forerunner of the symphonic poem. Undoubtedly, the interest in it increases through a knowledge of the story.

One must admire the simplicity of the methods used, melodically and harmonically, in conveying the composer's thought. The instrumentation is at times amazing when one thinks of how long ago it was written. Unfortunately, though, the Berlioz phrase is often so attenuated that the listener of today, accustomed to more concentrated and vital intenseness in music, does not respond to a beauty that must of necessity seem both somewhat pale and elusive.

It is a pleasure to hear this work for its significance, and the "March to the Scaffold," portions of "At the Ball" and the final "Witches Sabbath" hold compelling attractions.

As soloist, Miss Baird received a very gratifying tribute for her performance of the Shumann concer o, wh ch seemed a rather ideal choice in her instance. One discerns in her playing the charm truly feminine, evdienced in delicacies of style that are markedly individual on the concert performer. Technically she was assured in her rendition, and her tones had a clear and rippling quality. Momentarily she seemed slightly overshadowde by the orchestra, because of the lightness of her tone. The simplicity and genuine warmth of feeling with which she invested the interpretation, and the limpidity of the notes in her solo passages and cadenzas won decided admiratoin.

The audience apparently thoroughly indorsed the selection of Coppola's burlesque, which is a rather jazzy affair, and the Enesco Rhapsodie, which is always brilliant. Mr. Coppola has evidently borrowed liberally from the American ways of syncopation for his interesting trifle. The overture to "Egmont" was well presented, and the work of the strings section of the orchestra throughout the concert was especially to be remarked. The Berlioz symphony called liberally on the other resources of the orchestra, and its demands were met with very satisfying efficiency.

The program will be repeated today.

"Big Trail" at Chinese Aided by Grandeur

"The Big Trail," Raoul Walsh's saga of the pioneer trek to the west, now showing at Grauman's Chinese Theater, is a pioneer in itself. While not the first picture in Grandeur, it is the first outdoor production to be made entirely in the new wide film.

The difference between standard and Grandeur film is explained by a comparison in the size of the screens on which the pictures are projected. The average theater employs a screen twenty feet wide and eighteen feet high, whereas Grandeur is thrown on a screen fifty feet wide and twenty-five feet high, thus giving a picture of some three and a half times the area of the smaller film.

Because of special equipment requirements, and the necessity for having a broad proscenium to hold the enlarged screen, Grauman's Chinese is one of the few theaters to present "The Big Trail" in Grandeur.

Comics Created Unique Dialect, Director Says

That the dialect used by Amos 'n' Andy is not the true Afro-American but rather their own invention is pointed out by Melville Brown, who directed the radio stars in "Check and Double Check," now at the Orpheum Theater.

It is essentially a character dialect, says Brown, and through it the air listeners-in were able to gain a clear picture of Amos 'n' Andy before they appeared in motion pictures.

First its mildly African quality served to establish that they were blackface characters. Most of the words used were coined by the two, some being used by both of them and others only by one.

Andy, for rinstance, recklessly revises and misuses words. This is in consistency with the idea of his braggart and aggressive nature. Amos, in contrast, uses very simple dialect, consisting only of a few mispronunciations.

"UP POPS DEVIL" BOOKED

"Up Pops the Devil," now an outstanding comedy success in New York, will be the attraction at the Belasco Theater following the limited engagement of Dorothy Burgess in "The Bird of Flames," which starts Sunday night.

"Up Pops the Devil" is from the alert pens of Albert Hackett and Frances Goodrich. It was first produced at the Masque Theater, New York, September 1, and, reports state, has played to capacity attendance ever since. Belasco and Curren secured the western rights from Lee Shubert, the original producer.

This novel comedy will be the Christmas night and New Year's Eve attraction at the Belasco, the announcement states, with two performances New Year's Eve.

"Young Sinners," the current attraction at the Belasco, will close tomorrow night.

Film Soldier Carries on at Fox Boulevard

Winning revolutions and losing his heart; killing bandits and saving presidents, the fighting Victor McLaglen continues his Central American adventures this week at the Boulevard.

As he was in "The Cockeyed World," only much more so, is McLaglen in "A Devil With Women," the Fox picture which Irving Cummings has directed. The same friendly enemy relationship which then existed between him and Edmund Lowe is carried on between McLaglen and a young newcomer, Humphrey Bogart. They are captured, they escape, they fall in love—side by side, and their friendly sparring is frequently the cause of laughter.

"A Devil With Women" is certainly not to be listed among the ten best pictures of the year, but it has a strong entertainment value (perhaps a bit too strong for the ladies,) and it is often cleverly, indeed sometimes subtly, handled. The outstanding points in Cummings's direction are his many satiric touches which heighten the comedy, and also his wonderful choice of atmospheric "types." He has some way procured an assortment of amazing people whose pantomimic "bits" are delightful. The dialogue, too, if a little rough, is very funny.

No better role could be given to McLaglen than that of a fighting wanderer, who is unquestionably head man in every army he works for. Here he is visioned the idol of Central America, followed everywhere by a battalion of lesser heroes at least four feet shorter than himself. Of course, the streets are daily lined with damsels who dangle out of windows or decorate the curbings waiting for the boss to go by.

Adventures ensue as a variety of characters become involved; principally Humphrey Bogart, the stripling nephew of a wealthy mine owner. Bogart, it is suspected, is an unusually capable actor, although he does not show up to definite advantage in this. One resents the monotony of his too-present smile at the same time that one appreciates his quick, intelligent delivery of speeches.

Entering whole-heartedly into the spirit of bravado, Victor McLaglen is more than ever the ingratiating rough-neck that he likes to assume. Particularly good is he is in the latter scenes.

The girl, object of both McLaglen's and Bogart's affections, is played by Mona Maris. Hers is not much of a role, but she brings to it that appealing personality for which she is remembered.

Prominent and excellent are the portrayals by John St. Polis, Robert Edeson, Mona Rico and others.

Mack Sennett occupies a portion of the program with a dash of his modernized slap-stick, "Divorced Sweethearts," somewhat funnier than usual. A Tom Terriss travelogue "The Ebony Shrine," offers beautiful views of Guatemala and its surrounding country.

'Big Boy' Now at Majestic

The supporting cast includes Claudia Dell, Louise Closser Hale, Lloyd Hughes, Eddie Phillips and John Harron. Alan Crosland directed.

ACTRESS PREPARES

Evelyn Brent has begun preparations for her next Radio Pictures vehicle, "White Shoulders," which is based on the Rex Beach novel, "Recoil." Miss Brent has also completed "Madonna of the Streets" at Columbia.

'TODAY' WINS PRAISE FOR TWO ACTORS

Conrad Nagel, Catherine Dale Owen Score in Film at R.-K.-O. Theater

BY MURIEL BABCOCK

A trim drama called "Today" hove into sight at the R.-K.-O. Theater yesterday with Conrad Nagel in his favored role of a rising young business man, and Catherine Dale Owen in that of a pretty, petulant wife lending it reality and vitality.

Although taken from a play of some years ago — Emily Stevens played the role Miss Owen now carries—it savored little of the past. Deft adaptation of the play's theme to events of today and skilful direction places it very much in the class of modern drama.

Both Nagel and Miss Owen are at their best in the type roles they play. Nagel, as the conscientious and harrassed young husband, and Miss Owen, as the selfish, doll-like wife, do excellent work.

In fact, the picture should do a great deal for Miss Owen. It gives her the opportunity—which she has found rare since coming to pictures—to project in addition to her good looks a little of her personality upon the screen. With stubborn persistence she has worked out a tintype of the lady she is to characterize and never once has she varied from her interpretation, lacking in sympathy though it may be.

The story of the drama revolves around the financial difficulties in which the husband finds himself involved because of the market crash. He asks his wife to sacrifice her personal belongings and start out again in poverty with him. The film follows pretty closely the original play script until the very end when, by an old ruse (not to be given away in these paragraphs) a happy ending is provided. This ending is so entirely unexpected, however, that it doesn't seem the shop-worn trick it is—instead it appears immensely clever. At least, it seemed that way to yesterday's early afternoon audience who applauded heartily when the picture ended in such a surprising fashion.

Judith Vosselli is seen in what is just a combination of the good old-fashioned vampire and female-menace role. Sarah Padden as a sweet, all-sacrificing mother is a bit too saccharine. John Maurice Sullivan, Julia Swayne Gordon, William Bailey, Edna Marion, Robert Thornby and Drew Demarest have roles. Harry C. Sherman produced and directed.

The vaudeville bill for the week includes Jack McLallen and Sarr in some buffoonery, Joseph E. Howard in "Songs of the Past and Songs of Today," Johnny Hyman in "Playing Pranks With Webster" and comedy and dancing.

'Madam Satan' Now Showing at Pantages

Reminiscent of the old De Mille "divorce plays," "Madam Satan" started a run yesterday at Pantages Hollywood Theater. Kay Johnson, Reginald and Lillian Roth play leading roles. Roland Young has the chief comedy characterization.

Besides the quartet of players, De Mille has assembled a large cast of supporting talent, including Tyler Brooke, Julanne Johnston, Mary McAlister, Martha Sleeper, Katherine De Mille, Wilfred Lucas, Wallace Macdonald and others. Abe Lyman's band is heard playing for the ball aboard the Zeppelin.

On the stage, "Way Back When" is the week's song and dance offering. It is staged by Le Roy Prinz.

BANCROFT COMMANDS NEW SHIP

"Derelict" Makes Port at Paramount; Flagg-Quirt Note Sounded

BY PHILIP K. SCHEUER

"Derelict" dropped anchor at the Paramount Theater yesterday, and Capt. George Bancroft came ashore. Although he made two personal appearances last evening, it is perhaps more to the point that his talking shadow was called Bill Rafferty; that it fell in love with a singing shadow in a Havana cafe, and that its love was half-heartedly contested by still another shadow known as Jed Graves. These three worked out their destinies in a series of minor mishaps from the Cuban port to Orambo, somewhere this side of Rio. The net effect was pretty good regulation melodrama.

If "Derelict" is not better than you will find it at the Paramount, the reason is possibly that, like a great many other audible movies, it suffers from being too detailed. You become so much a part of the business of the Batson Steamship Company, so involved in a succession of promotions and demotions—mate and captain and mate again—that you forget to take sides in the fray and find yourself cheering the visiting team as well as the home talent. This is death to drama.

Flagg and Quirt—no, they are Rafferty and Graves aren't they?—are here opposed as merchant mariners. By various circumlocutions—some humorous, some not—Rafferty is made captain of the Cross Wind, freighter, and Graves his first mate. But in a fog Rafferty is negligent, so Graves is made captain and Rafferty dismissed. But then the Cross Wind, Capt. Graves commanding, runs into a squall; and Rafferty, now second mate of the Silver Crest, banana boat, takes command over Capt Gregg . . . I saw that yawn, suh.

Bancroft is his assured, swaggering self in "Derelict," which is all his admirers can require. Checkmating him is William Boyd—the stage William Boyd—and a capable checkmater he is, too. Out of the nowhere comes Jessie Royce Landis to be leading woman to both; looking a little like Lois Wilson, Miss Landis conveys an impression of curious practicality that robs her role of glamour. What I mean is that she is perfect as a lady passenger to Rio, but not the sort who would fall in love with her ship's captain. She couldn't, I would hazard the guess, be bothered.

Rowland V. Lee, directing, has provided a brisk tempo for his episodes without achieving briskness in his conflict. He has, as I have mentioned, made both his figures likable to the extent of nullifying their antagonism—almost, at times, with tongue in cheek. Certain sequences are graphically photographed—notably the one of the squall, although in it the identity of boats and characters grows a bit hazy and water-soaked. However, there can be no question of the menace of the storm.

Donald Stuart makes of the steward a legitimate portrait; and others are Thomas Jackson, Paul Porcasi, Wade Boteler and William Stack. The story was written by William Slavens McNutt and Grover Jones, and the dialogue by Max Marcin.

A Paramount Theater, New York, stage show reaches the local branch this week. "Sky-High" its name, it features a singing quartet, a comedy "sister" act and two graceful tap-dancers who were introduced, I believe, as Paul and Marion. Rubinoff conducted the orchestra in Victor Herbert selections, and Earl Abel played the organ.

LLOYD FILM SCHEDULED AT ARTISTS

"Feet First," Starring Popular Comic, to Start Run Wednesday

"Feet First," Harold Lloyd's latest comedy vehicle, comes to the United Artists Theater Wednesday morning. It follows the current attraction, "Du Barry, Woman of Passion."

"Feet First" is Lloyd's second talking picture and is said to contain hair-raising thrills on the order of those which made "Safety Last" one of his greatest silent productions.

Lloyd has assembled a fine cast for this picture, including Barbara Kent, Robert McWade, Alec Francis, Noah Young and Lillian Leighton.

"Feet First" presents the star as an ambitious shoe clerk who falls in love with his boss' secretary.

British Film at Filmarte

A new British drama, "Mystery at the Villa Rose," comes to the Filmarte Theater tonight.

Two foreign stars, Austin Trevor and Norah Baring, head the cast. The story is said to successfully keep the solution of its mystery until the final denouement. Leslie Hiscott directed. Several tense moments are developed through telling pantomime, rather than with words that adds much to the power of the scenes, it is said.

Henry Cowell Speaks Tonight

Henry Cowell, exponent of the music moderne, will speak tonight at Dr. Alexis Kall's studio, 109 South Magnolia. His subject will be contemporary American composers, and he will illustrate at the piano.

Mr. Cowell is a Californian. His work in making known the composers of today has been notable. He heads the new Music Society.

BENEFIT SLATED

This evening at the Wednesday Clubhouse, 220 East Avenue 28, will be given a benefit entertainment for the Los Angeles Music School Settlement. The program will include a play by the Beverly Hills Community Players, the Fuhrer-Erb Quintet, singing by Miss Coe Martin and dancing from the Norma Gould School of Dancing.

STATES CONFER ON RIVER SUIT

Defense Will Be Taken Up With Thatcher

Arizona's Attack on Dam Act Studied

Harmony Features Meeting in Colorado

GREELEY (Colo.) Nov. 6. (AP)—Representatives of five Colorado River States decided today to hold a conference with United States Solicitor-General Thatcher on a defense for the suit brought by Arizona against the Secretary of the Interior questioning the validity of the Boulder Dam act and the Colorado River compact.

Delph E. Carpenter, river commissioner for Colorado, said the 21st inst. has been tentatively set for the conference with Thatcher. He reported all delegates at the meeting of State representatives today in perfect harmony, but they had reached no decision as to the procedure of the defense of the suit.

Arizona has instituted action against six States, New Mexico, Colorado, Wyoming, Nevada, Utah and California, seeking to have the United States Supreme Court declare the Boulder Dam act and the Colorado River compact unconstitutional. The compact was signed by all States named in the action. Arizona refused to be a party to the compact.

BRIAND FOREIGN POLICY SCORED

Chamber of Deputies Hears Bitter Attacks

Main Fire Directed Toward German Relations

Demand Made for Opposition to Treaty Revision

PARIS, Nov. 6. (AP)—Aristide Briand's foreign policy, particularly with reference to rapprochement with Germany, came under heavy fire in the Chamber of Deputies today.

Deputy Franklin-Bouillon of the opposition, delivered the main attack. Briand probably will reply tomorrow.

Although Franklin-Bouillon expressed sentiments which apparently pleased supporters of the Tardieu government, it was generally thought the dilemma in which they would place the government if they should repudiate the Foreign Minister will prevent defections that would endanger the life of the Cabinet.

Directing his main fire at Franco-German relations, Franklin-Bouillon said:

"The German elections have proven that your policy for the past five years has been a mistake. I beg of you to admit it now and repair it by changing your attitude while there is yet time."

"France must let it be known that never under any pretext will she tolerate that anybody, directly or indirectly, touch the frontiers of Versailles," he cried.

"The frontier of Poland is a frontier of France and the frontier of France is, and must remain, the Rhine, despite the pretension in Germany that the Rhine is a German river, but not the German frontier."

Franklin-Bouillon declared revision of any of the frontiers would put Alsace-Lorraine in danger. "The Locarno pact guarantees our frontier," he said, "but one of the guarantors is Italy, where the talk now is mostly of war and revision of treaties."

The Socialists were excited to a high degree by the attack and interrupted it boisterously while the government majority applauded heartily.

Earlier Marcel Cachin, leader of the Communist party, also delivered an attack upon the government's foreign policies.

The lobby of the Chamber of Deputies was the scene of a violent brawl just before the session opened today when Camille Aymard, director of the Nationalist newspaper La Liberte, got into discussion with a group of Socialist Deputies. Blows were exchanged.

A number of windows were broken during the melee, which was transferred to the garden of the Palais Bourbon, where Republican guardsmen restored order. The row was a sequel of political polemics between Aymard and Leon Blum, Socialist leader and director of the Socialist newspaper Le Populaire.

DAM CITY WILL BE MODEL

Advance Plans Provide Parking Areas in Boulder Metropolis to Keep Cars Off Streets

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6. (Exclusive)—The Nevada town where the working forces that are to construct Boulder Dam will be housed will have a ground plan that will furnish ample parking space and keep idle cars entirely off the streets.

No car will ever park at the curb in this town. There will be areas specially provided and conveniently arranged throughout the town to take care of this demand of a modern age.

This will be the first municipality consciously planned in advance of its development to be laid out with all the exigencies of an automobile age in mind. It will be so designed as to avoid all the inconveniences experienced in old-fashioned towns that grew of themselves in horse-and-buggy days.

This town will be on a great transcontinental automobile highway. That highway, however, will not pass through the business street and interfere with local activities, as so often happens, nor through the back yards of undesirable sections. Instead it will wind past the government buildings, through parks and choice residence areas. The government, which owns all the land and assigns it for specific purposes, will place the business section off the through road.

after football games guard against SORE THROAT

Gargle Listerine every 2 hours reduces mouth germs 98%

When you're on your way to a football game you're usually on your way to a cold, sore throat or worse. For the body, weakened by exposure, cold, and emotional strain cannot cope with the millions of disease germs breeding in the mouth. They gain the upper hand. Trouble follows.

Why not aid nature in fighting disease germs by gargling frequently with full strength Listerine, the safe antiseptic and germicide? Before the game. After the game also. Tens of thousands guard against trouble this way.

Listerine kills all type of germs, millions of them, in 15 seconds; the fastest time accurately recorded by science. Even the Staphylococcus Aureus (pus) and Bacillus Typhosus (typhoid), specified as test germs, yield to it in counts ranging to 200,000,000. Yet is safe, non-poisonous, healing in effect.

Used as a gargle Listerine reduces the number of disease germs in the mouth surfaces, 98%. That includes Micrococcus Catarrhalis (catarrh) and Streptococcus Hemolyticus germs, organisms associated with colds and sore throat.

At the first symptom of trouble, gargle with Listerine every two hours and consult your physician. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

And for COLDS

A simple precaution against colds is the use of full strength Listerine on the hands before each meal. It destroys germs which may be present so that when they enter the mouth on food they are powerless to cause harm. Health authorities recommend such measures, particularly during epidemics of colds, grippe and influenza.

ART BOWS TO WRECKERS

Sculptor Barnard Will Abandon Work of Years When Forced to Quit New York City Studio

NEW YORK, Nov. 6. (AP)—On the morning of the 21st inst., George Grey Barnard, one of America's best-known sculptors, is expecting the arrival of a gang of wreckers to tear down his studio on "God's Thumb," a cliff that rises high between the Hudson River and Broadway at the upper end of Manhattan.

And when they come, he said today, he is prepared to turn the place over to them, put on his coat and walk out, leaving behind him most of the work he has accomplished in the last fifteen years. It consists of enormous statues of men and women—figures in heroic cast, most of them fifteen or more feet high. They were to have been a part of his "Rainbow Arch" originally a unit of a gigantic memorial of war and peace. If he is forced to move now, the sculptor said today, his arch will never be completed.

ORDERED TO VACATE

About fifteen years ago Mr. Barnard built his studio on "God's Thumb" owned by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and a part of the property he recently gave to the city of New York for a park. The studio was built while Barnard was doing some work for the Rockefellers. Recently the sculptor received notice to vacate by the 21st inst.

"It took me years to get these lights perfect," the sculptor said today. "I can't go through it all again. I am too old. To move out now means starting all over."

CHALLENGE DENIED

Mr. Barnard said recently statements attributed to him that he would challenge the Rockefellers and the city of New York to move him out are incorrect.

"I'm not going to challenge anyone," he said. "I shall simply abandon the project. I can't take these things with me, and I can't start all over again.

"When the wreckers come I'll just walk out. They can do with what they find here as they see fit. Anyway—I think Mr. Rockefeller has given to the noblest city in the world the noblest park in the world."

Reds Arrested in Paris Raids

PARIS, Nov. 6. (AP)—Forty-seven Italians were arrested today by the French police, who have been making a drive to break up anti-Fascist organizations around Paris.

The raids took place in the suburbs of Asnieres, Poteaux, Courbevoie and Aubervilliers, known as the "red belt around Paris."

Hiccough Victim Finally Expires

MOUNT CLEMENS (Mich.) Nov. 6. (Exclusive)—Virginia Mae Coppins, whose fight against hiccoughs for more than a year attracted the attention of specialists throughout the country, died in St. Joseph's Hospital here today, victim of the ailment.

Miss Coppins first developed hiccoughs in September, 1929, and coughed for fifty-three days before the malady was checked. Less violent attacks developed during succeeding months.

DANCER SUES RYAN HEIRESS

Muriel Johnson Plaintiff; Divorce Action Pending

NEW YORK, Nov. 6. (Exclusive) With details carefully guarded, Miss Adele Ryan, heiress to a large share of the $125,000,000 fortune of her grandfather, the late Thomas Fortune Ryan, financier, was made the defendant today in a $500,000 suit by Muriel Johnson, a dancer.

The action follows by just eight days the institution of a divorce suit begun by Muriel against Bob Johnson, her husband and professional partner of the dancing team of "Bob and Muriel."

Because of a shroud of impenetrable secrecy evidently prepared well in advance, the exact nature of Muriel's claims against Miss Ryan could not be learned tonight. It is stated in an authoritative quarter, however, "that but one inference can be drawn" and that the two suits are not unrelated.

The Anchor Watch

Prudently guarding against the unexpected, he always has a man on duty to stand the "anchor watch."

By just such unremitting vigilance does Pacific States Savings guard the safety of its 6% and 5¼% savings facilities. Study this institution's Statement of Condition, and you will find in its distinctive factors of liquidity the financial counterpart of the "anchor watch."

Pacific States Savings' policies of conservatism may seem excessively cautious during normal times, but in times of national stress they have been amply and repeatedly justified.

And it is because of these time-tested policies that Pacific States Savings has advanced to its preeminence in the national building and loan field.

We invite your consideration of our 6% and 5¼% facilities for savings.

A CHUCKLE FOR EVERYBODY

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

The two burly men beside the camp fire leaped startled to their feet as suddenly, near at hand, a lion's roar broke the silence of the jungle. At this very moment Tarzan elected to drop quietly into the circle of firelight before them. As they saw him, their looks of terror gave way to relief and anger. "Why do you come back like that, Esteban?" cried the taller fellow. "Don't you suppose we've got no nerves? What's the big idea gettin' back so soon?"

Tarzan was angry. Angry at these raw intruders who dared enter without his permission the wide domain in which he kept peace and order. When Tarzan was angry there flamed upon his forehead the scar that Bolgani, the gorilla, had placed there that day long ago when the boy Tarzan had met the great beast in mortal combat. Then it was he first learned the true value of his father's hunting-knife, the knife that placed him upon an even footing with the great beasts of the jungle.

Tarzan's gray eyes narrowed. His voice came cold and level as he addressed them: "Who are you," he demanded, "who dare thus invade the country of the Waziri, the land of Tarzan, without permission from the Lord of the Jungle?" The men looked amazed at this speech, then laughed long and uproariously. "Where do you get that stuff, Esteban?" demanded one. "What you doin' back 'ere alone? Where's your bally men, and where's the blooming gold?" the other yelled, working himself up by this time into a great pitch of excitement.

The ape-man eyed the speakers in silence for a moment. "I am Tarzan of the Apes," he said. "I do not know what you are talking about, I only know that I came in search of him who slew Gobu, the great ape; him who slew Bara, the deer, without my permission." "Oh, stow the guff, Esteban," exploded the Cockney. "If you're trying to be funny, we don't see no joke." Inside the tent which Tarzan had seen the third man enter, a woman crouched in sudden terror. She grasped the wrist of her companion frantically.

Private Agency Gives Estimate on Cotton Crop

MEMPHIS (Tenn.) Nov. 6. (Exclusive)—Reports to the Commercial Appeal indicate as of the 1st inst. a cotton crop of 14,159,000 bales, 500 pound gross weight equivalent, that paper will say tomorrow.

This is an increase of 191,000 bales, compared with the Commercial Appeal's estimate of October 1, but is 327,000 bales less than the government's estimate as of October 1.

The chief difference between the Commercial Appeal's estimate and the government's is on Mississippi. Government estimate October 1 placed the Mississippi crop at 1,660,000 bales. The Commercial Appeal's estimate gives Mississippi only 1,374,000 bales.

Output of Steel Hits Low Level

NEW YORK, Nov. 6. (AP)—The daily average steel ingot production for October fell to the lowest figure since August, 1924, and the lowest for October since 1921, the American Iron and Steel Institute's monthly statistics, issued today, show.

Daily average production by all companies last month, as calculated from reports of companies, which made 94.27 per cent of the open hearth and Bessemer steel ingots in 1929 was 100,576 tons with operations at 50.32 per cent of capacity. This compared with a daily average production of 98,200 tons in August, 1924, and 71,000 tons for October, 1921.

MONEY TIMIDITY DEPLORED

Pacific Mutual Head Urges Release of Capital as Cure for Business Depression; Advises Investment

BY EARLE E. CROWE

If timid money were drawn out of its hiding places and actively put to work the business depression in this country would soon give way to normal times.

George I. Cochran, president of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company, is the authority who stands behind the foregoing statement. It is not often that a life-insurance president elects publicly to advise people when and how to invest, but Mr. Cochran feels the current situation calls for some plain speech.

SPEND OR INVEST

His advice to people with money in the bank is to spend or invest, as the only sure cure for a depression that is mental rather than actual.

He has just returned from the eastern States, where he found business leaders pessimistic, business activities slowed down, and capital still retreating and accumulating in the haven of the commercial and savings banks. Back on the optimistic side of the Rockies, he said yesterday in discussing his impressions, he was immediately struck with the fallacy of the eastern point of view.

"I think," he remarked, "the present world-wide depression is more a matter of the mind than an actual reality. Business and inflation have been running wild and the sudden check has sort of bewildered everybody. There is undoubtedly plenty of money as appears by the bank deposits of commercial and savings banks, and a great deal of this money is idle. If the people who own this money or who can secure money at low rates of interest would only begin to spend it or invest it, the depression would vanish and normal times would appear."

TIMIDITY CRITICISED

Timid people who refuse to spend money for ordinary requirements simply because there is depression in the land were charged by Mr. Cochran with part of the responsibility for slow business.

"This is a time," he said, "when the salesman should bring into play all the science of his profession and work his head off. Now is a splendid opportunity to make sales if the salesman is on to his job. The public are obsessed with the notion that they should save and deprive themselves of the good things of life whether they have money on hand or not. When the public let go, normal times will return and breadlines and unemployment disappear."

Investment funds now piling up in the banks have a splendid opportunity for profitable employment in sound securities and sound real estate, the Pacific Mutual president pointed out. Because of doubt and fear, the investment bargains that ordinarily would be snapped up are allowed to go begging, and the country deprived of active and healthy circulation of capital.

STOCKS MENTIONED

He mentioned, for example, the stocks of the large and seasoned banks, like the stock of the Security-First National Bank of Los Angeles, now selling on a 5 per cent basis. In normal times bank stocks of this character sell on about a 2½ per cent basis. Among the public utilities he cited Southern California Edison common, selling about $50 a share to yield the high return of approximately 8½ per cent including the rights.

Pacific Finance, described by Mr. Cochran as a company in splendid condition and with great future prospects, is selling on a 9 per cent basis. Many oil stocks he also mentioned as cheap and out of line.

Of his own company, the Pacific Mutual Life, Mr. Cochran cited two performances that tell a significant story to the investor. Life insurance applied for during 1930 to date totals $102,811,928, an increase of 12 per cent over the same period of last year. And on $170,000,000 of investments, the company only has four items of delinquent interest.

Operating the largest mail-order organization in the country and supplementing this profitable business with a system of around 300 retail stores in the larger centers of population, Sears, Roebuck ranks as one of the nation's largest distributors of retail goods. Merchandising policy in 1930 has called for intensive development and consolidation of existing units rather than further store expansion. Prepayment of freight charges, undertaken in 1929, has since been discontinued, a price reduction of 10 to 25 per cent being substituted as a sales inducement. Company-owned factories manufacture about 10 per cent of the goods sold. Except for installment financing of such high-priced items as radios and ready-cut houses, business is almost entirely cash.

In 1929 net income was 12 per cent in excess of the returns for 1928, reflecting the large sales increases accounted for by retail store growth and prepaid shipping charge sales policy put into effect last year. Earnings currently are not reported, but some indication of the trend may be found in the 6.5 per cent decrease in sales for the year to September 10.

STATUS OF OIL UNIT OUTLINED

Indian Refining Board Tells Stockholders of Current Condition

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Directors of Indian Refining Company in letters to stockholders state they have already agreed to deposit the stock owned by them for exchange for Texas Corporation stock under terms of the offer recently made.

The new management of the Indian Refining Company under the presidency of George D'Utassy recently had an audit made of the company's statements for three months ended March 31, last, and June 30, last.

"In addition to large operating losses reported for those periods your company suffered a substantial operating loss in the quarter ended September 30, last," the directors' letter states. "As a consequence of these losses the cash position of your company at the present time is weak and in our opinion it is not now in a position to obtain credit necessary to its continued operation or the additional working capital which the situation obviously requires.

"The undersigned directors have, therefore, procured this offer by the Texas Corporation, which is available to all holders of common stock of your company, and recommend a prompt acceptance."

The letter is signed by the following directors: George D'Utassy, David M. Goodrich, Edwin A. Potter, Jr., Robert L. Montgomery and Frank Fritts.

Bankers to Aid in Rail Plan

Announcement was made yesterday by W. H. Coverdale, chairman of the board of Seaboard Air Line Railway Company, that Dillon, Read & Co. and Ladenburg, Thalman & Co., have been requested to work out a comprehensive plan to meet the company's financial problems through readjustment of its capital structure in co-operation with the company's directors and with committees representing the securities of the company.

The business depression and general decrease in railroad traffic has resulted in such a shrinkage of revenues of the railroad that this year's operations are reported to be resulting in a substantial deficit after payment of fixed charges.

RETAIL PRICES OUT OF LINE

Brookmire Says Drop to 6.7 Per Cent Relatively High Compared With Wholesale Level

BY JOHN F. SINCLAIR

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—The decline in the cost of living from August of last year to the same months this year, the Brookmire Economic Service's estimates to be only 6.7 per cent. Wholesale prices, in the meantime, have dropped 14 per cent. Thus retail prices are still relatively high. "It is in the latter item, that reductions must be made if reductions in wage earnings are to be partially offset," says this service.

What are the prospects for relieving unemployment this winter? There is little chance at the present time for increased employment in regular lines; so practically the only relief this winter will be found in the nonproductive work, which is being planned by the different cities, States and charitable organizations in an effort to alleviate the present crisis.

It is in this field that the work of Col. Arthur Woods and his staff will be of especial benefit.

Group insurance is making real headway in American colleges and universities. The cheapness and efficiency of the group idea appeals to many of them as it has to some of the larger industrial plants.

Recently, Dartmouth College entered into a group life insurance contract with the Equitable Life Insurance Company of the United States to insure the lives of 500 members of the faculty and employees of the college for a total of more than $2,000,000.

Under the arrangement, college professors are eligible for $5000 insurance, instructors and staff assistants $3000, and other employees, $2000.

This form of insurance is being recognized as an ideal plan for the officers and employees of corporations, which are unified and interdependent.

Unemployment is world-wide! The official labor figures for October in Great Britain showed 2,176,191 persons were out of work, compared with 1,207,000 at the same time last year. Germany has 3,500,000 idle with the number increasing rapidly. Italy, under Mussolini, now reports more than 400,000 idle.

The number of unemployed in other countries even last summer was three and a half times as great in Finland and Rumania as last year, while the number almost trebled in Belgium and more than doubled in France, Netherlands and Poland.

The British Department of Labor says that there were large increases in the number of persons out of work last fall over the fall of 1929 in Italy, Great Britain, Switzerland, Hungary, Czecho-Slovakia and Austria, and a slight increase in Ireland and Sweden.

How about the number of idle in the United States today? According to the Department of Labor, there were 7.67 per cent fewer persons employed in the thirteen major industrial groups than for the same period of 1929. If this percentage of reduction is applied to the estimated 47,000,000 people gainfully employed in 1929, it shows an increase of about 4,300,000 in unemployment over September, 1929.

The Brookmire Economic Service estimates 4,300,000 are unemployed. Prof. Squires of Chicago says 5,000,000 people are out of work. John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, estimates 30 per cent of the union members in that city are jobless.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Thermoid Company and subsidiaries reported today September quarter net profits of $62,699, equal after preferred dividends to 3 cents a share on 256,026 common shares and nine months' profits of $345,993, or 80 cents a common share.

STOCK MARKET TONE ERRATIC

Price Drift Irregular and Changes Small

Weakness of Utility Shares Notable Feature

Index Average Shade Up on Heavier Turnover

NEW YORK, Nov. 6. (AP)—Irregularity replaced weakness on the stock market today. Generally speaking, prices declined in the morning and rallied in the afternoon, although all of the gain was not held, leaving the market mixed at the close. Turnover of 2,446,690 shares was the largest in about a fortnight.

Weakness of the utilities seemed the only development that could be called a carry-over from the election. Virtually every important member of the group, including American Telephone, North American and Consolidated Gas, touched a new low. Oils were soft on the omission of a dividend, the large increase in gasoline stocks and some further shading of prices. Standard of New Jersey and Atlantic Refining made new minimums.

Rails turned downward, particularly in the late trading, and there were new lows for Pennsylvania, Union Pacific, Baltimore and Ohio, Southern Railway and numerous others. United States Steel, Westinghouse and American Can showed firmness and led the rally, although General Electric, Eastman Kodak and Du Pont reached new lows on an early decline.

Federal Reserve brokers' loans declined for the sixth successive week, dropping $58,000,000 to the lowest aggregate since May 28, 1926. The decrease in the recent weeks amounts to $786,000,000.

Some chain stores reported October sales had risen over September; in the case of Woolworth the gain was 18 per cent, although compared with 1929 its receipts were off 4½ per cent. Net changes in stocks were small. United States Steel, Kennecott, International Nickel, Sears-Roebuck, R.-K.-O., Fox and National Biscuit "B" closed up a point or more. Radio and Atchison improved fractionally. There were declines of a point or less in Standard Oil of New Jersey and American Power and Light. Union Pacific lost 2. Call money firmed a trifle in the outside market.

Foreign exchanges displayed rallying tendencies.

Simms Passes Dividend and Reports Loss

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Simms Petroleum Company omitted today the quarterly dividend of 40 cents a share due at this time and reported consolidated net loss of $195,523 for the first nine months this year, against net profits of $1,306,634, or $1.55 a share a year ago.

September quarter net loss totaled $154,760, against net profits of $688,887, or $1.66 a share in the third quarter last year. The loss is after all charges including depreciation, depletion, drilling costs, etc.

"Due to unsettled conditions in the industry directors have decided to discontinue for the present payment of dividends on the stock," a statement issued by the board said. "The company has a profit and loss surplus in excess of $4,000,000, representing undistributed earnings of previous years, and has current assets approximately six times as great as current liabilities and no funded debt or preferred stock."

WESTERN STOCKS FAVORED

Pacific Coast securities started downward a year sooner than did eastern issues, Sutro & Co. points in a current review, and there is every reason to believe that the turn will come sooner than in New York, especially when the yield and financial conditions of the western companies are considered.

An Attractive Preferred Stock

Massachusetts Utilities Associates Preferred Stock, obtainable to yield 6.58 per cent, is an attractive preferred stock investment because:

1. The $28,802,575 of preferred stock has ahead of it only $6,888,400 of prior securities;
2. Net earnings for 1929 were over 1.8 times total bond interest and preferred dividends; 1930 earnings ahead of 1929;
3. Preferred stock is entitled to participate with common up to 7 per cent and is convertible into common;
4. Serves a compact territory, including nearly one-third of the cities and towns of Massachusetts; population estimated at 650,000;
5. Present price is 24 per cent below par value and 44 per cent below liquidating value.

NEW YORK BOND PRICES

NEW YORK, Nov. 6. (AP)—A slightly lower trend dominated the dull session of the bond market today. Selling was moderate, but rather wide-spread and particularly noticeable in the rails where liquidation was influenced by the weakness of carrier shares.

While losses were the rule in virtually every class of bonds, on the constructive side was the firmness of legal rails and the advance of Liberty 3½s to a new high for the year. In the foreign section gains and losses were about evenly divided.

International Great Northern adjustment 6s dropped 8 points to 51.

Atchison General 4s were a little higher. A 5-point drop in Fathe warrant ⅞ was a conspicuous feature of the easy trend of stock privilege issues. Warner Brothers Pictures 6s reacted 1¼ and Southern Pacific 4½s lost more than a point.

United States governments were very dull and except for the advance in Liberty 3½s, were a shade lower.

The closing price is omitted when same as the low and both low and close when same as the high.

Stronger Tone Rules Trading on Grain Mart

CHICAGO, Nov. 6. (AP)—Indications of subdued but rapid disappearance of world surplus of wheat did a good deal to bring about sharply higher prices today in prices of all grains. The wheat market was further stimulated by disturbing reports that rust was doing serious damage to the crop in Argentina. Corn and oats followed wheat, gave evidence of being in a strong position, resulting in heavy monopolizing sales of late. Provisions took their cue on wheat from unexpectedly strong top level. May provisions closed 14@21c higher than yesterday's finish, and May lard showed a rise of 9@11c over last night's close.

Corn closed 1¼@2½c advance, oats 1@1½c up and provisions varying from 10c decline to a rise of 2c.

Considerable was attached to figures showing the spread between the world's visible supply of wheat this year and last year had been reduced 37,000,000 bushels. The latter total was announced a year ago was announced. The world's visible supply, traders friendly to the bull side took advantage of light offerings to put prices sharply lower in price, owing in part to any special demand.

NEW YORK CURB STOCKS

NEW YORK, Nov. 6. (AP)—Further heavy selling of the utilities in today's curb market drove most of the more active members of this group to new low ground, and unsettled the entire list, but the market made irregular recovery and a few shares showed net gains at the close.

Trading expanded, with turnover of 699,100 shares against 625,400 yesterday. There was a fair turnover in some oils, where further new lows were recorded.

American Gas and Electric dropped 3½ points to 82½, another new low, then rallied. Electric Bond and Share sagged a point, but closed with a gain of ⅝.

American Superpower and Commonwealth and Southern Warrants penetrated their previous resistance points. Vacuum Oil was a firm spot, closing up a fraction, on declaration of the usual extra dividend of 25 cents and announcement the end of the year should find a balance to be carried to surplus. General Petroleum, formed as a holding company for Vacuum and Standard of New York, dropped 2 points to a new low at 26. Imperial was again firm, and Cities Service closed steady.

Standard of Indiana dropped ⅝ to a new low at 38⅞, and closed at 40. Consden dropped 1⅝ to a new low at 3½, which contrasts with the year's high of 74¾. Further piling up of gasoline stocks and unremitting weakness in gasoline and crude prices continued to unsettle these issues.

The closing price is omitted when same as the low and both low and close when same as the high.

OIL NEWS

BY HOWARD KEGLEY

Continued steady production from the shallow zone in the Venice field and ability of the district to maintain an unusually good daily yield for the next week or ten days.

The Union Oil Company has just completed Townsite No. 3 in the northwesterly portion of the district and it is thought to be good for 600 barrels daily from the upper zone. The company's Townsite No. 1 was brought in last week at 600 barrels daily with bottom at 6000 feet. The La Bara Oil Company has also completed its No. 1 and its initial yield exceeded 1500 barrels daily.

Two other new wells have been completed during the week. These have enabled the field to maintain a daily flow exceeding 35,000 barrels. Carrie Randall's No. 1 was in at the rate of 200 barrels per hour, Joseph Devere's Baby Jo No. 1 at 300 barrels; Elmer Oil's No. 1 at 700 barrels; George F. Getty's No. 6 for 400 barrels, and Thomas Brothers No. 6 is swabbing for completion. Since discovery of the field in December, nearly eighty wells have been placed on production, ninety-two of which at present are flowing. There are ninety-four other projects drilling at Venice.

Activity in Decline

A lull in activities is noted in the Inglewood field, southeast of Portland. A month ago there were approximately eighteen active projects, but at present, according to reports, only eight are searching for production. The Paul Lewis Oil Co. No. 1 in Sec. 15, 22-17, which drilled to a depth of 1110 feet and failed to find oil, has been plugged back to 1000 feet and will be equipped with a pump.

Rumors for Test

The Elwood Exploration Company has commenced Tideland Permit No. 54 in the Elwood field and will make another attempt to bring this well in from a depth of 3640 feet. First endeavor to bring it in with that undertaking to be wet. A second three-quarter-inche casing is set to about 3573 feet. Elwood Exploration's undertaking is located on a permit adjoining holdings belonging to Bankline and Signal Hill Gas Company.

Activity in Test

The Union Oil Company yesterday continued to bail for a water shutoff test in Sansinena No. 11 on the south flank of the Puente Hills. This well has cored considerable oil and at one time was good for 100 barrels daily from a depth of 6400 feet before being deepened to the test, present depth.

Boring Out

It was then eighty feet of 10-inch and one-half-inch drill pipe to ream the Chansler-Canfield Midway Oil Company is endeavoring to clean out Hobson A-2, two miles southeast of the Seacliff field and possibly deepen it. Bottom of the hole is at 7518 feet. It was cased at 7518 feet. It was reported yielding about 280 barrels of oil a day from a depth of 7440 feet, and was killed to deepen. Some of the fish is thrown at 7440 feet.

Activity Held Up

The Rosedale-Rio Grande company has completed derrick for Well No. 1, due northwest of Rio Bravo lease in the Elwood field, and is expected to start drilling operations soon in an endeavor to find a continuation of the field. The operators leased the Bishop-Rio tract several years ago and it has been tested throughout the years.

Hole Completion

The Shell Oil Company's Taylor No. 1 in the Ventura-avenue field, was started to flow by heads several days ago, now is steadily producing at the rate of 1750 barrels per hour, gravity oil per day from a depth of 6934 feet. The flow is through

SHIP GROUNDING SPUR TO ACTION

Better Marking of Reef Off Point Fermin Sought

Accident to Liner Charcas Basis of Movement

Shipping Interests at Port Planning Campaign

BY WALDO DRAKE

Local shipping interests were yesterday preparing a campaign to secure more adequate marking of the Point Fermin reef, following grounding on the shoal last Wednesday morning of the Grace liner Charcas. A small, unlighted pneumatic whistling buoy is at present the only indication of the sunken reef, long held to be a menace in coastwise navigation.

Shipmasters declare that unless there is a swell of material size running off Point Fermin the present buoy often cannot be heard even when a vessel is within a few yards of the whistler. They point out that the officers of the Charcas and those of the steamer David C. Meyer, which was lost on the same reef in 1926, did not hear the whistling buoy, though their ships struck within a stone's throw of it.

Ship operators, therefore, plan to ask the United States Lighthouse Service to establish a large lighted gas buoy outside the reef, toge her with a secondary fog whistle or siren; the whistle to be of a distinctly different tone and characteristic than that of the breakwater light to avoid confusion.

The Charcas, refloated at 9:30 p.m. Wednesday, was yesterday being unloaded at an outer harbor pier and will be discharged tomorrow in readiness for dry docking at the yards of the Be hlehem Shipbuilding Corporation. She was leaking in No. 4 hold yesterday, the seawater damaging cargo in that area. Company representatives said yesterday that her 5000 tons of cargo for Peru and Chile will be picked up here about the 15th inst. by the Grace liner Cusco, Merritt, Chapman & Scott divers made an underwater survey of the Charcas yesterday morning and reported that her bottom was badly damaged aft of the amidships section.

Capt. S. A. Kennedy, in charge of the local offices of the United States Steamboat Inspection Service, said yesterday that Capt. Robert Caughill, commanding the Charcas, and his officers will not be questioned regarding the casualty until after the ship has been surveyed in dry dock.

"UNTO THE LEAST OF THESE"

After nearly two weeks of intensive effort on the part of a small army of unpaid, volunteer workers the Los Angeles Community Chest is not quite half-filled.

Yet there was never a time in the history of Los Angeles when a whole-hearted response to the appeal for the relief of the city's unfortunate is so essential to the well-being of the city and its every resident. Destitution and unemployment have added to the burden that every well-to-do man and woman must help to bear who expects to live up to his Christian heritage.

Even in Los Angeles, comparatively blessed and so far removed from the tragic bread line, the grim specter of want hangs over many a humble home, the wolf is unpleasantly close to many a door that in former years had no fear of its stealthy approach.

Adequately to meet the city's obligation to help those of ours who cannot help themselves our leaders six years ago marshaled the love and faith and strength of the community in one great annual campaign of giving. Through that concerted effort they determined to supply the ammunition necessary to wage a year's fight with the sickness and penury and disability always creeping up from the mildew of human weakness.

The Community Chest is the sole reliance of the afflicted and underprivileged for the help which our common humanity must not—cannot—dare not refuse them.

This year, when the need is greatest, the response so far has been least. The Chest, which should by this time be nearly ready for delivery, contains but 48 per cent of the minimum sum required. Now we must stand up and answer the question: Is Los Angeles the fifth city in the United States only when it comes to counting, and not testing souls?

We exhibited our satisfaction with blowing of bugles and clashing of cymbals when we displaced Cleveland, O., in the race for population honors. But there is better music, finer harmonies, and it is with such strains that Cleveland can answer our drums and trumpets.

Our triumph came with the census returns—Cleveland's pride is to tilt the lid of her Community Chest. Last year our sister city in Ohio set her quota at $4,500,000—it is $5,200,000 this year. We set ours at $3,200,000, and after a twice and thrice extended campaign had difficulty in even approaching this lesser goal.

Or to come nearer home San Francisco—that in wealth and growth we have so far outstripped—can raise nearly as much as we do to take care for her necessitous poor as a natural and to-be-expected result, without benefit of scolding or imploring.

There are no doubt reasons why a new city like Los Angeles cannot appeal to sectional loyalty and receive as quick response as can the older established cities of the Eastern States—or even San Francisco with its longer-maintained traditions. One half of our population came here not more than ten years ago—one-quarter in the last five years.

Families, like institutions, do not get rooted in a year or a few years. It takes more time than this to establish such community loyalties as speak, not from the head, but from the heart. The Community Chest succeeds as a people's love for their city compares with their love for themselves. The part played by civic pride in trying to banish sickness and want from the city's record is naturally more potent where a larger number of its sons and daughters are native born or trained in its own schools.

Yet in a matter so closely touching the fundamentals of organized society, so integral a part of mankind's redemption, why should it be needful to call on civic pride for the performance of a duty imposed on all humanity.

The indifference capable of allowing a crippled child to go through life with deformed or twisted limbs, of watching the aged and infirm slowly starve in the midst of the plenty they have helped to produce, of denying temporary help to honest families whose breadwinners are too proud to advertise their misfortunes, indifference of this nature can never be apologized away on the plea of absence of civic pride or distant affiliations.

Indifference to the afflictions of the less fortunate by the smug and comfortable who have never felt the pinch accounts largely for the difficulty encountered in filling a Community Chest, be it in Los Angeles, San Francisco or Cleveland or Detroit. We are loath to believe that many citizens of Los Angeles, old residents or newcomers, purposely would meet the Chest appeal with the cynical question of Cain, "Am I my brother's keeper?" Yet the almost complete indifference to it exhibited by some of our wealthy people means just that.

On the other hand there are undoubtedly many who would gladly do their share but who have so far failed to make a contribution because they have not been approached by a collector or informed where and how to make their offering. This applies especially to our newcomers, those not yet well known or identified with the community.

This omission it is not yet too late to rectify. Starvation and sickness and poverty cry to a man's heart as poignantly from the city of his adoption as from the city of his birth. The Times knows of at least one new resident of Los Angeles who had not been solicited but who on reading of the need sent in a voluntary contribution of $2000. Beyond a doubt many others like this one would respond to similar information. All such should communicate with the Chest headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce Building and blanks or a solicitor will be sent.

Another handicap this city encounters in filling the Chest is the proneness of the man of means to give less than his share, proportionate to his wealth. About a third of the money here contributed comes from the rich; the rest from those of only average means. This should be exactly reversed. In Detroit, San Francisco and Cleveland also a few of the leading families and biggest business concerns have made it easy for these cities to put over their Chest drives.

Many a relatively poor family here is giving far more proportionately from their necessities than the very rich are from their abundance. This only goes to show that a great many more, far removed from the bread line, are giving nothing at all. Else the Chest would by this time have been filled to overflowing.

And those who fail to help at all cannot lay the flattering unction to their souls that the Community Chest was unable to meet the calls upon it because the very rich could have afforded to make up the deficit their indifference created. They cannot in the presence of the Giver of All excuse their own selfishness by pointing to the neglect of others to come to the rescue of their suffering brothers and sisters.

In the eternal Presence the widow's mite may rate higher than the millionaire's gift. Let those indifferent to the call of need ponder the Master's words:

"I was anhungered and ye gave Me no meat, thirsty and ye gave Me no drink: a stranger and ye took Me not in, naked and ye clothed Me not; sick and in prison and ye visited Me not."

And to those who answered Him, asking, "When saw we Thee anhungered or athirst or a stranger or naked or in prison and did not minister unto Thee?" Came the reply:

"Inasmuch as ye did it not to one of the least of these, ye did it not to Me."

"Chase Scene" After Divorce

GLORIA GRANTED DIVORCE

Miss Swanson Wins Decree From Titled French Husband and Tries to Flee Cameramen

Gloria Swanson, motion-picture actress, obtained a divorce from her titled French husband in Superior Judge Guerin's court yesterday, but not at the private hearing that her astute attorneys had so carefully planned a day in advance of the date set for the trial.

And in the resultant flight of Gloria from the nine cameramen who had gathered to record the ceremony for posterity, pedestrians on Main street were privileged to witness one of the best pursuit scenes the actress has enacted since she was graduated from the Mack Sennett lot.

SCURRIES TO TAXI

There was Gloria, shielded from the insistent lenses by the tall form of her witness, Virginia Bowker, scurrying for a taxicab to flee from the scene. There were a half dozen photographers snapping shots at all angles, one of which included the taxi driver, agape with astonishment at such a pretty lady running so fast to escape the pursuit of villains with black boxes.

The divorce action itself was quite simple—the counterpart of hundreds at the Courthouse each week. The only drama connected with the trial was the passionate gesture and exclamation of Attorney Milton M. Cohen when he saw the nine photographers enter the courtroom. "Oh, my gracious!" he hissed.

TRIAL SET FORWARD

It was apparent that Mr. Cohen did not expect to see any press men, the trial having originally been set for today. Besides it was only 1:30 p.m., a time when not many judges are back from lunch.

But Miss Swanson took the stand, anyway, with a nonchalance that might be expected from a dramatic artist the third time she found herself in such a situation. Her first divorce was from Wallace Beery, motion-picture actor, and her second but one from Herbert Somborn, Hollywood producer. The defendant yesterday was the Marquis Henry La Bailly De La Falaise De La

Enrollment of 24,131 new pupils during October brought the total registration in the Los Angeles school system to 294,936, according to the monthly report submitted yesterday to the board of education by Superintendent of Schools Bouelle. In October, 1929, the enrollment for the month was 20,683 and the total at the end of the month was 284,985.

Average daily attendance during the month was 229,771, as compared with 220,985 in October, 1929. The discrepancy between total enrollment and average daily attendance is largely accounted for by the fact that a considerable number of students in evening high schools and other special classes are in attendance for one hour or less a week and, since four hours in attendance constitutes one day, the combined attendance of several enrolled pupils is required to equal one full-time pupil in average daily attendance.

STREET PROTESTS DENIED

The City Council yesterday denied protests against the improvement of Avenue 67 between Church and Hough streets and against the sewering of the Aguilar street and Somers avenue district.

WARNING VOICED ON CHEST

Prof. Woellner Depicts Tragedy to Los Angeles in Failure to Reach Quota

Sounding a warning of the results which would be sure to follow in the wake of failure on the part of Los Angeles to support the Community Chest, Fred Woellner, associate professor of education at the University of California at Los Angeles, yesterday told campaign workers at the Biltmore that the problem of the people of the community is not a question of whether to give, but simply a question of how and in what manner.

Subscriptions for the past day's work amounted to $145,462, bringing the amount subscribed to date to $1,552,885, or 48.53 per cent of the total goal of $3,200,000. This leaves $1,647,115 still unaccounted for on the day which should have brought the campaign to a close. Due to the fact that the job is not complete workers will continue their efforts throughout next week, with a report luncheon scheduled for Wednesday in the Sala de Oro of the Biltmore, and one on Friday, the 14th inst., in Conference Room No. 2. Because reports have been so slow coming in, trophies to the high percentage teams will not be awarded today, as previously stated, but will be held until next Friday, it was announced by Fred Seaver, chairman of the industrial district, who presided in Campaign Chairman Kerr's absence.

"Slowness of the reports is not because the workers in this campaign are asleep," commented Seaver, "but the people of Los Angeles are asleep in the matter of giving."

In his short talk, Prof. Woellner said:

"Those persons who are fully matured become more and more anxious to increase the number of persons dependent upon them. In the Community Chest we know that we cannot abolish any of the agencies dependent upon Chest support for their existence, so give we must. The question then, becomes one of how to give and in what manner, and the answer is through the Community Chest, which has been found to be the most scientific and economic agency for this particular

SAN GABRIEL DAM BLAME FIXED ON SUPERVISORS

Grand Jury Board of Experts Says Charges of Gross Irregularity on Excavation Report Unfounded

Confirmation, within 2.02 per cent of the county flood control engineers' figures on quantities of material, excavated at the abandoned San Gabriel dam, and criticism of the Board of Supervisors for their handling of the project was contained in a report of a special board of engineers released by the county grand jury yesterday. The board found that the county had paid for material excavated by the contractor outside the established pay lines, which offset certain claims by the contractor.

The pay line is a line set up by the county engineer on the job beyond which the county was not to pay for excavation. It is a line arrived at by an agreed formula.

The board found that charges of gross irregularities in the report of excavated quantities prepared by the flood control district were unfounded.

DIFFERENCE EXPLAINED

The discrepancy between the board of engineers' figures and the district engineer's is accounted for by the accumulation of loosened material falling into the excavation.

The board found that the gross excavation at the dam site, including the material beyond the pay line was 749,858 cubic yards. The district engineers had computed the gross excavation as 773,946 cubic yards. The board found the excavation within the pay line was 690,213 cubic yards. The district engineers had found the excavation within the pay line to be 704,421 cubic yards.

The report of the board of engineers on these quantities said, in part: "The settlement negotiated by the attorneys for the contractors and counsel for the flood control district involved payment for 773,646 cubic yards of excavation. Using the flood control district quantity within the pay line, (704,421 cubic yards) the settlement involved payment for 69,225 cubic yards outside of the pay line, which, at $2.95 per yard represents $204,213.75. Using the quantity of 690,213 cubic yards; according to our survey within the pay line, the excess of total yardage paid for outside this pay line was 83,433 cubic yards, representing $246,127.35."

SUPERVISORS CENSURED

In the absence of an official statement on the matter of settlement, it was said at the Hall of Records that the settlement was made with the contractors on the basis of a suit for more than $4,000,000 which the contractors threatened to bring for damages when the work was shut down.

But although the report clears the name of E. C. Eaton, flood-control chief, and his department, it criticises the Board of Supervisors and others connected with the project for ignoring sound engineering advice, proceeding with the scheme which they consider economically unjustified and expending more than $1,000,000 on preliminary work before a thorough engineering check had been made. Adequate flood-control works could be built in San Gabriel Canyon for half of the projected $25,000,000, the experts assert.

NEEDS NOT STUDIED

Enlarging upon this statement, the report says:

"At the time of bond issue, the project had been conceived without either restriction to flood-control needs, determination of foundation conditions, justification of reservoir capacity, or other engineering factors that should have governed.

"Storage capacity of the structure under the contract was 240,000 acre feet, while estimate of flood-control needs by Fowler, Marx & Paul was 105,000 acre feet; by Hawgood & Bell was 128,000 acre feet and by J. B. Lippincott was 110,000 acre feet.

"Had the structure been completed within the $25,000,000 provided in the bond issue, the project

GREAT CALTECH BUILDING OPENS

Athenaeum Erected at Cost of $500,000 Dedicated

Structure to Be Rendezvous for Men of Wisdom

Banquet on Noted Occasion Attended by Leaders

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, Nov. 6.—Two thousand years ago, Athens, Greece, was the intellectual capital of the world and it was in a small temple, the Athenaeum, erected in honor of Athena, goddess of wisdom, that poets and philosophers convened to discuss their accomplishments and dreams.

Tonight, far removed in time, and more than 8000 miles distant in space, another Athenaeum, which has risen on the California Institute of Technology campus, was dedicated with the prayer that it also may become an outstanding cradle of a new and better culture.

Climaxing the series of opening events in the new $500,000 building, which will serve as a rendezvous for the staffs of this city's triumvirate of research and scientific institutions, the California Institute, Mt. Wilson Observatory and Huntington Library, a formal banquet was held tonight in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Allan C. Balch, who made the modern Athenaeum a reality.

MODERN ATHENS

The hope of its sponsors was expressed in the address last night of Dr. William B. Munro of the Institute's faculty, who said: "We here in Southern California are located at the farthest outpost of western culture. We hope that the Athenaeum will help us to perpetuate some of those things which made Athens the greatest city of its time.

"The ancient city of Carthage was five times the size of Athens, but after its decline it was remembered only as the seat of a great war-making government. The United States is big, but in the future will be an Athens or a Carthage. I believe Mr. and Mrs. Balch have started us toward Athens."

Last night's banquet, which was held in the dining hall of the new building, was the climaxing event of a series of functions held this week to mark the formal opening of the Athenaeum. The hosts of the occasion were the 176 members of the California Institute of Associates and in addition to them there were about seventy-five guests present who included many of the most prominent citizens of this vicinity.

OTHER SPEAKERS

Russell H. Ballard, who is president of the Associates, presided, and he and all the other speakers made their main theme that of praise for the vision and generosity of Mr. and Mrs. Balch. The speakers, all of whom are members of the Associates, included:

WALKUP SUSPECT HUNTED

State-wide Search for Shawn, Taxi Checker, Begun; Woman and Two Other Men Also Indicted

Connors M. Shawn, chief checker for a local taxicab company, an unnamed woman and two unnamed men were indicted by the county grand jury yesterday and charged with a conspiracy to arrest falsely Police Commissioner Walkup. Bail of $10,000 was fixed on the Shawn warrant.

Returned as a secret indictment at noon yesterday in Superior Judge Wood's court, Shawn's name did not become public until late in the afternoon when a warrant was issued and delivered to Capt. J. B. Fox of the Sheriff's office.

STATE-WIDE SEARCH

A State-wide search by the Sheriff's men, the police and Federal officers was ordered at once in an effort to arrest Shawn within the next few days. The Federal authorities were drawn into the search when they were requested to watch the Mexican border for the taxicab official.

The indictment naming Shawn, one Jane Doe, John Doe and Richard Roe was voted by the grand jury following more than three weeks of investigation and testimony by fourteen witnesses, which included a confession by Helen Lee, who said she was to have been the lure in the "frame-up."

MISS LEE ARRESTED

Working under the direction of Chief of Detectives Taylor, Detectives James, McMullin and Nolan began the official investigation of the asserted "frame-up" plot more than a month ago and arrested Miss Lee, who then confessed her part in the affair. The pretty young blond woman named Shawn as the man who worked out the details of the asserted plot and also put the

The Lancer

THE votes of election day showed a definite change of mood on the part of the American public.

Especially the defeat of the Sunday-closing law and the daylight-saving foolishness.

The way those proposed laws were buried in adverse ballots indicate that we are tired of having our lives arranged for us. It is a revolt against these pestiferous busybodies who want to set our clocks and adjust our consciences.

TOO HECTIC

Just as much the result of too much speed pressure as of too much hard times, this country is in a hectic and overwrought condition. If the governing powers are possessed of any more brains than a dinosaur or a chicken (which I very much doubt,) they will let the world settle down for a while.

LET US HAVE PEACE

The way things have been heading we might as well all enlist in a Prussian infantry regiment and learn the goose step. If we have to be ordered around in every act of our lives we may as well have the job done by some one who really knows how.

THEIR OWN BUSINESS

And now the paddle has been turned on Mr. Nibs Price, the football coach of U.C.

Although there is considerable high entertainment in taking a swat at the hero of the hour, I haven't heard either Stanford or U.C. or U.S.C. asking any of us for our opinions about their football coaches.

THE SCARED COYOTE

The killing of a coyote on a Pasadena street by a policeman is an interesting incident on two counts.

It shows, for one thing, how the forest fires have driven wild game out of the mountains. The other interesting point is that the cop says he maintained a speed of forty miles an hour for more than a mile in pursuit of the coyote.

SPEED

Personally, I doubt it. The speed of wild animals in running is very much exaggerated. I have heard of coyotes hitting up a speed of forty miles an hour for very short distances; but a mile at that pace is pressing the verities.

In the early days of California we used to hear of the terrific speed of California road runners; but motorists who have pursued them tell me that sixteen to eighteen miles an hour is all the steam the birds can get up.

UNEASY AIMEE

For a young lady supposed to be suffering from exhaustion our little friend Aimee is an active girl.

One day you hear that she is resting in the California mountains; the next day she is in New Hampshire; before you can locate the place on the map she bobs up in Panama.

Any young lady who can dive into the ocean at Venice and come up for air in Douglas, Ariz., has a natural tendency to travel.

STREET OPENING SOUGHT

A request for a petition to be circulated asking for the opening of Anaheim street between Governor street and Gaffey street was made to the City Council yesterday by Carl Tillman. The width of the new street is to be eighty feet. The matter was referred to the City Engineer and the Public Works Committee.

UNITED ARTISTS DENOUNCE FOX

War Declared by Film Stars "to Preserve Art"

Theater Chain Asserted to Be Greedy Monopoly

of the doing. It is not work, it is pleasure, it is joy. We do not say to ourselves: 'Now we will spend just so much on a motion picture.' We say, 'We will make the best picture that is in us. We will dream over it, we will toil over it, and if we put our hearts into it we will make something that will entertain and inspire the American public. We know that is the road to success in the making of motion pictures because the American people have told us so.

"But we cannot make such pictures if we are handcuffed to the Fox West Coast Theaters, if we must live in slavery to their greedy and shortsighted ideas about public entertainment. We cannot make them, the public cannot enjoy them.

"The American public has been good to us. It has rewarded us for our efforts and we are grateful and proud. We feel, too, that the American people value the picture more than the theater in which it is shown. A theater is but stone walls and gilded decorations and soft lights; it has no meaning or dignity if the picture on the screen is cheap and worthless. We will not cheapen our pictures, we will not degrade our life's endeavor and we challenge the West Coast Theaters to a public test.

"We do not do this arrogantly, but with sincere understanding that the men and women and children who go to the motion-picture theater are more important than the makers of the pictures or the owners of the theaters in which they are shown. We fight for ourselves, for the integrity of all other artists in the world, and for the right to continue the making of finer and finer pictures.

"We will show our pictures in tents, armories, in halls—wherever they can be shown in cities of the Pacific Coast—but we will not show them in the theaters of the Fox West Coast trust, organized to stifle our individual endeavor and that of all other artists and producers."

CONTRACT REJECTED

Schenck amplified this statement when he said that his recent trip east was for the purpose of discussing with Clarke a contract for United Artists pictures. Clarke, he asserted, agreed to terms which were acceptable and that he, Schenck, returned to Hollywood to draw up the papers for his signature.

The proper papers were prepared, Schenck asserted, and sent back to New York. Clarke declined to agree to the terms theretofore agreed upon, he charged, and returned them. It was then, Schenck stated, the "break" came.

Schenck denied reports he intended organizing a new chain of theaters to compete with the Fox chain.

His company is selling pictures to such theaters as they are able. It appears from Schenck's verbal statement much of the trouble was over terms for pictures showing in neighborhood theaters.

He and the Fox executives, he said, not only agreed to terms for the showing of United Artists pictures on a percentage basis, but on a flat basis as well. He charged the percentage basis as well as the flat-rate basis offered by the Fox chain "was not a fair price."

HAYS MAY KEEP MUM

Will Hays, president of the Association of Motion Picture Producers of America, was not reached for a statement yesterday, but it was said at the local Hays office he, in all likelihood, would not care to enter the controversy as it is a matter that rests solely between the studio and the theater.

Winfield Sheehan, vice-president and general manager of the Fox studio, also declined to discuss the situation in view of Clarke's statement.

Reports that Harold B. Franklin, former president of the Fox Coast string of theaters, was to organize a new chain to compete as a result of the Fox-United Artist break were denied by him yesterday. Franklin admitted that he is dickering for a theater deal but that the negotiations are too premature to discuss. He said this deal has no connection with the Schenck troubles. He said he will be able to announce his position after the first of the year when he returns from a vacation to Europe.

GOVERNMENT MAY ACT

Schenck asserted the government will not be requested to make an investigation of their charges. If the law is being violated, Schenck stated, he felt it is up to the proper authorities to make the first move and not him.

U. S. Atty. McNabb, when told of the context of the Schenck statement, said that if evidence is presented to his office of any violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, he will take appropriate action. If such evidence is given his office he will authorize an investigation and report to the Department of Justice in Washington.

It was pointed out that the statement of United Artists does not contain anything which would indicate a violation of the consent decree entered last August by United States District Judge Cosgrave which ended the criminal case of the government against Fox West Coast Theaters and ten motion-picture distributing companies for conspiracy in restraint of trade. United Artists was one of the codefendants of the theater chain in this case.

The action of the government was based on asserted discriminatory tactics practiced by the theater chain in conspiracy with the other defendants against independent theaters. The decree entered by Judge Cosgrave contained a permanent injunction restraining the defendants from continuing these practices.

They Threaten to Show in Tents

GLORIA DOFFS TIES TO TITLE

Coudraye, of Paris and Hollywood. He did not appear in court.

WOULDN'T COME HOME

"My husband left me a year ago last September," said Miss Swanson, in response to the questions of Attorney Cohen.

"Have you lived together since?"

"We have not."

"Did you ask him to come back to you?"

"Yes. I called him in Paris before I left there for California, and he declined to accompany me. Later, when he came to New York, I asked him to come to Beverly Hills and live with us.

"He said no, he would live at the Beverly-Wilshire Hotel instead. He said he didn't care to live at our home."

LETTER EXHIBITED

Attorney Cohen then produced a letter, which the plaintiff identified, and the court ordered marked as Exhibit A.

Written on Ambassador Hotel stationery in English, and bearing the patriotic motto, "See America First," it read:

"October 7, 1930.

"Dear Gloria:

"I have been thinking this thing over, as you have asked me to do, and I am sorry to have to tell you that even though I am going to stay out here for an indefinite period, I will not come back to live at home as you have asked me to. This decision on my part is final.

(Signed) "HENRY."

STORY CONFIRMED

Miss Bowker, the witness, who said she lived at Miss Swanson's home, asserted she knew that the actress had requested the defendant to come home after his desertion, and that the defendant wouldn't.

"I happened to be in Paris when Miss Swanson was there," said Miss Bowker. "I have known her for fifteen years. I heard the defendant refuse Miss Swanson's invitation for him to come to her home."

When Judge Guerin granted the decree Miss Swanson rushed from the courtroom followed by her witness and Attorney C. O. Bacon, Attorney Cohen's partner.

"Please excuse me from posing, boys," she pleaded. "I was due back at the studio at 12 o'clock, and they are waiting on the set for me."

STATUS PUZZLING

Then she ran down one flight of stairs, but the photographers were right after her. The diverting pursuit scene in front of the City Hall followed.

Just what is the titular status of a divorced Marquise of the ancient Bourbon nobility remained something of a mystery yesterday. Miss Swanson has been quoted as saying that she valued her American citizenship and her artistic reputation as Gloria Swanson more than she did a European patent of nobility, but she declined to comment on the situation yesterday. Neither would her attorney.

"That's a social matter, not a legal one," he said.

obligation. Our choice is between generous, whole-hearted support of the Community Chest or something decidedly worse.

"Then, too, as Americans we are noted for our good sportsmanship, which believes in giving everyone a chance. If, as a community, we fail to meet this test for giving these less fortunate than ourselves a chance, we are falling short of our ideals of good sportsmanship."

Edwin A. Meserve, first vice-president of the Community Chest, declared that he is impressed with what it will mean to this community if the Chest fails, for he said that its failure would be reflected in business and in the lives of residents of the city generally.

"In the matter of elimination of agencies from the Chest lists," he said, "we are down to the last step. Every one listed there now must be cared for by the people of this city. The Chest is the best method we know for the amelioration of ills, for keeping people from getting on the down-grade and for side-tracking potential criminals, and the answer to its success is with the people of this community. Let us never face the calamity of the failure of the Chest."

CHANDLER IN LEAD

For the first time since the beginning of the campaign, the Chandler division of the $1,000,000 committee took the lead yesterday with 65.02 per cent of its goal, with the Ballard group running a close second with 60 per cent. The entire central division reports 56.78 per cent of its quota of $1,750,000.

Among the larger subscriptions for the day, it was announced that a gift of $12,500 had been received from Will Rogers as a result of personal appearances at Loew's State Theater during the past week.

The number of business firms which have exceeded their quotas continues to mount, some of the percentages rising around the 500 and 600 mark and reports from the Negro workers show that exceptionally good returns are coming in from the residents of their district.

Father Thomas J. O'Dwyer, executive secretary of the Catholic Welfare Bureau, pronounced the invocation yesterday, and the Rose Room Orchestra, directed by Nick Pontrelly, furnished music.

POSTER CONTEST

Especial interest at today's report luncheon will center around the award to be made to the winner of the Community Chest poster contest conducted by the junior, senior and evening high schools of Los Angeles. William Atkinson of Belmont High School, was adjudged the winner by a committee composed of Mrs. Blanche Ballagh, president of the Women Painters of the West; Roland Coate and Mrs. Sydney Temple. Three posters submitted from each of the school groups are on exhibition in Bullock's auditorium.

The speaked at today's luncheon will be Prof. George B. U. Mangold of the University of Southern California.

would not have been economically justified."

The experts also took occasion to criticise J. W. Reagan, former chief of the flood control, particularly for a statement which he issued at the time of the bond election.

"Statement by former chief engineer in published report at time of bond election with respect to character of bed rock as indicated by core drilling had no basis in fact," the report states.

The summary of the board's conclusions are:

(1) The total quantity of excavated material was 749,858 cubic yards, of which amount 690,215 cubic yards was within the pay line designated No. 2 established September 13, 1929, just prior to the slide causing the work to shut down.

(2) Total payment authorized by the Board of Supervisors was for 773,646 cubic yards, of which 83,433 cubic yards was outside of pay line No. 2, according to our survey.

(3) Payment of excavation in excess of computed quantity within pay line No. 2, according to our survey, amounted to $246,127.35, and according to the Flood-Control District also offset other claims made by the contractors.

CHARGES UNFOUNDED

(4) Movement of loosened material largely accounts for the difference of 14,208 cubic yards (2.02 per cent) less in our computation of excavation within pay line No. 2 and the 704,421 cubic yards reported by the Flood-Control District.

(5) Charges made of gross irregularities in the flood-control department reporqt of excavated quantities are unfounded.

(6) Pay lines were not submitted to the Board of Supervisors for approval as provided under the terms of the specifications and contract.

(7) Bids on total excavation under the contract were remarkably close and had the project been completed on the basis of the specification quantities, Fisher, Ross, McDonald and Kahn would have received approximately the same total for excavation as bid by the other contractors, but would have received their profit sooner.

GEOLOGY NOT CHARTED

(8.) The contract price on mass concrete included a reasonable margin of profit.

(9.) The specification quantities for excavation and concrete were inconsistent with each other and appear to be fictitious.

(10.) Had larger quantities been specified according to the estimate submitted by the majority members of the consulting board, Fisher, Ross, McDonald and Kahn would still have been the low bidders.

(11.) Foundation weakness is due to broken geological structure and not to overblasting.

(12.) No thorough and detailed geological study was made of dam site prior to time of shutting down work except by a geologist employed by the contractor.

(13.) Statement by former chief engineer in published report at time of bond election with respects to character of bed rock as indicated by core drilling had no basis in fact.

(14.) At time of bond issue, the project had been conceived without either restriction to flood control needs, determination of foundation conditions, justification of reservoir capacity, or other engineering factors that should have governed.

(15.) Storage capacity of the structure under the contract was 240,000 acre feet, while estimate of flood control needs by Fowler, Marx and Paul was 105,000 acre feet; by Hawgood & Bell was 128,000 acre feet, and by J. B. Lippincott was 110,000 acre feet.

(16.) Had the structure been completed within the $25,000,000 provided in the bond issue, the project would not have been economically justified.

(17.) A dam with adequate storage for flood control purposes can be built for approximately half the amount of the bond issue.

(18.) The amount paid to the contractors is only about half of the total expenditures to date. Other unjustifiable expenditures made prior to determination of feasibility of project were for railroad, highways and camps.

BOARD'S OMISSIONS

(19.) Omission or irregularities by Board of Supervisors were:

(a) Failure to have an independent geological and engineering check made of the project prior to the bond election.

(b) Ignoring of recommendation of Gen. George W. Goethals in matters of exploration, organization and means of reducing gambling element by placing flood control on a more scientific basis.

(c) Setting up of dual authority and divided responsibility in the supervision of the project.

(d) Constructing a railroad, highways, buildings and other works at a cost in excess of $1,000,000 prior to definite determination of feasibility of project.

(e) Award of boarding contract. It is customary for contractors to board their own crews, as this is an important means of building up a satisfactory personnel in the organization. Construction camps are usually conducted at a loss, but this loss is generally regarded as a means so an important saving in the total cost to the contractor. The award of the boarding contract by the Board of Supervisors was irregular in that it served no economic need and would eventually have led to difficulties.

(f) General ignoring of sound engineering advice when not in harmony with preconceived scope of project, or which would have involved a modification of the program as originally proposed by the former chief engineer and supported by the majority of the Board of Supervisors.

Our conclusions are recited in an earlier part of this report but, in a general way, we will state that there has been an enormous waste of public funds on a preconceived project, and at subsequent times when critical decisions were made, sound engineering advice was not followed. It is certain that about half the amount of the bond proposition would have been ample for the construction of adequate flood-control works in San Gabriel Canyon had the project been conceived along scientific lines and had the amount of the bond proposition been confined to a development economically justifiable.

INFANT DROWNS IN FISH POND

Child Falls Into Water as He Plays in Yard of His Home

Falling into a fish pond in the yard of his home, Richard Goodrich, Jr., nineteen months of age, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Goodrich, 211 Pine avenue, Montebello Gardens, was drowned yesterday morning before aid reached him.

The child, according to a report made by Deputy Sheriff Gompert, was in the habit of lying on an ornamental bridge across the pond and playing with the fish. He is believed to have fallen from the bridge and was seen struggling in the water by Dessa Mae Albert, 4, who lived near-by and summoned aid, the officer reported.

MEMORIAL TO MOTHERS PROJECTED

Association Concert to Enlighten Southland on Phases of Movement

To acquaint the Southland with its objectives, the Mothers' Memorial Association, planning to erect a memorial to mothers in Washington, D. C., will present its introductory concert at the Philharmonic Auditorium the 14th inst. Mrs. C. C. Calhoun, founder and first president of the association, will explain the purpose of the proposed memorial.

The site for the memorial building has already been chosen and formal ground-breaking will be made next Mothers' Day, according to Mrs. Calhoun. More than twenty designs, including one by Marbury Somerwell, Los Angeles architect, for the mothers' tribute have been received by the association and are now being studied by the national committee.

Present plans provide for a Hall of Memory, where each State will have a nook inscribed with the names of its most beloved mothers. A roll of honor for founders, donors and life members is also to be provided. Housed in the building will be a hall of fame for the yearly exhibition of woman's art and industry. There will be an auditorium for the presentation of music, drama, and for the holding of conventions and conferences.

Two funds to be administered by the board of national trustees provide a loan for children of tested talent and a fund for old mothers who have no means of self-support. The memorial association is to be nonpolitical, nonsectarian and nonracial. Through donations of any amount, any man, woman or child will be able to place his or her mother's name in the book of memory for their State.

The memorial association has adopted as its slogan, "A tribute to the past—a service to the present—an inspiration to the future."

College Will Greet Alumni in Rally Tomorrow

Tomorrow will be homecoming day at the California Christian College. Beginning in the morning, when class reunions are scheduled, classes will be visited by returning alumni. A large attendance is anticipated by Vaughan R. Harlan, '25 alumni president.

In the afternoon at Loyola Field, 1871 Venice Boulevard, the Cal-Christian varsity will meet the La Verne College eleven in the day's football game. The Christian College band, newly organized under direction of Edward Russell, will furnish music.

At 6:30 p.m. alumni and former students will banquet in the Hotel Kipling. Later they will all be guests at the production of "Russom's Universal Robots" at the Los Angeles Junior College.

ENGINEERS' CLUB ACTS TO AID UNEMPLOYED

The Engineers' Club yesterday made a move toward relief of unemployment when a special committee announced the organization is prepared to receive registrations of all unemployed engineers. It also urges that employers of engineers communicate word of vacancies to the club. The telephone is TR. 8788.

Accounting Shows Estate Worth $100,000

Rudolph Valentino, while film [illegible], ran a Hollywood clothes-cleaning establishment, S. George Ullman, executor of the actor's estate, testified yesterday in Superior Judge Stephens's court. In explaining Valentino's various business ventures, Ullman said that in 1924 the actor acquired control of the Ullman Cleaners on Highland avenue, but that it was conducted at a loss. "I sold it seven months after Valentino's death," testified Ullman, who is seeking court approval of his stewardship. His accounting, showing an estate total of $100,000, was questioned by Valentino's brother and sister, Alberto Guglielmo and Maria Guglielmo Strada, who contend that the amount should be approximately $1,000,000.

CHILD SCALDED IN LYE

Tumbling into a tub of scalding lye water which his mother was using for scrubbing purposes, Gilbert Acado, 2 years of age, 1827 Davis street, yesterday received burns which Dr. Lopizich, police surgeon at Georgia-Street Receiving Hospital, said probably will cost the child's life.

COLLECTS INSURANCE

As one example of how he tried to increase the estate, Ullman testified yesterday that he successfully claimed a share of insurance paid on Valentino's death. A policy on Valentino's life for $250,000 was carried naming Features Productions, Inc., Joseph Schenck and his assignees as beneficiaries. When the actor died, Ullman testified, he took it upon himself to press claims for 25 per cent, and that after deductions for expenses were made, $40,000 was paid the estate.

The executor admitted that in July and August, 1926, his wife, Beatrice Ullman, was paid $22,500 by Valentino Productions, Inc. She conducted a New York office for the actor's enterprises and later for the estate, said Ullman. The objectors contend the money never was returned.

NOTES IDENTIFIED

Ullman identified two notes, one for $2500 and the other for $1500, drawn by him against the estate. He said that the money raised was used to defray the expenses of the Valentino funeral.

Attorney Leonard H. Wilson represents Ullman, while James C. Scarborough, Jr., heads counsel for the objectors. Ullman will continue on the witness stand today.

Jewish Institute Forum to Offer Lecture Series

A special lecture series has been announced for the season of 1930-31, to be given at the Wilshire-Ebell Theater under sponsorship of the Jewish Institute Forum, according to Herman Lissauer. The series, which will include such speakers as Sir Hubert Wilkins, Hendrik Van Loon, Will Durant and Dr. Frederic Woellner, will be open to the public.

The opening lecture the 24th inst. is to be given by Sir Hubert Wilkins, who has just returned from his fourth Antarctic expedition. In 1929 he was aboard the Graf Zeppelin on its around-the-world flight. In 1928 he made the historic flight from Point Barrow, Alaska, to Spitzbergen. He will speak on "Flying the Ends of the Earth." The lecture will be illustrated.

Headquarters for the Jewish Institute are at Room 206 Beaux Arts Building.

Warm Weather in City Will Continue Today

Los Angeles today will enter the third week of above-normal temperatures with every prospect that today also will be warm, according to the Weather Bureau. Yesterday's peak temperature came shortly after noon and reached 90 deg against a November peak normal of 72. Not since October 23 has the mercury been down to normal.

The humidity yesterday was 18 per cent at noon against a normal of 40. The same low humidity probability for today caused the bureau again to append a fire hazard warning to its forecast last night.

Mayor to Name Woman Today on Police Board

The nomination of Miss Kate Smith, former high school principal, as a member of the Board of Police Commissioners to fill the place of Willard G. Thorpe, term expired as of July 1, will be forwarded to the City Council this morning, Mayor Porter said yesterday.

In the routine course the nomination will be referred for consideration to the Police and Fire Committee.

Councilman Martin, chairman of this committee, has expressed the opinion that the Police Commission is not the place for a woman.

THEFT CHARGED IN INDICTMENT

Modiste Said to Have Lost Valuable Diamond

Girl Reports Being Robbed of Entire Wardrobe

Accused Declared to Have Posed as Author

MISS MAURINE SIMPSON

Charges of bilking two Los Angeles women out of jewelry and clothing valued at more than $3000 were filed against Anson L. Shepard, alias Royal Brown, author, in an indictment returned by the county grand jury yesterday.

The first count of grand theft accuses Shepard of stealing a $3000 diamond ring from Miss Nellie Haynie, modiste, of 628½ South Alvarado street. The second count accuses him of stealing clothing from Miss Maurine Simpson of 200 South Kenmore avenue valued at $309.

According to Mary Ross, policewoman assigned to the investigation, Shepard posed as a wealthy author with a wife and family living in Santa Barbara. Visiting Miss Haynie's establishment, he asked her to order an expensive wardrobe for one of his daughters. During the evening Shepard entertained Miss Haynie at dinner and admired a large diamond ring she was wearing. Eventually he persuaded her to let him take the ring so that he might have a jeweler duplicate it for his daughter. The ring was not returned and Shepard disappeared until captured a week later, Policewoman Ross charges.

Miss Simpson charges that Shepard negotiated with her to become his private secretary at his Santa Barbara residence. Promising to aid her in arranging transportation Shepard gained possession of her luggage checks and she has not seen the luggage since, Miss Simpson told officers.

Shepard was arrested by Policewoman Ross through an advertisement he had inserted in a newspaper.

Police Radio Needs Studied

The Police Commission, which recently came within an ace of awarding the contract for a radio transmitter and receiving sets after advertising for bids, has decided to make a study of the plan before going ahead with the project.

The commission has received suggestions from City Purchasing Agent Oughton, who outlines the following needs:

"Obtain title to the land for the transmitter if the city does not already own it, arrange with City Construction Superintendent Brittain for estimates of cost and construction of the transmitter building; arrange for electricity to be carried to the desired location if not already there; as soon as bids are received it is necessary to arrange for funds to pay for the radio system; obtain a radio permit from the Federal Radio Commission."

MUSEUM ADDS TO WONDERS

Public Will Be Admitted to New Wing With Its Collections for First Time Today

Literal treasures of the Incas, valuable and strange objects from the four corners of the earth, will be on display today with the opening of the new wing of the Los Angeles Museum. Thirty-five exhibit halls will be opened to the public for the first time this morning, with their contents upon which no estimate of valuable has ever been placed.

Dr. John A. Comstock, associate director of the museum, in a description of the recently completed wing said yesterday that the display of American and foreign animals, arranged in their natural settings, is a unique departure from the usual museum showing.

NATURAL SETTINGS

He pointed out groups of American mammals, prong-horned antelope, buffalo, deer and a variety of others, standing on what seemed to be their natural rock and earth and with natural trees and painted backgrounds.

"I would like every school child in the city to know that he is welcome to come to the museum with parents or teachers and see the things he reads about in books," Dr. Comstock said.

"An interesting example of what we have is the group of prong-horned antelope. Only seven of these animals are left in Southern California and they are found in a small band near Mojave.

MUENTHE COLLECTION

Another hall is devoted to the showing of African mammals arranged in their natural habitat.

The wing contains the collection of Gen. Muenthe, alone valued at more than $1,000,000, part of which was recently acquired by the museum. The exhibit contains a display of Asiatic ceramics, brass and bronze, and roll paintings.

Another hall is given to the display of the history of furniture, each lighted case containing a typical setting for the period.

One of the most extensive groups is the showing of materials collected from the South Sea Islands and Polynesia. War-drums, curious idols, knives, swords, charms, and here and there a skull, are shown. There is one of the curious relics of the head-hunters of New Guinea, just as it was taken from the skull-rack or trophy room of a cannibal's hut. A single piece of tapa-cloth is shown in the same hall.

Dr. Comstock said that months of preparation have been needed for the opening this morning.

"A great deal of the credit for the successful showing of the animals," he said, "must go to Dr. Melville N. Lincoln, habitat preparator, and to Dr. A. Woodward, curator of anthropology and history, for the arrangements in the furniture hall and also in the South Seas group.

"Hanson Puthuff, the artist who painted the backgrounds for the settings, is already famous for his work."

The museum director said there is one item which the museum should have but which would probably never be found.

NEED GRIZZLY BEAR

"The grizzly bear is on the emblem of the State of California; we have countless stories of the animal, yet all that we know about that particular bear is that it was of a different variety than any other, was a different color and was very ferocious.

"As far as we know there is only one skull in the world and that is in the American Museum of Natural History. California has neither hide nor hair of its famous animal and I doubt very much if another skull will ever be found as a relic of the beast that figured so prominently in the history of the State."

GIFTS TO MUSEUM

Many of the exhibits shown in the new museum wing have been given to the institution in the course of the settlement of estates. Others have been purchased and still others obtained by expeditions sponsored by the museum.

Dr. Comstock said that although the exhibits in the thirty-five halls will be opened today, there are others that will be placed on display as rapidly as they can be assembled.

The twenty-first annual museum exhibition of the California Art Club will be opened at the museum tomorrow. It is the oldest sustained annual art event on the Pacific Coast. It will remain on free display until December 31.

The contestants strive for three principal prizes. One is the Eudora-Hull Spaldin; cash prize, another is the Fletcher Ford purchase prize and the third is the Dalzell Hatfield gold medal and cash prize.

EVENING RECEPTION

"This exhibition," said Francis William Vreeland of a club committee, "is the avowed torch-bearer of modern art expression in the plastic and graphic arts in the West. Not only has this annual showing maintained a high standard of work but it provides a great proportion of successful examples in advanced thought of forward trends in painting and sculpture."

This evening the club and museum officials will give a reception to exhibiting artists and their invited guests in the museum.

Today's Bible Text

As many as I love, I rebuke and chasten: be zealous therefore, and repent. Behold, I stand at the door and knock: if any man hear my voice and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with Me.—Rev. iii:19, 20.

KNOWS IT

The man on the end chair has been suffering from the grip, but he says it is really a parliamentary tangle. Both the eyes and the nose seem to have it.

MANANA POR LA MANANA

They are talking of having an election in Spain. The last time the toreadors were permitted to vote was back in 1922. Whenever bullfighters fail to furnish enough entertainment, they are given an election. This supplies enough comedy for another decade.

DRY EXPERIMENT

The English city of Carlisle is trying an experiment in the direction of temperance. There are no more saloons, but liquor may be had with meals in restaurants and its sale is a public monopoly. No one can really get rich by selling booze and the city treasury is the chief beneficiary of such trade as exists.

LOOKING BACKWARD

Even if the new Emperor of Abyssinia could show his pedigree back to Solomon and Sheba—as his lineage is claimed—nobody could read the blooming document. In the meantime the scandal runs on and on. Will no one come to the rescue of Sheba's reputation? Were there no platonic loves in those days?

LOVED THE TOWN

Man in an Ohio town left his fortune of nearly $400,000 to his home city. He had no kindred, but some may presently be heard from. But for the present the town will handle the dough. It will take care of all the city debt and make a smart reduction in taxes. The citizens should keep his memory green on this showing.

THE YOUNG FLYERS

Our young aviators are a venturesome lot. In New York a 16-year-old boy climbed over 12,000 feet into the heavens in what he called a powered glider. It was really a dinky little plane weighing about 350 pounds and carrying an ordinary motorcycle engine. Pretty soon the kids will be soaring over the hills in a plane made from a cigar box and a watch spring.

BOOZING BEES

Southerners are complaining that they have lost many bees on account of drunkenness—of the bees, not the keepers. It seems that whole hives of workers go off to the mountains for honest honey and stop at moonshine stills, acquire jags and refuse to work. In some cases whole swarms have been lost. Some wets, hard put for argument, ought to whip this into tract form against prohibition. It might even be brought to the attention of Congress.

DIAMOND JUBILEE IN IOWA

Davenport, Iowa, sitting on its beautiful bluffs overlooking the Father of Waters, has cause for congratulation in that it is nearing the hundredth year of its existence. Meantime one of its newspapers, the Democrat and Leader, is celebrating its diamond jubilee. It has published a 200-page edition telling the story of the progress of the place since it was established ninety-six years ago by Col. George Davenport, for whom it was named.

When the Democrat and Leader began publication Davenport was a town of 8000. The first locomotive to link the town with the region west of the Mississippi had crossed the river on the ice and the rails were coming soon. The advent of the railroad was followed by the pleasant hum of industry which has been sounding there ever since and increasing in volume year by year until its manufactured products have reached the annual mark of $30,000,000, chief among them being meat packing, in which large sums are invested.

Although one does not readily associate the name of the newspaper with the politics of the State it would seem that the Democrat and Leader must have contributed its share to the welfare of its section of Iowa or it would not be manifesting so husky and prosperous a condition after seventy-five years' existence.

THE OFF-YEAR RESULTS

The outcome of country-wide elections to Congress and the State will afford considerable partisan comfort to the Democrats, who have made material gains in both houses, and will give the Republicans some disquiet, not only as to party control of the Senate and the House, but with respect to the Presidential contest two years hence.

There will be an effort, which is quite understandable, by Republican sympathizers to minimize in the popular mind the significance of the election results, and an equally understandable drive by encouraged and hopeful Democrats to make the most of any favorable conditions.

However, reference not only to past records, but to the specific results of the November balloting will show that most of the places captured from Republican incumbents by Democratic candidates have been consistently held by Democrats in the past, the flood tide of the Republican victory of 1928 having reached beyond the normal limits of established party strength. A recession at this time on that account alone is not extraordinary and, moreover, each so-called off-year election in history has shown a loss by the party in power when economic conditions were not the best. Greater losses have been sustained heretofore and utterly failed to make themselves felt in a succeeding election. The outlook calls for careful attention, but from a Republican standpoint is in no way alarming.

Republican control in each house on the basis of latest counts, is still indicated, although the coalition usually developing between Democrats and insurgent Republicans may handicap the administration's program.

Gains by the Democratic party will not prove for the Democrats a blessing alone, as, with added strength in the Senate and House, will come added responsibility for results. A powerful political party remains strong and grows only as it serves a people. The citizenship of the United States will not mildly accept nor long tolerate a renewal of political sniping in Washington, which has mere party advantage as its immediate objective and which inescapably will contribute further to economic ills of the country.

There are few persons in any part of the country unacquainted with the intelligent and effective contributions which President Hoover has made to industrial, business and commercial stability during an era of readjustments having no connection whatsoever with politics or political parties. Such contributions from the President will continue and will find adequate recognition from the country at large.

Hence, as a question of Republican or Democratic ascendancy in actual management of national affairs during the next two years and thereafter, the 1930 elections afford little ground for reliable conclusions.

It is doubtful that the so-called anti-dry victories in last Tuesday's election in the various States hold the degree of national significance placed upon them by the wets. For the most part, drys won in dry territory and wets won in localities known to be in favor of modification of prohibition—and dry majorities are safely retained in each house.

California's election of a Governor and a Lieutenant-Governor, both Republican, indicates the absence of serious attention to the dry issue in this State despite almost frantic agitation of the question on the part of political opportunists.

The Republican candidate for Governor, Mayor Rolph, although declining to accept prohibition as an issue in this State, is known as a liberal. He defeated Milton K. Young, Democratic nominee, by a majority in excess of 650,000 in the face of Young's pronouncements in favor of bone-dry enforcement — pronouncements accompanied by eager attempts to convince the electorate that prohibition would be endangered if Rolph should be elected. The glaring inconsistency of Young's switch from the wet side of the issue to the dry side almost overnight undoubtedly accounted for his failure to win any considerable dry support.

Then State Senator Merriam, one of the outstanding dry leaders of California, defeated a Democrat for Lieutenant-Governor despite his opponent's appeal for support solely on the basis of his demand for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. Further, Merriam's victory in dry area was not more definite—in fact, much less so—than his defeat of the wet advocate in the city and county of San Francisco.

Political parties, and all those elected to office, will best serve partisan and personal interests by working for the real interests of the people. All the several States of the Union and the nation as a whole would welcome and undoubtedly reward a type of political rivalry that contemplates a contest to determine which party and which public officer can render the greatest and most genuine public service.

M. O. IN SAN FRANCISCO

The long-suffering taxpayers of San Francisco rebelled Tuesday against the municipal-ownership clique of theorists and voted extensions of franchise and permits for betterments for the Market Street Railway Company by a majority of 15,000. The extension referendum, favored by only one newspaper and bitterly opposed by the Hearst organs and by union labor, brought out a vote larger than was ever cast in a municipal campaign before so that the result was by no means a default.

The result is highly significant. San Francisco has been experimenting with municipal ownership of street railways for years. The private company, burdened with taxes and hampered by expiring franchises, has been able to compete on better than even terms with the municipal lines, which, though tax-free, have had to dip heavily into the city treasury to pay expenses. Deficits at last burst through their covering of accounting camouflage and became visible. In several successive reports the necessity for an increase in fares has been pointed out.

Under such circumstances it is no wonder that San Franciscans are showing some weariness over municipal ownership, and while this vote by no means settles that question, it is a step in the direction of settlement. City officials talk of it as a postponement of city acquisition of the Market-street lines until a plan can be worked out for taking them over, but it bears more resemblance to abandonment of the idea. A practical plan for buying the Market-street lines presumes that the city lines can be put on a paying basis and this is hardly possible under political control.

In Tuesday's election the solidly-organized staff of the municipal railway lines worked and voted as a unit to defeat the extension proposal, proving the frequently made charge that municipal ownership tends to build up a powerful political machine with interests foreign to those of the city.

BEWARE THE HITCH-HIKER

A lone driver on the Foothill Boulevard near Fontana was waved down by a hitch-hiker. The motorist rolled on his way and then his conscience began to prick him. So he wheeled about to be a Good Samaritan and picked up the vagrant.

They had not proceeded far until the passenger produced a club and hit his benefactor over the head. The Good Samaritan recovered his senses in an orchard by the side of the road and found his wallet and $130 gone.

He tried to be a neighbor and became a victim. He made the fatal mistake of picking up the bandit on the road to Jericho and acted the part of the man who fell among thieves himself. An autoist needs to use discrimination in choosing his objects of charity. He needs to explore widely enough to know whether he is helping reality or a robber.

If an automobile suffer a breakdown and need a friend to take the owner to the nearest garage, the signs by the side of the road may be sufficient. But playing the indiscriminate Good Samaritan has its drawbacks. A fairly safe rule is to let the hitch-hiker hike on.

A boy on his way to school with his bundle of books as a badge of honesty has his appeal to the automobilist. But in case of an accident, even these innocents have brought suit for damages. The ride baiter may be old and decrepit; and yet bunko artists have a way of making up to deceive the elect. More than one "old woman" has poked a gun into the ribs of her sympathizer.

In dealing with this fraternity the way around on the other side seems to be the shortest road home.

An impulse to be kindly may be mistaken. Playing into the hands of the villain is neither good business nor religion. Even a neighbor needs common sense.

COSTE'S COST

Capt. Coste started from Paris to New York without a dime in his jacket. He goes back with cash and valuable contracts in his coat pocket. What is that old saw about wings having riches? or was it riches having wings?

CURE FOR BEDLAM

Radio music will be diffused through the main rotunda of the Pennsylvania station at New York City by a system of loud speakers to entertain the travelers awaiting trains. It may be just as long for commuters to wait for trains; but it will not seem as long. And then again it may be a species of homeopathy.

EASTERN SNOWBIRDS
By James J. Montague

The wandering robin is preening his plumes
Far away in some whispering palm.
Where the hills are all hidden with carpets of blooms
And the weather is kindly and calm.
The bluebird flew off in a hurry last week
When there fell the first flurry of snow.
And the wind in the meadow blew biting and bleak
As the winds of November can blow.
But outside the window sounds solace and cheer,
For the gay little gray little snowbird is here.

The dogwood was robbed of its berries of red
When the greedy young starlings came by,
Yet the snowbird knows well he is sure to be fed
Though with manna that drops from the sky.
As soon as the dawn shows its first streak of gold
He comes seeking his breakfast outside,
And despite of the blizzard, despite of the cold,
His meals will be daily supplied.
You or I, in such straits, rather troubled would be,
As to where our next meal might be found—but not he.

His task for the season is over and done,
His sons and his daughters have flown,
Perhaps to go seeking their place in the sun
Or to lead happy lives of their own.
He might easily fly to far sunnier shores
And look upon fields filled with flowers,
But the brave little spirit within him adores
A blustering climate like ours.

The LEE SIDE O' LA
BY Lee Shippey

MAYBE you didn't know that soldiers from Hollywood "shot" more Germans during the World War than did any others.

There will be a reunion dinner at the Russian Art Club in Hollywood the night of November 8 which will bring together more of the shooters than can be gathered anywhere else, for of the 250 members of the branch of the service which made the only permanent photographic record of the war seventy were from the film colony. And it is an interesting fact that more of them lost their lives after returning here, in civilian photographic service, than died during the war.

The Most Effective Shots

"How did they get those pictures?" many a spectator has asked, when leaving the theater in which he has witnessed a great film drama of the war. There are a good many ways, of course, including fakery. But some of the thrilling and terrible things one sees on the screen are nearer the truth than most of us like to realize.

Alan Crosland, director and camera expert, was one of the Hollywood men who played an important part in producing the lasting record which now is housed among government archives in Washington, but which has time and again been loaned to producers who wished to secure realistic "shots" for war pictures. He and Hollingshead, now his assistant, became associated in that service and have been associated ever since.

The pictures those men secured, showing what war really is, are going to do a lot to make a better and saner world. They may be proved by time to have been the most effective shooters of them all.

Indians Through With Bloodshed

It now can be stated officially that the Hollywood Indians are completely through with the warpath.

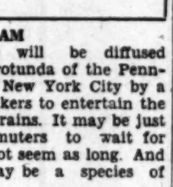
If it had not been so there would have been a scalping the other evening when they inducted Richard Dix into tribal membership, for to that soiree came a man who asserted he was a Cherokee Indian—and he was wearing spats!

Chief Standing Bear took one disgusted look at him, then dashed to the tom-tom and began to sound the war call. Standing Bear had on his Indian full dress—feathers and paint and everything.

"I've just come from New York," pleaded the newcomer. "There I saw Chief Long Lance wearing a tuxedo and a monocle."

A hasty council of the chiefs of the twenty-two tribes now represented in Hollywood was called. Hot heads were in favor of having Iron Eyes, the champion Indian archer, shoot the newcomer's left ear off for deserting tribal standards and put two arrows through his heart for slandering Long Lance. But cooler heads prevailed and it was decided to dispatch an air-mail letter to Long Lance to find out if the accusation was true.

"This is a free country," was the final word of Standing Bear. "We want the young Indians to grow up as modern Americans. But we still can't accept them if they turn Englishmen."



Golf in the Desert

An invitation we regret our inability to accept is to the formal opening of the Mirador golf course at Palm Springs. Not that we care a hoot for golf, but because we can't help admiring the courage and enterprise of people who can create a grass golf course in the desert. It is that spirit which has made Palm Springs grow from nothing to a famous winter resort in a few years.

A New York girl who married $40,000,000 kept right on working as a reporter. Well, she could afford to.

As long as we can look around and see things which ought to be done and aren't being done there is plenty of work in sight.

SLOW MEN AT WORK

BY WILLIAM HAMILTON CLINE

Our street is now undergoing an "improvement" program—our little side street, which meanders hither and yon, jogging up and down hill in neighborly fashion, unpretentious, satisfying.

We didn't ask for this; we fought it with every means in our power. In vain. Early in July, the juggernaut steam shovels descended upon us and sliced away ten feet off our front lawns, and cut down our grade till we perch high in air. Ruthlesly the grading contractor went through our domains, smashing sidewalks, curbs, retaining walls, trees and shrubbery, leaving in his wake a wide, deep, dusty and rutty gash. Later he put in a storm drain and sewer and connected up our lots therewith. Then he smoothed down the street, sprinkled it and faded from the picture.

Several weeks elapsed, with everything in a statu quo. Then came the paving contractor and found fault with the grading contractor's work. They locked horns—and we waited, sitting on the banks of a miniature Grand Canyon, with none of the beauty of the real one to console us. Two or three times surveyors went up and down, setting stakes, which were promptly knocked over or broken off by the traffic. Then the grading contractor came back, took off a few inches or so more of surface, making the cut deeper. He remanicured the surface and left.

After another interval came the water department and inserted a huge black pipe into a deep gash in the roadway, covered it carefully up, patted it down with tender hands and left. More time elapsed. A concrete gang came and put in curbing, and carefully covered it with earth. Back came the water department men, to put in the connections with the lots (after the curb was in, so it all had to be done by hand!) They ripped open the hand-patted trench where the big black pipe lay, made huge holes in the smoothed street, put in ditches under the curb to the lot lines and finished up; it all might have been done by mechanical diggers, as were the sewer connections, except that the curb was there first.

The gas men are off the job. They laid two lines of pipe, between curb and lot line on each side; which means, what with the water connections, that one can get in or out of his place only with difficulty. And the fall rains are in the offing; one shower has come already, and if you don't know what that means, go into some freshly plowed field of adobe, freshly rained on, and try to cross it dry shod.

When, if ever, the water and gas men have finished, mebbe we'll be rid of the sidewalk men—possibly before Christmas. Also, the street is yet to be paved—which ought to be done by midsummer, at the rate things have been going with us. Meanwhile, we have to await all this ere we can put in our retaining walls and our driveways and our steps. We have claims in against the city for change in the grade; they have been in since August 1, and we have hopes of collecting a fraction of what our added costs have been—if we live long enough, which we doubt. If we don't like it, we can sue the city, we are told; what luck we'll have at that, you may guess.

For all this—which we didn't ask, and sought in every way to avoid—we are taxed—I'll say we are! On my lot, the costs are already up to its assessed value, and I see hundreds of dollars coming due ahead. Some in our block have lost their homes, simply couldn't pay out. Others are in debt for twenty years to come. The property value of every single piece has been so reduced by the shortening of the lots and by their height above grade—not to speak of the indebtedness against them—that many cannot even be rented, much less sold.

Out of the whole mess, who profits? The contractors; yes. We hate to think of the politicians who put the job over; we grow libelous every time we neighbors mention them.

We took this matter to court, and were soundly licked, at a further cost to us which is not herein figured; the law permitted everything that was done to us and we had absolutely no way to prevent it, so long as the authorities acquiesced — which they did.

Had there been, when this "improvement" was decided upon, any system whatever of evaluating its costs, usefulness, purpose, results, possibilities of added gain or detriment—any sort of plan whereby we could have known in advance what was to be done to us, what it would involve in money, depreciation and loss, no sane City Councilman ever would have sponsored it, no Mayor would have signed it, probably no contractor would have bid on the "job." As it was, it was merely jammed through, even without an allocation to help us bear the costs thrust upon us, and we were told to like it or lump it.

We already had all required facilities when this "improvement" was ordered; all save the needless change of width; we are simply paying for the wrecking of what we already possessed, and the reinstallation of the same things all over again—and paying through the nose, at that.

The present low price on corn, oats and hay is blamed on farm tractors. The farm horse has always been a large consumer as well as producer of agricultural products, and its gradual displacement by motors is felt in the lessening of the demand for its favorite grain foods.

Rubber plants of a very productive species are now growing sturdily in Southern California and Florida, having withstood the winter climate with no apparent damage.

A Back-to-the-Land Move

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 2.—[To the Editor of The Times:] If many millions of our idle capital could somehow or other be gotten together and used to prepare our millions of acres of fine lands as homes for willing workers, thus furnishing employment for the idle in such preparation and afterward homes for such as cared for farm life, would it not be a work deserving the commendation of all thoughtful people?

Such a work as that would furnish employment for all who care for a means of livelihood in the clearing of lands, developing water, building highways, constructing houses and other buildings, planting and cultivating trees and thus making it possible for our millions of acres of rich land to produce the necessaries of life.

It is vain to prate about the idle ones going onto the land without means to provide themselves and their families a living when there; true they could possibly pitch a tent, drive a pipe a few feet and secure some kind of water; then a little effort would enable them to capture jack rabbits enough to furnish their tables with a very sorry sort of meat; but without money, what about all other necessities? The writer happens to know something of the difficulties of developing a ranch on the desert; he has been interested in two half sections of good land, most of it of the very choicest quality. Our interest began nineteen years ago. Some $6000 has been spent and yet well do we know that to make decent homes on these lands many more thousands must be spent, and what poor idle man, absolutely without money, would even consent to accept a few acres of such land as a gift?

Let Officers Stop Noises

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 27.—[To the Editor of The Times:] There is a proposed ordinance designed to diminish the noises of the city.

The only ordinance that we need just now is one to send the Police Commissioners out and have them check up and tag the traffic officers that stand around crossings and allow a number of automobiles to stand around them with horns honking and motorcycles go by at thirty or forty miles an hour with mufflers wide open.

There are enough of ordinances and laws against these noises and officers going around and tagging automobiles for parking too long; while they are doing this, there are motorcycles and automobiles going past them with mufflers and horns wide open and they pay no attention to the noise.

Santa Barbara has been making war on these traffic violators; there is one Assemblyman up that way that may have helped put this law on the book; yet he is going up to Sacramento to have these laws taken off the books because his son and a lot of crazy students were arrested for going around the city with automobile horns wide open.

See that the police do their duty and you will not need any more ordinances to eliminate these noises. D. B. HINES.

Fight Fires With Planes

SANTA ROSA, Nov. 1.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Forest and brush fires are today raging in various parts of the State; human life is endangered; many homes are being burned down, and tremendous losses of various sorts follow in the wake of these fires. Men are practically helpless before them; they can only trust to favorable weather changes and subsiding or veering winds. This ineffective way of meeting fires will continue until a better method is sought and put into practice and I believe I can propose a method which will be effective. My idea is as follows:

A force may be held in check by an equal counter force and can only be overcome by a greater force. The present fire-fighting methods are entirely inadequate as to the force which they represent to meet the infinitely greater force of the fire.

My idea is that the only way to attack and conquer a moving brush or forest fire is from the air in airplanes armed with plentiful supplies of fire-quenching chemicals which could be literally blanketed over the head fires. I know little about the technical side of this question—whether powder could be dropped in bombs or liquids sprayed from nozzles—but I do know that there are effective and efficient chemicals which have been developed.

This operation would be expensive, but it would certainly pay to spend considerable money in checking these fires which represent such an enormous loss each year. An airplane patrol could locate these fires when they are just getting started and fire planes could then get over them before they get out of control.

A man fighting a fire from overhead would have the advantage of not having to flee from the smoke and he would have the force of gravity as an ally. DANIEL BONTECOUP.

WISDOM OF AGE

As his years increase, and slow changes much his spirit, he grows mild and he grows mellow, he is less inclined to brood. All around he hears the clatter of the loud, gaudy throng, and he says, "What does it matter? Nothing here endureth long. True, today the world of sorrow, but our sorrow quickly wilt; we'll forget it by tomorrow, when new joys are being built. True, today the rain is falling, torrents in the mountain pass; but tomorrow we'll be sprawling on the beach and sunlit grass." So the man who is seated under his greenwood tree, all the while superheated seem as near as can be. It is vain to get excited, vain to feel a deep hate; all our wrongs will be righted, if we just sit still and wait. All our griefs from us wander if we sit 'neath greenwood trees, under to sit and ponder and to let us ease. Oh, the old man lived for ages, and he knows three things or four; and he knows that noisy rages make the spirit sore. The themselves protesting, no protest makes them free; the wise old man is resting derneath his greenwood tree has learned that evil passes the shadow on the hills, griefs that chafe the soon give way to other ills; some special ill's prevailing tomorrow it will fail, groaning and the wailing no hurry it at all; come, as in a cycle, to make a wreck; but it's call on Michael, or on even Heck. A. B. C., Los Angeles, Cal. Place in a saucepan one cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of water, and one tablespoonful of lemon juice to boil until the sugar is dissolved, remove from the fire, add one teaspoonful of vanilla extract, two cupfuls of milk, and two cupfuls of cream, place in a freezer, and when it is a mush, mash one and one-half cupfuls of avocado to a smooth pulp, and beat in the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs, add one cupful of finely sliced avocados to the mixture, then mix with the milk and cream, and freeze until hard.

RIPE OLIVES

C. D., Palos Verdes, Cal. The olives should be freshly picked, ripe and well colored; prepare a lye solution consisting of three ounces of lye to each gallon of water, place the olives in an earthen ware jar or wooden bucket, and leave until the lye has well penetrated through the skins, this can be determined by cutting an olive open and is shown by the discoloration of the flesh beneath the skin. Drain off the lye water into another container and leave the olives exposed to the air until they have turned black, they should be stirred two or three times during this process. Dilute the lye solution already used with one gallon of water to each two gallons of the solution and place the olives in it, stir often and watch the treatment until the lye reaches the pit, then remove and expose the olives again to the air for eight hours. Cover with fresh water and change daily until all taste of the lye or bitterness is removed. Make a brine of four ounces of salt to one gallon of water, place the olives in this for three days; if the brine darkens after the first day change it for a fresh brine of the same color.

APARTMENT DWELLER'S PISTOL PRACTICE ENDED

Neighbors of Leo Romero, 30 years of age, objected to his practicing pistol firing in his apartment at 527 East Sixth street. He considered this unreasonable. He had put up a target and practiced daily, police were told, because he said he'd had a little difference with two men and desired to be prepared to an emergency.

The other tenants in the building didn't see why Romero didn't set up his target in a vacant lot or maybe a canyon. They complained they didn't know what minute Romero might miss the target and a bullet would come through a wall and puncture someone. Anyway, the shooting made everybody not from Chicago nervous. Finally Policeman De Armond of Central station was called to see what he could do about it.

De Armond had to climb in a window from the fire escape because Romero, determined to practice undisturbed, had locked the door. He had his revolver in his hand, says De Armond, when the policeman entered. He attempted to run away and De Armond fired a shot which struck him in the heel. At Georgia-street Hospital he confirmed the story that he'd had a misunderstanding and wanted to be ready if a situation necessitating steadiness in shooting developed.

He will be examined by an alienist. Until he took up pistol practice he was said to have been known as a quiet, steady fellow. His regular profession is that of violin maker, although recently he's been working as a dish washer.

HUGE JULIAN ACTION NOW TO GO AHEAD

Sunset Pacific Company to Push Suit Against Stock Exchange Vigorously

Vigorous prosecution of the Julian Petroleum Corporation stockholders' $12,500,000 recovery suit against the Los Angeles Stock Exchange, members thereof and others was planned yesterday by counsel for the Sunset Pacific Oil Company, successor to the Julian concern, after a study of the Appellate Court decision clearing the way for action against the exchange and members named in the complaint.

The decision made permanent alternative writs of prohibition in so far as stock exchange members not named in the complaint or summons are concerned.

Attorneys Guy R. Crump and Joseph L. Lewinson, counsel for the Sunset Pacific Oil Company, said they have not as yet definitely determined whether to proceed on the original complaint, which figured in Wednesday's Appellate Court decision, or on a cross-complaint, filed by the oil company, in which all of the defendants are named.

"In the main," said Crump, "the Appellate Court's decision is satisfactory to us. It permits us to proceed, which was all we were interested in, anyway."

Attorney Crump said that an attempt may be made so to amend the original complaint as to include the names of stock exchange members not named.

Through an error, the name of Robert E. Burns was included in yesterday's Times among those against whom the Appellate Court decided Wednesday. Burns was not named in the complaint and the restraining order was made permanent in his case.

Mrs. Bertram Davis, 55-year-old wife of a mail carrier, died last night in the Santa Monica Hospital, and her husband was seriously injured, both victims of a hit-and-run driver.

They were walking on Venice Boulevard between Washington Boulevard and Electric avenue, where there is no sidewalk and pedestrians are forced to use the road, when they were struck by a roadster that sped away.

Mrs. Davis died soon after she was taken to the hospital and physicians there were doubtful of her husband's recovery.

CAFE NEWS

Distinguishing the coming week's schedule for the Blossom Room of the Roosevelt Hotel will be two particularly interesting events. "Celebrity Night," Monday, will have a stage and screen artist as guest of honor. Tuesday, another brilliant event will be staged in celebration of the anniversary of Armistice Day. Favors, special decorations and entertainment program will be featured at both affairs. "Collegiate Night," with Ted Weems and his orchestra playing special dance music and various other interesting attractions scheduled, will be featured in the Blossom Room tonight.

DANCE CONTESTS

A gala holiday program of dancing contests for $500 in gold prizes will begin at George Olsen's new club, Culver City, tonight, this series to continue for the next ten Friday nights, with the winning couples eligible for the finals on January 16. Tonight's contest will be staged as an added highlight with Olsen's new fall revue. Some of the foremost society and collegiate ballroom dancers of Los Angeles, Pasadena, Beverly Hills and Hollywood, have entered tonight's event, in which fox-trots, waltzes and tangos will be featured. Since many students patronize Olsen's Club on Friday nights, the management is issuing special courtesy cards to undergraduates at the University of Southern California, University of California at Los Angeles, Loyola, Occidental, Southwestern and other universities, entitling them to a collegiate supper, with cover charge included, for only $1.50 per person.

Warehouse Man Goes on Trial in Liquor Raid Case

Accused of possession of $10,000 worth of Canadian beer seized in a raid on a warehouse at 440 Seaton street, C. W. Muns, night watchman at the warehouse, went on trial yesterday before Municipal Judge Willis. The trial will be concluded today.

Police Officer Sears, head of the dry squad, testified that he learned of the liquor, and was informed that it was to be distributed by Chicago gangsters here on the night of September 30, last. Your Baby and Mine

by MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs Eldred will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children A stamped and self-addressed envelope forwarded to this office will bring a personal reply

This department offers leaflets on weaning and feeding the child from 6 weeks to 6 years, prenatal care and diet for the nursing mother, constipation, eczema, outfits for the new baby, sleeping, walking, teething, thumb sucking, ammoneacal urine, bed wetting, training in cleanly habits, periods of nursing, cod liver oil orange juice, hives, worms vomiting, refractory children, cruns juice, urine water rupture, sizes and bottle and cradle cap Before asking a personal question about one of these subjects, it is better to send a self-addressed stamped envelope for the leaflet you need If your particular problem is not covered in the above list, Mrs Eldred will be glad to give you a personal reply.

REST PERIODS OF GREAT BENEFIT TO CHILD

Quite often the mother assures herself that the child is getting the proper food, fresh air, and exercise, and yet is unable to understand why he doesn't thrive and develop as he should. The key to the whole problem may be one item that she has failed to stress, sufficient rest.

The habit of later and later bed hours, or of going without naps or definitely arranged rest periods is one that is easy to establish. The child's whole world is so exciting, so full of thrilling things to do all day and all evening long that unless sleep is looked upon as essential to his proper development, the mother may allow him to dictate his sleeping hours.

Even after the second year the matter of naps begins to harass the mother. The average child of this age is already refusing to take an afternoon nap, and instead of attempting what cannot be accomplished it is better to give a rest period at this time. Then the bedtime should be an hour earlier to make up for this loss of sleep.

REMARKABLE RESULTS

Unless the mother takes this precaution, the child shows the effects of his fatigue by failure to gain weight as would be expected. The older the child grows, the more plainly one notes the signs of fatigue and accompanying undernourishment. We all know children who seemingly are full of energy, who dislike going to bed, and who would play until they dropped. Yet their appearance is anything but a healthy one, sunken chests, winged shoulder-blades, protruding abdomens. Their arms hang limply, and their whole aspect is a "saggy" one.

It is quite remarkable what rest periods will do for children of this type, in fact, for any child. Rests do not mean that the child should be snatched from his play and driven screaming to bed. Such "rest" periods are not of the slightest benefit to the child. Instead, immediately after his lunch, if he does not go to school, he should have his shoes removed, face and hands washed, and be allowed as a great privilege to lie down and listen to the radio or victrola, or play quietly with some favorite toy. He should not be urged to sleep, just to rest.

REST FOR SCHOOL CHILD

The school child's rest period had best come right after school, before he enters into any games from which it would be difficult to tear him. A cup of warm milk and a few crackers, and then a fifteen-minute rest will loosen the tension caused by constant mental and physical activity. For the older child this fifteen-minute rest period can be repeated just before dinner, and will do wonders for a waning appetite.

The hours of sleep should be fixed for children of all ages. No going to bed at 10 tonight and eight tomorrow night. When children refuse to sleep until the adults retire, one knows without being told that their bed hours have been at the convenience of the adult. Our leaflet on "Hours of Sleep," which discusses the proper sleeping schedule for the child from infancy, is available to any reader who sends a self-addressed, stamped envelope with her request to the "Your Baby and Mine" department of this newspaper.

WHEN THE SANDMAN COMES

by THORNTON W. BURGESS

BOBBY IS IN A BAD WAY

Never, never, never say
You know there isn't any way.
—Bobby Coon.

Bobby Coon, like most of his neighbors, has more than once been in a tight place—such a tight place that there has seemed to be no hope at all. But Bobby long ago learned that the most foolish thing that one can do is to give up hope. Now, in one of the tightest places he ever had been had been in, he clung to hope.

"They won't get me! They won't get me!" he kept saying over and over to himself, trying to believe it. Every time he said it it seemed to give him new strength and put new speed into his legs.

Even so, Bobby was in a bad way. A dog with a good nose, a very good nose, was barking on his trail and, because Bobby was so fat and heavy, that dog was gaining on him. Bobby wouldn't have worried about this had it not been for the two hunters who were following the dog. He could escape the dog by climbing a tree, but he knew that this was just what the hunters wanted him to do. If he didn't do this the dog would catch him soon. This would not be so bad if the dog had been alone, for Bobby is a good fighter, but the hunters would be sure to catch up, and that would be the end of the fight and of Bobby. Bobby knew it.

As he ran he kept trying to think of some place where he would be safe from those hunters, as well as the dog, but the ledges deep in the Green Forest were the only places he could think of, and they were too far away. In the ledges were caves and winding passages where not even the dog could follow and where the hunters could not possibly get him out. He must think of some nearer place of safety.

So, while Bobby was making the very best use of his legs, he was at the same time using his wits. He missed no opportunity to mix his trail, so as to bother and delay the dog, and all the time he kept going over in his mind all the hollow trees and hollow stumps and hollow logs and other hiding places not too far away for him to reach, hoping that he might think of one that would promise at least some degree of safety. He was more and more in despair, but still he clung to hope. He would do that to the very last.

All the time Bobby felt that something was wrong, terribly wrong. Where was Farmer Brown's Boy? Where was Farmer Brown's Boy? Why had they allowed these dreadful hunters to hunt him? It wasn't fair. No, sir, it wasn't fair. By keeping hunters away from that part of the Green Forest they had made it seem safe for those who lived there. This was why Bobby had not thought it necessary to be so watchful and careful and fearful as he would have been otherwise. He had not felt that he needed to be so constantly on guard. Now, with no warning at all, these hunters had been allowed to enter the Green Forest to hunt him. It was hard to believe that Farmer Brown and Farmer Brown's Boy would do such a thing. But here were the hunters and here he was running for his life in the very place where he had felt so safe. It wasn't fair. No, sir, it wasn't fair.

What Bobby Coon didn't know was that Farmer Brown, Farmer Brown's Boy and Mother Brown had gone away to be gone all night. This was why Farmer Brown's Boy had not been on hand in the woodshed to watch Bobby eat his dinner and to stroke him and talk to him and scratch him back of the ears. This Bobby didn't know, but the hunters did. Somehow they had learned of it and had been quick to take the opportunity to hunt Bobby Coon. That hunter who had seen Bobby a few days before, had been waiting and watching for just such a chance. He meant to have Bobby's beautiful coat to use in making a coat for himself. He knew how angry Farmer Brown would be if he knew what was going on, but he didn't mean that Farmer Brown ever should know it.

"What to do? What to do?" almost sobbed Bobby Coon as he ran, panting for breath and trying so hard to think of a place of safety.

PIE MAKING TO FEATURE AT SCHOOL

Chef Wyman Will Present Menus on Thanksgiving at Class Today

With Thanksgiving just around the corner, it's time housewives began planning their menus for that feast so today at The Los Angeles Times' Free Cooking School Chef Wyman will show exactly how to make that time-honored Thanksgiving dessert, an old-fashioned pumpkin pie, but in case there are families which prefer something more sophisticated for dessert she will also make that aristocrat of apple pies, a French apple pie. Another seasonable recipe will be fruit cake cookies which should be made now and put away for holiday festivities.

In addition she will demonstrate two "request recipes," each of which is practically a whole meal dish—one is German paprika schnitzel with friend farina dumplings—and the other is that appetizing dish Spanish rice, which when properly seasoned makes such a satisfactory meat substitute.

The Times will be glad to have every woman come to the Southwest Building, 130 South Broadway, at 2 o'clock today and watch the preparation of these dishes.

FIRE DOES DAMAGE IN FOUR BUILDINGS

Two one-story frame houses, one small flat building and a garage were damaged to an extent estimated at $10,000 by fire of unknown origin in the 1800 block on Scott street earl, yesterday morning. The blaze broke out in a garage at 1825 Scott street, occupied by J. A. Crevett, according to police. From there it spread to a dwelling at 1825, occupied by J. D. Connor, to the second one-story house at 1829 Scott street, occupied by J. F. Elder, and then leaped to the flat building at 1508 and 1510 Lakeshore Drive, before firemen brought it under control.

Chef Wyman's RECIPES

Every Friday at 2 o'clock Mrs A. L Wyman will conduct a free class and demonstration of good cookery in the lecture room of the Southwest Building, 130 South Broadway.

TAPIOCA AND CAKE CRUMB PUDDING

Six tablespoonsful of quick-cooking tapioca, three eggs, one-third cupful of sugar, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, two-thirds of a cupful of fine stale cake crumbs, two cupfuls of milk. Scald the milk in a double boiler, add the tapioca slowly and cook for ten minutes, stirring frequently. Beat the yolks of the eggs, slowly beat into them the sugar and salt, pour the hot tapioca mixture slowly over the eggs beating constantly and return to the double boiler and cook about five minutes, stirring all the time. Remove from the fire, fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs, add the cake crumbs, and flavor with a half a teaspoonful of almond extract. Set aside until cool and serve with cream.

MEXICAN SPAGHETTI AND PORK

Take one pound of lean pork, and put it through the fine knife of the meat grinder, pat it into a cake about one-half an inch thick, place it in a hot saute pan, and brown well on both sides. Slowly pour around it two cupfuls of tomatoes that have been pressed through a sieve, and add one finely chopped green pepper, one finely sliced medium-sized onion, and allow to simmer slowly for half an hour, add a seasoning of salt, white pepper, two tablespoonfuls of capers, the same amount of green olives. Cook and simmer for fifteen minutes longer. Boil a half a pound of spaghetti until tender, season with salt and pepper, form into a ring on the outside of the platter, place the pork cake in the center, pour over the sauce and garnish with fried apples.

CHEESE APPLE DUMPLINGS

One and a half cupfuls of flour, one teaspoonful of salt, one-half cupful of shortening, one-half cup of finely grated cheese. Sift the flour and salt together, chop in the shortening, then add the grated cheese, and just enough ice water to make a firm dough, roll out and cut in large squares enough to cover a medium-sized peeled and cored apple. Fill the apple with a mixture of brown sugar and cinnamon, draw the corners of the crust up to the top and pinch together. Place them in a baking dish and bake in a moderate oven until the apples are tender and the crust slightly browned. Serve garnished with the following sauce: One cupful of sugar, three-fourths cupful of water, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one teaspoonful of lemon juice, and one teaspoonful of cinnamon. Mix all the ingredients together and allow to boil for five minutes, serve cold over the dumplings.

Mrs. Wyman does not reply to letters, but requests for recipes are answered in the department. PRACTICAL RECIPES, published every Friday.—(All rights to reproduce reserved by A. L. Wyman.)

Sear for ten minutes in a very hot oven, 500 deg., and then reduce the heat to 350 deg. for the remainder of cooking time, which varies with different meats. Beef is cooked thirty minutes for each pound, mutton twenty minutes and pork thirty minutes per pound. Baste every ten minutes with its own juice. When about half done turn it, that the skin may be uppermost for fine browning Carrots or parsnips may be placed around the meat about twenty minutes before removing from oven, and served on the platter with the roast.

Note: The term baking is generally used for meats that are cooked until almost tender by steaming, boiling and then browned in the oven, as baked ham.

Out of the Dust

One housewife saves time by using size white snaps on the bottom corners of her bedroom curtains. Put the corresponding snaps on the third from the top. Then, when she simply snaps the curtains to the snaps higher up and her curtains are out of the way of dust or whatever may come in through them.

Engineer Makes Test Boring for Aqueduct

FUENTE, Nov. 6.—Tests to determine the character of soil and rock in the Brea Canyon region east of here have been started and similar Mediterranean probings will begin in the Puddingstone reservoir, near San Dimas, according to J. B. Bond, chief engineer in charge of gathering data for the board of consulting engineers of the Metropolitan Water District.

The tests at Puddingstone and Brea canyons are necessary for proposed excavations for the Colorado River Aqueduct, which, according to plans, is to terminate at Puddingstone reservoir in San Dimas.

Under the supervision of Bond, drilling machinery has been moved from Pomona to the Rowland-Land company property in the upper canyon of Brea Canyon, where tests are now underway.

"Soon as the work there is completed, the equipment will then be moved to Puddingstone reservoir to determine soil and rock conditions," Bond states. About twenty drillers and assistants comprise the crew, which works in three eight-hour shifts.

Bond has been supervising drilling tests, in connection with aqueduct plans, at a point about fifteen miles south of Beaumont.

Depth of the drilling in Brea canyon depends on the formation encountered, according to Bond. Test holes usually run from fifty feet to 200 and 300 feet in depth, he states, and one of the principal objects of the tests is to obtain data on foundation material.

"If there are severe fault basins in the bottom of Puddingstone reservoir they may be utilized by the Metropolitan Water District, according to Bond. He added that in case these are found, little if any change would be necessary at Puddingstone reservoir to hold an appreciable supply of water temporarily, for distribution to the cities of Southern California which will be drawing water from the aqueduct.

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 6.—Dr. William I. Kinsley, three-time loser in the race for Mayor here and formerly candidate for Lieutenant-Governor of the State, was arraigned this morning before Justice Arthur Chapman on a misdemeanor charge of prescribing narcotics for a patient within a thirty-day limit set by law, according to the complaint, Louise Longmire. It is said that she went to Dr. Kinsley for treatment and that he prescribed narcotics in daily doses for more than thirty days, and at the end of the time she had become a dope addict.

Dr. Kinsley pleaded not guilty and asked for a jury trial. He was released on $1000 bail and will appear for trial December 4.

ARK FLATS ROAD TO AID FIRE FIGHTING

SAN DIMAS, Nov. 6.—Once inaccessible places will be easily reached by rangers and fire fighters with the completion of the road from Ark Flats west to Big Dalton canyon and south on the ridge to San Dimas lookout, according to County Fire Warden K. P. Carter, in charge of the San Jose headquarters of the Forest Service. County surveyors are working on the stretch of mountain roadway which covers approximately seven miles. The new road will greatly facilitate the handling of fire-fighting apparatus in case of a fire in the mountains above San Dimas, Carter states.

EXECUTIVES IN VISIT TO WHARVES

San Diego Business Men Inspect Tuna Industry, in Which City Is Leader

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 6.—San Diego's water front is being visited this week by 200 leading business men of the city, members of the senior and junior branches of the Business Executives' Association, who are learning of the various activities in connection with the tuna industry, in which San Diego is a world leader.

The business leaders are being shown around the water front by Arthur W. Ponsford, who was delegated by Capt. Oakley J. Hall, manager of the Star and Crescent industries, to explain the activities in connection with tuna fishing.

Ponsford daily is taking small groups of the business men to the fishermen's wharf, which formerly was the Spreckels bunkers wharf. At the wharf is equipment of all modern appliances for the efficient handling of tuna clippers, of which more than thirty now operating out of this port are more than ninety feet in length. The entire San Diego tuna fleet comprises nearly fifty clippers, representing an investment of nearly $3,000,000, and the vessels cruise an area of more than 1,000,000 miles, covering within a year's time a mileage equivalent to fifty times the distance around the world.

Pioneer Valley Woman Interred

NORTH HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 6.—Funeral services were conducted yesterday, with interment in Grand View Cemetery, for Mrs. Achsah Varney, 84 years of age, one of the early settlers in San Fernando Valley. She came here with her husband, Ransome Varney, who died eight years ago, and operated the first hotel in this section of Hollywood when it was known under the Indian name of Toluca, and before the name of Hollywood was thought of for the semidesert ranch country adjoining Los Angeles.

In the years that followed various ranch lands were bought by the couple in this vicinity, parts of which are now the heart of the local business district. Descendants grew wealthy from the resale of the properties.

Mrs. Varney leaves four sons, Edward, George, Charles and Bert Varney, and two daughters, Mrs. Minnie Gregg and Mrs. Jennie Keene. There are twenty-two grandchildren and ten great-grandchildren.

AZUSA, Nov. 6.—Rare shrubs and flowers raised in their own backyards will be displayed by club women at the third annual flower show of the Azusa Woman's Club, tomorrow.

Local club women have proven themselves horticultural enthusiasts and will vie for honors with their home-grown products.

The exhibits, especially of flowers, some of them new discoveries, will far surpass the show displays of previous years, according to club executives.

The Azusa Flower Show, which is one of the largest of its kind in the east San Gabriel Valley, will be staged during the day and will continue through the evening in the auditorium of the clubhouse, where visitors will be greeted by dainty little Miss Maryedith Durrell, child movie player.

Mrs. A. B. Ingram is chairman of the garden section, sponsors of the flower show, and Mrs. W. J. Holden is chairman of general arrangements.

Brother Meets His Sister After Quarter Century

GLENDALE, Nov. 6. — Separated a quarter of a century ago when they were little children, a brother and sister have been reunited here and are picking up the threads of their early lives.

John T. Shaw of the United States Army Signal Corps, stationed at Fort Wright, Washington, arrived here for a visit to his sister, Mrs. R. C. Drumheiser, 912 East California street, whom he had not seen since they separated as children following the death of their mother and the second marriage of their father in Shamokin, Pa.

The sister made her home with an aunt and the brother accompanied his father and stepmother to California. Mrs. Drumheiser later received word that her brother had died.

A letter to the mother of Drumheiser, enabled Shaw to find traces of his sister and the reunion now in progress will last until Shaw's sixty-day furlough is up and he returns to his military duties.

SAN FERNANDO FIRE CHIEF RESIGNS JOB

SAN FERNANDO, Nov. 6.—The resignation of Edward Kichline, assistant fire chief, has been accepted by the local City Council to become effective next week. Kichline, who virtually has been at the head of the department for two or three years, declines to give reason for quitting. No successor has been named. There has been more or less of a shake-up in the city departments by the new City Council elected last spring on a strict economy program. No one here will state whether Kichline "just up and quit," or in some manner or other ran afoul of the Council.

LEGION LEADER TO MARCH

B. W. Gearhart, State Commander, to Lead Pageant Parade at Anaheim Armistice Day

ANAHEIM, Nov. 6.—Elaborate plans have been perfected by Anaheim Post of the American Legion to entertain B. W. Gearhart of Fresno, commander of the State department, who will be in this city next Tuesday to lead the "Pageant of States," which will feature the tenth annual Armistice Day celebration in Orange county.

Commander Gearhart will act as grand marshal of the parade, which local Legion officials assert will be nearly two miles in length and which will feature upward of fifty floats depicting historical epochs in the progress of the United States.

Following an Armistice Day address which he will deliver in Anaheim's municipal open-air theater, the guest of honor will meet the commanders of all Orange county posts and district officials at a dinner to be served in the Elks' clubhouse.

Silver trophies are to be awarded winners in the various divisions in the parade, the judging to be handled by Walter Sylvester Hertzog, director of American research in the Los Angeles schools; Judge Ira F. Thompson of the State Court of Appeal, and Mrs. A. Sherman Hoyt of South Pasadena, president of the International Deserts Conservation League, and a prominent philanthropist.

Col. Seth Howard, Pasadena; Lieut.-Col. H. G. Upham, Covina, and Lieut.-Col. M. B. Wellington, Santa Ana, will judge the military divisions, including boys' military academies. Legion marching units will be judged by past commanders of the Orange county council. Boy and Girl Scout troops will be judged by executives of the organization, and prominent horsemen headed by John E. Wagner of Placentia, will judge the mounted division.

"HEAP BIG NOTHING" VISITED

Old Chief Cocupa, Centenarian Leader of Mountain Tribe, Again Inspects Ensenada but Registers Disgust After Viewing Festivities There

ENSENADA (Mex.) Nov. 6.—Old Chief Cocupa, centenarian, who was recently lured from the fastnesses of San Pedro Martir Mountains for his first view of a civilized community—whereupon he mistook an amphibian plane above Ensenada Bay for a gigantic pelican—has again been enticed to the haunts of the white man, with interesting results.

It must be borne in mind that for a century the old chief had been living an absolutely simple, innocent life, remarkably like that of the early white pioneer, which is to say that he rose each day at dawn to hunt and cultivate his crops, and retired to bed with the chickens, never enjoying a holiday—a regular Thoreau - at - Walden-Pond sort of life.

Accordingly, the chief entered on his first real visit to the noise, excitement and complexity of what is known as civilization in much the spirit that the frugal and thrifty white pioneers visited their first Indian encampment, either voluntarily or as prisoners, or as a small, shut-in boy still imagines the Wild West to be. In short, this is a story with reverse English—or, rather, reverse Indian.

The first thing the gentle Cocupa saw in Ensenada was the amazing antics of a delegation of Shriners from Los Angeles, guests of new Playa de Ensenada Hotel. Picturesquely garbed in their purple, white and gold costumes, they had taken the town by storm, with a brass band striking it up on every corner. At sight and sound the chief's eyes fairly gleamed. "Heap big powwow," he muttered, and then a moment later, "Heap big war dance."

Cocupa entered into the familiar festivities with alacrity, despite a bit of rheumatism, was slapped on the back hard and often and officially made a regular fellow. His joy knew no bounds when a fireworks celebration started on the beach, for now he knew that a real war was afoot, a raid planned. From afar he made obeisance to Jack Dempsey, tallest and strongest white man and, therefore, Brave No. 1.

But unaccountably the fireworks ended, the variegated costumes became bleak black and white dinner jackets, the squaws strangely enough, put clothes off instead of on, as the chill of late evening impended. The chief shook his head. It was certainly a crazy way to go to war.

Particularly contemptuous was Cocupa of that dazzling feminine creation known in sophisticated circles as a "silver blond." "Paleface squaw heap too paleface," he commented.

However, when the Indian was finally persuaded to follow the assembled guests into the casino of the hotel and saw the poker-faced croupiers manipulating the various games of chance, he thought there might be a war after all, despite the protracted and illogical preparations. To him the croupiers were all medicine men, the one with the most medicine being undoubtedly the chuck-a-luck dealer, the gyrations of whose magical cage fairly awed Cocupa. Big medicine in that apparatus, thought not only the chief, but several discomfited white guests.

Through the evening all the customs and vices traditionally assigned the Indian race by the white man were viewed with surprise, pain and contempt by Cocupa, to whom the poping of champagne bottles was the liberation of firewater, goad to still more bacchanalian outbursts than he was witnessing.

As last, the hour-after-hour concentration of the white players disgusted the chief, who was now certain no war was intended. "Heap big nothing," he said, striding off.

In the tap-room he was captured for a final round of good fellowship. From it he finally managed to break away, uttering incomprehensible remarks. "What is he saying?" asked someone.

AUTO-CRASH HURTS FATAL

Harry E. Wilson of Pomona Succumbs to Injuries He Incurred There Last Thursday Night

POMONA, Nov. 6.—Injuries received in an automobile accident last Thursday night today proved fatal to Harry E. Wilson, 411 San Francisco street, death coming when his condition suddenly took a turn for the worse.

Wilson sustained a basal fracture of the skull and other injuries when automobiles driven by himself and Ralph Olmas, also of this city, collided at the intersection of First street and Park avenue Thursday night. Olmas, who also was seriously injured, is recovering, but Wilson's condition was critical and little hope was held out for his recovery.

An inquest will be held Friday at 9:30 a.m. in the Todd & Reeves chapel.

The deceased, who was well known in this city, having been employed by a local automobile concern, leaves a widow, Catherine; his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Wilson, Rising City, Neb.; a grandfather and grandmother, living in Nebraska, and two brothers, Ray of Hordville, Neb., and Frank, at Rising City, Neb.

Funeral services will be conducted from the Todd & Reeves chapel at a date to be announced later.

Rock Gas Used for Suicide by Sick Woman

MENTONE, Nov. 6.—With the removal of the body of Miss Marie Keeney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Keeney of Mill Creek Canyon, to Orange, where the funeral and burial will be held, a strange case of suicide was closed. Miss Keeney was finally successful in an attempt to take her life by covering her clothes with rock gas and setting fire to it. She died in the Redlands Hospital from burns.

Miss Keeney was 40 years of age, and for most of her life had suffered from an injury in childhood until she was mentally deranged. She had tried innumerable times to end her suffering by taking her life, by setting fire to the house, by trying to drown herself, and by taking poison.

In order to prevent this, it was necessary to confine Miss Keeney to her bed at night. Her parents are still mystified as to how she slipped the bonds and made her way to the kitchen. There the kitchen stove is serviced by rock gas. She opened a jet, blew the gas all over her night clothes and then set fire to it.

Groans awakened her parents and they found her writhing in agony on the floor. She was rushed to the hospital, but doctors stated at once that first-degree burns were so severe as to be fatal. She will be buried in the cemetery at Orange.

WOMAN SUCCUMBS TO INFECTION OF TOOTH

SANTA BARBARA, Nov. 6.—Funeral services for Mrs. Inez Berry, who died yesterday of an infected tooth, were held in the Santa Barbara Cemetery today. Mrs. Berry, a clerk in the office of the United States Forest Service, was taken to a local hospital with blood poisoning from a tooth which had been pulled two weeks ago. She came here from Orland and leaves her husband, Wesley Berry, and an uncle, John Gray.

Bronze Plaque to Be Placed on Asistencia

REDLANDS, Nov. 6.—Arrowhead Chapter, Redlands Daughters of the American Revolution, at today's meeting placed an order for a bronze plaque, which will be erected at the 100-year-old mission outpost, the Asistencia de San Bernardino, west of this city. The plaque will be placed in a short time.

It will recall the fact that about 100 years ago the Asistencia was established by the Spanish padres as an outpost of the San Gabriel Mission, one of the most important in the chain up and down the coast.

The marker will be twenty inches long and fifteen inches wide, with raised letters and an ornamental border. In the corners will be rosettes to conceal the screws which will set the plaque to the adobe wall.

The marker will probably be placed on the room at the southwest corner of the mission station, the first completed unit of the restored building, Mrs. Frederick G. Johnson, Regent of the chapter, stated.

The money for the marker was raised by the sale of candy and is a part of the State-wide movement of the D.A.R. to preserve the memory of historic landmarks in California.

Yuletide Tree Plans Begun

ARCADIA, Nov. 6. — Municipal Christmas tree celebration plans got under way here this week with the appointment of J. R. Allen, director of the Chamber of Commerce, to assist the Rotary Club committee in the holiday program.

The Rotary Club is again taking the initiative in the holiday plans, and has announced that live Christmas trees will line the principal streets of the city during the holidays.

The decoration of the giant deodar on the grounds of the City Hall will also be managed this year by Rotarians.

It is expected that the customary program will be carried out when on Christmas eve the deodar, as the municipal Christmas tree, decorated and illuminated for the occasion, will bear gifts and candy for the children of Arcadia to be distributed by a real Santa Claus.

STATE COMPENSATES POLICEMAN'S WIDOW

SAN FERNANDO, Nov. 6.—Mrs. Marie Mushaney, widow of Ben Mushaney, San Fernando motorcycle officer recently slain while on duty, has been notified by the State Compensation Department that she will be paid $5000 insurance in installments of $25 a week for 200 weeks. There are two minor children. In addition to the insurance mentioned, local citizens collected $1500 and placed in a trust fund to be used for the education of the children after they pass high-school age.

REDLANDS CHEMIST TALKS ON LEPROSY

Prof. H. W. Woodrow

REDLANDS, Nov. 5.—Prof. H. W. Woodrow, newly established in the department of chemistry at the University of Redlands, will be the speaker of the evening at the next meeting of the Southern California section of the American Chemical Society at Los Angeles Friday. "Some Recent Developments in Organic Chemistry" will be the subject of his lecture.

This address will include a discussion concerning the use of X-ray data in the determination of the structure of organic compounds, showing the application more specifically to an interesting series of optical isomers. General reactions that were used in the synthesis of acids prepared for studying leprosy problems will be emphasized. Prof. Woodrow will also relate what is being done at the present time in an attempt to find a specific cure for leprosy.

Prof. Woodrow is a recent arrival at the University of Redlands, having come here from the University of Illinois, where he worked with Dr. Roger Adams. He has taken majors in chemistry at Denison University, Columbia University and the University of Illinois. Before coming to Redlands Prof. Woodrow held teaching positions in Columbia University, Des Moines University, University of Illinois and the West Park High School, Cleveland.

The following research problem taken from his thesis was published in the March issue of the Journal of the American Chemical Society: "Preparation and Bacteriological Action Toward B. Leprae of Certain Olefinic Acids." This was the seventeenth of a series of problems published by Dr. Roger Adams in the study of leprosy.

Woman Shoots Self; Leaves Suicide Note

SANTA BARBARA, Nov. 6.—Leaving a note that she was tired of living because she was constantly ill, Mrs. Pearl Bascom, 35 years of age, shot and killed herself some time today in the small room she rented at 313 East Anapamu street. She was found this evening with a bullet through her heart. In her hand was still clasped a small pistol, according to police.

Her husband died here about two years ago. The two came here for their health about five years ago.

She was last seen by a friend about 11 o'clock last night. She told her friend at that time that if anything happened to her a note would be left in her trunk. It was found, only a brief message of despair.

Pomona Plans Armistice Day

POMONA, Nov. 6.—Pomona will celebrate Armistice Day with a comprehensive program this year, it was announced today by the committee in charge.

All business houses and offices remain closed throughout the day, while the Charles P. Rowe Post, American Legion, is making preparations for a patriotic celebration in the business district in the morning, while in the afternoon a football game will be staged at the high school between Whittier and Pomona high schools.

The celebration will culminate with a banquet, to which all World War veterans have been invited, at the Ebell clubhouse at 7:30 p.m.

LICENSE TO WED DENIED TO FILIPINO

Riverside County Clerk to Refuse Sanction for Union With White Girl

RIVERSIDE, Nov. 6.—County Clerk Clayton announced today he will refuse to issue a marriage license to Roxielee Wright, 20-year-old Venice girl, and Santiago Serrano, 27, Filipino, who last week filed a notice of intention to wed at the local marriage license bureau.

Clayton declared he believes the marriage of the Filipino to the white girl is contrary to the State law forbidding the intermarriage of whites and persons of Mongolian races. "I'll issue the license to the couple only by order of the court," said the County Clerk.

The young couple could have obtained their license yesterday, the three days' interim having expired since they filed their notice of intention. Clayton during the day issued instructions to all his deputies to refuse the license if applied for.

Clayton said Dist.-Atty. Ford had not ruled on the question but that he believes his interpretation of the law would be supported by the County Attorney.

Miss Lee, a very attractive girl, appeared at the marriage license bureau with Serrano on her twentieth birthday. Clayton was out of the office on business when they appeared, so the marriage deputy received the notice of intention knowing the legality of the wedding plans could be passed upon by the County Clerk in time to prevent the marriage if necessary, due to the three-day notice law.

Wherever the question of the Filipino's status has arisen in the past, the islanders have maintained that because they are American citizens they have the same intermarriage rights as white Americans.

New Peace Move Favors Kings as Cannon Fodder

VAN NUYS, Nov. 6.—In an effort to do their share in the general movement for world peace, the citizens of San Fernando Valley will conduct a rally to precede the Armistice Day celebration, with Mrs. M. O. Walling of Owensmouth in charge of one part of the program.

The large gathering will be held in the Van Nuys High School Sunday, beginning at 7:15 p.m. Schools, churches and civic societies have indicated they will send large delegations. Capt. Dudley Corlett, who has spent twenty years in India and Egypt, and who served in the World War in both military and advisory capacity, will be one of the speakers. Dr. Dorothy Smyley, another speaker, will represent the British-American League of Women and the Veterans' Association and division of the American Red Cross Ambulance Corps, which latter she commanded during the war.

It is expected that 2000 citizens from all over the valley will attend. The meeting, according to Mrs. Walling, is in no way associated with the so-called pacifist movement.

"Thinking people," she states, "are now convinced of the abject futility of war among nations. The masses of this country and the peasantry of the foreign countries are going to be taught the folly of any sort of war.

"If the present world peace movement can instill this idea into the masses of the earth within the coming five years, the next war started by kings or diplomatic agents, scrapping among themselves, is going to be fought out in the back room of a palace somewhere, with no disturbance or interruption of work to the common people who are not interested. To this day none of us who suffered actual participation in the battles of the recent World War have the slightest conception of what it was all about."

CHURCH YOUNG FOLK DISCUSS PROHIBITION

BELL, Nov. 6.—A group of young church folk, all of high school age, gathered at the Live Oak-street Church in Cudahy, where they held a discussion on the effects of prohibition on the country, some of the opinions being very frank and illuminating. Some of the churches were criticised by the youths for using wine at communion services, and one of the youths declared that "girls were worse than boys when it came to drinking." Another youth declared that "if all the churches were united there would be no prohibition question." All agreed that the use of intoxicating liquor slowed up the senses and deadened the intellect.

SHOTGUN CHARGE BLINDS

Phillip Lisk's Sight Destroyed; Harold Stanbro Loses One Eye; Two Others Wounded, by Youth

YORBA LINDA, Nov. 6.—Phillip Lisk is doomed to spend the remainder of his life wondering in darkness why Robert Carter, 18 years of age, last night used a shotgun to "scare" away a group of boys who were passing the Carter home on Richfield Road, a short distance south of Yorba Linda. Lisk received a goodly portion of a charge of shot full in the face, losing both eyes.

Harold Stanbro lost one eye in the same incident, and Henry Chance and Winfred Schulte were wounded in the back. Young Carter today was held in the County Jail at Santa Ana, while officials were considering the filing of a charge of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to commit murder.

According to Carter, the four wounded youths, all students in Fullerton Union High School, had been driving past the Carter home throwing metal bottle caps upon the lawn and cluttering up the roadway with the caps. He said that after the boys had done this several times last evening, he obtained a shotgun from the house and fired into the automobile in which the four boys were riding.

The car, an open machine, offered no protection to its occupants. Following the shooting all four boys were taken to the Fullerton General Hospital for treatment.

Deputy Sheriffs Jess Buckles and Harry Carter were called to the scene where they arrested Carter. Buckles today stated that he would ask for a warrant charging intent to commit murder.

STATE AID FOR VIADUCT SOUGHT

Municipal Officials Before Highway Commission

SANTA MONICA, Nov. 6.—Seeking the aid of the State, the city of Los Angeles and Los Angeles county, Mayor Michel, Commissioners Helton and Morton and City Engineer Carter were in Sacramento today to appear before the State Highway Commission in behalf of a proposed $850,000 viaduct to connect the Roosevelt Coast Highway with Lincoln Boulevard and other through arteries between the beaches and Los Angeles.

The project is aimed at solving the enormous traffic problem which has developed with the opening of the Oxnard-Santa Monica link of the route, and this city's representatives have declared Santa Monica's share in the cost should not exceed $200,000.

The State will be asked for an appropriation of $175,000, and the balance will be assessed, under the plan, against property in Los Angeles city and county which is most immediately affected by the improvement.

The viaduct is designed to start at the entrance of San a Monica Canyon, in the Los Angeles municipality, and rise at a grade of less than 6 per cent along the palisades to a point at the present end of Marguerita avenue, at the Ocean-avenue intersection. The viaduct would handle 5000 cars an hour, according to Carter's estimate.

The plan would be of great aid in solving the traffic problem confronting Los Angeles and other motorists who patronize Los Angeles beaches at the canyon and to the north, officials declared.

Officer Wheels Reporter; Pays Election Bet

VENTURA, Nov. 6.—Perhaps the spectacle of a policeman wheeling a man down Main street in a wheelbarrow yesterday afternoon made some people wonder if the officer wasn't helping out an inebriated friend, but a sign on the officer's back gave the explanation.

It read:

The policeman was Capt. Joe Myres, minus his uniform, and the occupant of the barrow was Braden Finch, reporter for a local newspaper.

The strange parade began at California street and Main, and bumped along the principal thoroughfare to the Avenue.

At the Avenue Myres told Finch he was glad he didn't have to go another block. It seems that Finch weighs 175 pounds, and that the wheelbarrow was of more than ordinary proportions.

If the charter had lost in the election Tuesday, however, Finch would have had to do the wheeling.

Brakes Fail to Keep Auto Out of Train's Way

POMONA, Nov. 6.—Ralph W. Frasure, 964 West Fourth street, employee of a trucking concern, is in the Pomona Community Hospital and is expected to recover from a long scalp wound and other injuries, received this morning when his automobile was struck by Southern Pacific train No. 13, at the Rebecca-street crossing.

Train officials reported that Frasure had slid the wheels of his automobile for a distance of forty feet in an attempt to avoid being struck but was unable to stop in time.

According to Dr. G. Keller, X-ray pictures were to be taken to determine if Frasure's hip was fractured in the crash.

Girl Baby Blind Since Birth Gets Sight by Knife

PASADENA, Nov. 6.—After lying in total darkness since her birth eight months ago, tiny Isabelle Jenkins had her preview of the world today when a Pasadena Hospital surgeon removed cataracts which had completely covered both the baby's eyes.

Light tests made this afternoon indicate that the delicate operation was successful, and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Jenkins of 591 Pine street, Altadena, the parents, were informed that Isabelle will have normal eyesight.

The surgeon's name was withheld.

COLLINS DEFEATS MRS. WATTS IN RACE

EL CENTRO, Nov. 6.—Final count of the Imperial county election ballots with all precincts reported except Palo Verde, showed that C. B. Collins had defeated Mrs. Kathryn E. Watts of Calexico in the race for school superintendent by ninety-three votes. The totals given out today were Collins, 4545; Watts, 4452. The missing ballots from Palo Verde will not be enough to change the result, according to registration records. Late tabulations completed today showed that A. R. Underwood's lead over Dr. F. W. Peterson in the race for Coroner had been reduced to forty, the standings with only Palo Verde missing being Underwood, 4291; Peterson, 4251.

POWER BUREAU QUIZ PROPOSED

Defeat of Bonds Develops Flurry in Council

Charges of Misusing Water Funds Get Airing

Mayor's Assertions of Plot Also Discussed

Post-mortems upon the defeat of the $13,300,000 power bond issue in Tuesday's election were the order of the day yesterday in the City Council. In the morning Councilman Williams submitted a motion calling for an investigation of the causes of the defeat, to be conducted by the Council's Water and Power Committee, while in the afternoon the subject was discussed by the Finance, Water and Power and Public Utilities committees.

At the afternoon meeting Councilman Cooke, chairman of the Finance Committee, proposed that a thorough survey of the capital structure of the Department of Water and Power be made by the Bureau of Budget and Efficiency and the Board of Public Utilities and Transportation.

CHARGES AIRED

Cooke pointed out that every two years the Board of Water and Power Commissioners recommend rates for water and electricity, which must be approved by the Council. The survey, he said, would aid the Council in determining what rates should be charged.

"It has been charged freely," said Col. Cooke, "that the Bureau of Power and Light takes advantage of the Bureau of Water Works and Supply. It is time a study should be made of this situation, and the atmosphere cleared before another power bond issue is submitted to the people."

"And it has been charged," added Councilman Cooke, "that $2,000,000 in water bonds, which the Bureau of Water Works and Supply must repay, has been used for the construction of a building used by both bureaus."

ACTION DEFERRED

Final action on a committee recommendation for the survey was continued until next Thursday afternoon.

The principal matter to be investigated, Williams feels, is a statement by Mayor Porter that "the business-like organization of the Department of Water and Power has been broken up through the political scheming, maneuvering and intriguing of certain employees of the department."

If such is the case, Williams contends, the public is entitled to know it, which can be learned by having a formal hearing, with witnesses subpoenaed before the committee. He quotes other statements, to the effect that "a plot is afoot" to wreck the Bureau of Power and Light. Such statements, he says, should be investigated thoroughly.

Such conditions, he says, contributed to the defeat of the power bonds. Opponents of the bonds, he declares, were justified in fighting them, while it is the duty of the city administration to take the public into its confidence and convince the citizens of the justness of supporting the bureau.

"Interesting," was Mayor Porter's only comment when informed a radio speech delivered by him had been the target for Williams's resolution.

Dedicated to Athena, Goddess of Wisdom

The new Athenaeum of the California Institute of Technology at Pasadena, formally opened last night at a dinner given to the California Institute Associates at the new building by the institute trustees in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Allan C. Balch, donors of the magnificent addition. Below, left to right, are Dr. Robert A. Millikan, executive head of California Institute of Technology; Mr. Balch and Russell H. Ballard, president of the California Institute Associates.

the Board of Trustees of California Institute of Technology, who described his address as "An Appreciation of the Athenaeum and Its Givers;" Dr. Albert A. Michelson, research associate in physics at the institute, whose topic was "A Comparison With Similar Historic Associations and the Role of the Athenaeum as Meeting Place for Home and Foreign Scholars;" Dr. Robert A. Millikan, chairman of the executive council of the institute, who spoke on "Why An Athenaeum?"; and James R. Page, first vice-president of the Associates, who made a humorous address on "Why I Am Interested in Drosophila, Nebulae, Valences, Electrons and Bacteria."

MILLIKAN SPEAKS

Dr. Millikan revealed that Dr. George Ellery Hale, Dr. Arthur A. Noyes and himself had some years ago discussed the need of some such institution as the Athenaeum, but they said that they never had any idea that their dream would result in anything so magnificent as today's reality.

He said that he and the other two professors first brought their idea to the attention of Arthur H. Fleming. Henry M. Robinson, Harry Chandler, Mr. O'Melveny and several other men who have always displayed a lively interest in the welfare of the institute, and that these men interested a number of others, including Mr. Balch, who eventually took the lead in the enterprise.

At the dinner the election of four new members to the associates was announced. They are J. H. Eagle, E. W. Crellin, George W. H. Allen and Myron Hunt. Election of three members of the board of directors was also announced. They are S. M. Haskins, Malcolm McNaghten and Archibald B. Young.

AMID OLIVE TREES

Located at 551 South Hill avenue, the Athenaeum is designed in Mediterranean style by Gordon B. Kaufman, Los Angeles architect. Although completed only a few days ago, the grounds and patos have been planted with full-grown olive trees and shrubs which already lend a touch of antiquity.

On the first floor is a large lobby, a lounge, library and a main dining-room which seats about 200 persons. The dining-room accommodations can be increased by removing partitions which separate it from the Hall of the Associates, which will be used for weekly lectures and social functions.

The second floor contains twenty-four bedrooms and four spacious corner suites, for use of visiting scholars and scientists. On the top floor is a large sleeping porch.

An interesting feature are the twenty-six lunettes in the Hall of the Associates. Each lunette will be decorated with the insignia of the world's leading educational institutions.

The floor of the entrance lobby and the staircase treads are of Italian travertine, and the lounge and main dining hall are paneled in walnut.

In the center of the building is a brick-paved patio with a loggia and Florentine arches providing borders.

Including the staffs of the three local institutions, visiting research scholars, and California Institute Associates, the membership of the Athenaeum totals about 400.

FOUR INDICTED IN WALKUP PLOT

names of F. J. Mosher, confidential investigating secretary to Mayor Porter, Edward S. Ward, a private detective, and others into her story.

Later other witnesses testified before the grand jury that City Hall officials had offered them money if they would take part in the Walkup plot and stated that other commissioners were also to be "framed."

FLIGHT REPORTED

Shortly after Miss Lee had been taken into custody Shawn, together with Ward, according to the investigating police, fled from the city and up to yesterday had not been located.

Ward, it was learned, had been supplied with a police badge at the request of Mosher, who told Chief of Police Steckel that he was working out of the Mayor's office. When Ward left the city he took his badge with him.

Mosher, together with Mayor Porter, denied to newspaper men that they had any connection with the Walkup plot, and both of them stated that Ward had not been employed by them for any kind of investigations. Later, however, Mayor Porter remembered that Ward had been engaged by Mosher and that some kind of an investigation of Walkup was ordered by him. Mosher yesterday repeated former denials of any connection with an attempt to "frame" Walkup.

TELLS OF LURE

In Miss Lee's story both to the police and the grand jury the young woman declared that she had been employed at $5 a day by Shawn to lure Walkup into a compromising situation and bring about his arrest. She went into great detail of how she was moved into Commissioner Walkup's downtown hotel and how she scraped his acquaintance. Later she attempted to lure him to her apartment in another section of the city, but was picked up by the police a short time later.

OTHERS NAMED

A number of City Hall officials, several local business men and others were named by Miss Lee in her confession to the police and grand jury, and most of them have been questioned by the jury or the police officials since the investigation began. All have denied any connection with the plot.

When the matter was taken by the police to the District Attorney's office Chief Deputy District Attorney Stewart was placed in complete charge of the case by Dist.-Atty. Fitts and he questioned all of the witnesses before the grand jury. Under his direction James, McMullin and Nolan continued their investigation until the indictment was returned yesterday.

DAMAGE TO WHARF DONE BY FLAMES

Boats and Land Crews Fight Spectacular Fire Bringing $50,000 Loss

In a glare of flames that lit up East Basin at Los Angeles Harbor, three companies of land firemen and crews of two fire boats fought a fire on the McCormick Lumber Company's wharf at Wilmington last night that caused damage estimated at $50,000.

Two hundred feet of the 1000-foot wharf were ablaze. As the giant streams from the fireboats and land companies cascaded into the fiery glow, plumes of vapor added to the spectacular scene.

Millions of feet of lumber lay near the conflagration, but Assistant Fire Chief Baly in charge of the firemen, announced before midnight, when red tongues still were shooting high in the air, there was no danger of these igniting. The McCormick Lumber Company's wharf is in the heart of the harbor's lumber district.

The origin of the fire was still to be determined last night, but Chief Baly expressed the belief it started in some refuse on land where the wharf begins to jut seventy feet over the water. It is believed to have started early yesterday afternoon, but to have been undetected until it broke through the three-inch planking toward evening.

Great difficulty was encountered by firemen in reaching the piling with water, and holes were cut in the surface planking to lower the hose through.

PORTER HEADS CRIME BODY

Mayor Explains Purpose of Recently Appointed Commission at Organization Meeting

Mayor Porter was selected chairman of the Crime Commission recently appointed by him when the body met in an adjourned session yesterday afternoon. Those present were the Mayor, Chief Deputy District-Attorney Stewart, Chief Deputy City Prosecutor Young, Municipal Judge Curtis, Chief of Detectives Taylor and Police Captain Weyerman, commanding the vice division.

George H. Cecil, manager of the safety department of the Chamber of Commerce, was present, but did not engage in the discussion.

The commission first met at 2:30 p.m., but due to the fact that several members had important affairs on hand, recessed until 4 p.m.

Mayor Porter outlined the subject, declaring he wants to learn at what point the enforcement bodies "lose" the arrested man.

Mr. Stewart promptly submitted this information, so far as the District Attorney is concerned. He declared that during the past two years 6504 cases have been brought to his office. Of this number 4775 were convicted, 515 acquitted, while 1214 were discharged through habeas corpus proceedings, were convicted on other charges, died, were adjudged insane or dismissed.

Stewart suggested that Los Angeles adopt the recent Chicago policy of jailing public enemies as vagrants. Chief Taylor recounted the trials of police in getting convictions of known criminals without definite evidence of specific crimes and gave reminiscences of the "good old days" when bums and thieves could be given "floaters" out of town.

The discussion then turned to the extent "stool pigeons" can be used without "entrapment."

The next meeting will be called by Mayor Porter.

Girl Pedestrian Killed by Auto

Miss Virginia Tattan, 19 years of age of 162 South Peck street, Beverly Hills, a pedestrian, was killed at Camden Drive and Charleville Boulevard last night when struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. Katherine Stokes of 301 Camden Drive.

Woman Faces Death Charge

Martha Louise Mosby was charged with manslaughter as a result of the death of Gabriel Mingarez in an automobile accident at Carson and Alameda streets on the 2nd inst. in a complaint issued by the District Attorney yesterday.

Mingarez was riding in the rumble seat when Miss Mosby's automobile collided with another.

Ells and Brown Accused of Mrs. Ells Murder

Grand Jury Takes Speedy Action in Tragedy

True Bill Voted Soon After Hearing Suspects

Emery Ells and Benjamin F. Brown yesterday were charged with the murder of Ells's divorced wife, Merle Ells, in an indictment issued by the county grand jury.

The true bill was voted and returned by the grand jury a few minutes after Brown had appeared before it and repeated his story of having shot Mrs. Ells to death with a shotgun while she slept beside her infant son at 323 East Ninety-ninth street early Sunday morning. Brown told police that Ells promised him $2000 "for the job" and afterward gave him $2.20 in dimes on account. Ells also appeared before the grand jury as a witness.

For several days after Mrs. Ells was murdered the police were unable to find the slayer, but the husband was held on suspicion of murder, for questioning.

Then piece by piece the officers discovered evidence — a flashlight and a box of shotgun shells. Eventually under a severe questioning Brown admitted the shooting and when confronted with his statement Ells admitted suggesting the shooting to him, according to the officers.

Brown said the reason Ells advanced for wanting his wife slain was that he wanted to gain custody of their 18-month-old boy, Deputy Lieutenant Pilkas asserts.

Negro Politician's Home Damaged by Bomb Blast

A bomb hurled over the back fence into the yard of the home of George Brown, prominent Central-avenue Negro politician, near midnight last night wrecked the rear porch of the residence and shattered one of the bedrooms, according to police reports. The house is located at Twenty-eighth and Naomi streets.

Immediately on report of the blast the bomb squad from Central police headquarters rushed to the scene. First reports said that no one was in the Brown residence when the bombing occurred.

The officers began an immediate search for the Negro politician to question him in an attempt to determine if he has any enemies who would hurl the bomb. The blast was a strong one, police said, and the neighborhood was shaken with the force of the explosion.

CALIFORNIA IN TOP SHAPE FOR ANNUAL GRID CLASSIC

Price Confident Team Can Smother Trojan Offense; Shaldach and Gill Expected to Flourish

BY BRAVEN DYER

Primed for their greatest effort of the season, the Golden Bears of California blow into town this morning. Nibs Price and his athletes are slated to arrive at 9 a.m. on the Lark, detraining at Glendale, and going to the Huntington Hotel in Pasadena. Tomorrow afternoon the Berkeley boys battle Southern California at the Coliseum.

Reports from the north indicate that Price and his gang are far from pessimistic. Their feeling is that Southern California is the logical favorite, but that they pulled "the impossible" last year and that a similar dose can therefore be administered to the Trojans this time.

"RUSTY" GILL

One informant states that Rusty Gill, the rough, tough fullback of the invaders, is coming with the definite intention of stretching Erny Pinckert horizontal every time the ball is snapped. It seems, so the story goes, that Gill was responsible for Pinckert being some other place when Benny Lom cruised down the right side of Southern California's defense. Erny is generally stationed in this spot, but on this particular occasion, so Gill claims, Pinckert was smacked out of the way by none other than Mr. Gill himself.

PINCKERT READY

No doubt Pinckert will be interested in hearing of Gill's intentions and when the two collide tomorrow the shock may be felt by all of us.

SCHALDACH IS OUT OF S.C. GAME

Star Bear Halfback Injured in Scrimmage and Can't Play

BERKELEY, Nov. 6. (AP)—Crippled California football received another jolt today when it became known that Hank Schaldach, backbone of the Bear backfield, will probably not be able to see much service against Southern California Saturday.

Schaldach, triple-threat halfback of the team, suffered a severely twisted tendon in scrimmage yesterday. The team's physician, Dr. W. G. Donald, said Schaldach would probably be able to play for a while, but Trainer Charley Volz said it was "very doubtful" if the star would get into the game at all.

OXY, TECH MIX TONIGHT

Engineers Slight Favorites to Turn Back Tigers in Rose Bowl After-Dark Battle

BY IRVING ECKHOFF

Threatening to do to Fox Stanton's Engineers, what the Fox has often done to Occidental elevens, Coach Eddie Kienholz's Tigers are out to upset the Caltech outfit in tonight's feature encounter at the Pasadena Rose Bowl.

The Engineers, undefeated in Southern California Conference ranks, are perched on top of the league standings, and unless beaten by Oxy tonight or San Diego on Thanksgiving Day will walk off with the championship.

COACH ED. KIENHOLZ

For the first time in many years Stanton's team will take the field favored to beat an Oxy eleven. The reason why the Engineers are picked is because of their 2-0 victory over Pomona and the fact that they held Arizona to a lower margin of victory than did the Tigers.

This may not mean very much to some people, but to close followers of conference doings any team that beats Pomona must have more than a little something on the ball.

The Tech team is far from being a pushover, with Bill Shuler doing most of the starring on the line and Capt. Dickey and Red Watson taking the major portion of honors in the backfield.

The Tigers haven't shown any great amount of power this year. They started out the year with a bang, running up a 39-6 score on the University of Mexico and walloping Whittier, 25-0. Running up against the powerful San Diego Aztecs the following week, the Tigers were defeated, 14-7, and continued their losing streak the next week-end by losing to Arizona, 21-0.

Last Friday night Kienholz's outfit seemed on the come-back trail, turning back the Redlands Bulldogs, 12-7.

Stanton's eleven boasts victories over Pomona, 2-0, and La Verne, 27-13, in the conference ranks, while two outsiders have victories over the Engineers. Arizona turned in a 26-12 triumph early in the season, while the U.C.L.A. Bruins won by a 30-0 score.

Last Saturday Stanton gave his men a rest, p'aying most of the reserves against the Cal.-Christian Panthers. Even at that Tech had little trouble in taming the Panthers, 26-6.

While the Oxy-Tech fracas is the only game listed for today, three other elevens in the conference will see action tomorrow. Lee Trine and his Redlands Bulldogs make the trip south to San Diego to try out their pass formations on the Aztecs.

COAST PREXY ELECTED TODAY

Cal Ewing and Joe Bearwald Oppose Harry Williams for Position; Draft Question, 1930 Schedule and Split Season Matters Before Magnates

BY RUSSELL J. NEWLAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 6. (AP)—Directors of the Pacific Coast League will hold their annual baseball meeting here tomorrow with election of a president; discussion of the universal draft as demanded by the major leagues, and proposals to shorten the season and abandon the split season, as the principal items of business.

HARRY WILLIAMS

Selection of a president promises to bring out the liveliest debate. Harry Williams of Los Angeles, who has handled the league affairs for seven years, will be opposed by J. Cal Ewing, former president of the Oakland club, and Joe Bearwald of San Francisco, who resigned as vice-president of the Mission club to become a candidate.

Ewing, one of the old-timers of the circuit, and Bearwald, each claimed to have several votes lined up. However, pre-election sentiment indicates Ewing only is certain of the Oakland vote and Bearwald appears to have the inside track with the Mission, Seattle and Hollywood clubs.

Williams is known to have the support of the San Francisco Seals and Los Angeles and his followers believe he will eventually carry the votes of Portland, Sacramento and Oakland to retain the job. Some time ago, Thomas Turner, president of the Portland club, was quoted as saying he favored retention of Williams. Lew Moreing, Sacramento club owner, has declined to state a preference so far, but as he voted for Williams two years ago at Portland, observers believe he will fall in line again. From sources close to the Oakland club it is learned the vote will be cast for Ewing at first, but if the balloting becomes deadlocked it will be swung over to Williams.

In any case, Williams holds the upper hand. Five of the eight votes will be necessary to elect Ewing or Bearwald, whereas Williams will automatically retain office in case of an unbreakable deadlock.

The magnates also will discuss shortening of the season from twenty-eight weeks to twenty-six weeks. According to gossip, the split season in effect for the last two years, is due to be abandoned. Reports have it that with night baseball to be played by every team next season, the owners favor a straight-through season of twenty-six weeks.

Recently six directors agreed by telegraphic vote to reopen the universal-draft question, indicating a majority of the owners are in a receptive mood to bargain with the major leagues on this proposition. The Coast League, along with two other Class AA circuits, has long opposed this method of draft, which would allow big-league clubs the right to select any one player on a club, regardless of expedience.

The majors already have delivered an ultimatum to the minor leagues concerned that unless they agree to the universal draft, they will sever all relations with them. It is understood the Coast League men will be receptive to a proposition which would permit the majors to draft young players after the latter had had four years' experience in the minors.

(Exclusive) After workouts lasting into an early settling dusk, two contingents of University of California athletes, the football and track varsities, set out for Los Angeles tonight, while hundreds of students gathered at the railway station bade them bon voyage in their respective efforts to upset the Trojan gridster and the Bruin runner.

HENRY SCHALDACH.

Coach Clarence (Nibs) Price headed a contingent of forty-three gridmen, and Coach Walter Christie was in charge of seven cross-country runners. Both groups will compete on Saturday. The runners will race over the U.C.L.A. course in the Westwood Hills in the morning and the football men will run into Coach Howard Jones's much-feared Trojans in the Coliseum during the afternoon.

Christie's running troupe consisted of Capt. Everett (Spud) Mossman, winner of both the mile and two-mile in the big meet with Stanford; Alva Novo, Gail Wilson, Wilfred Bigelow, Theron Wright, Lawrence Pool and Basil Grillo.

Those gridmen picked for the southern trip were as follows: Ends, Ellis Thornton, Dick Tozer, Chuck Whyte, Louis Diresta, Bob Bartlett, Russ Avery, Ralph Stone, Jack DeBenedetti and George Garner; tackles, Dolph Timmerman, Seldon Del Georgio, Gerald Easterbrooks, Fritz Cahn, Bob Neuhaus, Lester Williams and Vern Swaboda; guards, Capt. Carl Handy, Ted Beckett, Don Handy, Bob Pascoe, Sam Gill and Gene Elerding; centers, Herman Eickmeyer, Frank Medanich, Joe Bohl and Thor Hansen; halfbacks, Ulrich Fritschi, Henry Schaldach, Joe Hickingbotham, Ralph Seeley, Ray East, Bill McCutcheon, George Watkins and Leon Valianos; quarterbacks, Ed Griffiths, Sheldon Potter, James Sheridan and Ed Kirwan; fullbacks, Rusty Gill, Gust Castro, Clarence Garrity, Jose Smith and Verne Binder.

The one big concern in Price's mind tonight as he entrained

NAVY, ARMY CAN'T GET TOGETHER ON CONTEST

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6. (AP)—New demands sprang up today for the Army to meet the Navy in a post-season renewal of the service football classic for the benefit of charity.

Secretary Adams, questioned regarding the proposals, said the Navy was ready to play a charity game at the end of its regular schedule if a safe field could be secured.

Speaking for the Army, Maj.-Gen. William R. Smith, superintendent of the Military Academy, said it could not participate in a post-season game because of the climatic conditions which might result in injury to an Army player and consequent loss of time from his studies.

Adams agreed a safe field would be needed because "frozen ground in December is not a fit surface for any game."

He explained the Navy could not play until the middle of December because its regular schedule does not end until its game with the University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia December 6.

Outstanding among the proposals that came was a telegram from George F. Getz, chairman of the Illinois unemployment and relief committee to President Hoover and Secretaries Adams and Hurley for a game to be played at Soldier Field, Chicago.

Getz said if the government permitted the two teams to play at Soldier Field 150,000 persons could be accommodated and gate receipts would aggregate between $750,000 and $1,000,000, which would be donated to help relieve the unemployment emergency.

Another appeal for a charity game came from New York, where it was announced Grover Whalen, acting for a citizens' committee, would petition Secretary Adams for a Navy-Fordham game at the Polo Grounds.

L. A. High and Polytechnic Meet Today at Wrigley Field in Fifteenth Annual Cl

ROMAN ELEVEN HAS GRID EDGE

Injuries Hurt Mechanics' Chances to Win

Starting Line-ups Announced for Both Teams

Hollywood, Manual Arts Mix in Crucial Tilt

BY IRVING ECKHOFF

While the fifteenth annual Poly-L. A. High football clash scheduled for this afternoon at Wrigley Field, hasn't an awful lot of bearing on the City League title race, the interest is just as great as if the championship were at stake.

COACH HORACE BRESEE

The Romans, doped to win last season but held to a 7-7 tie by a hard-charging Mechanic team, are out for revenge this year and figure on winning by at least one touchdown.

Veyle Brennen, wily Poly coach, has this to say about the classic. "Last year," says Brennen, "our scouts found several weak spots in the Roman team and we cashed in on them to get a tie. However, this season the shoe is on the other foot and I really fear the Romans more this season than last year."

With a possibility of two of the Mechanic's regulars, Sam Stawisky, guard, and Dewey Ralphs, halfback, not starting the game, the odds are on the Roman side of the fence.

Levinson will most likely start in Stawisky's place, while Stutz will work in Ralphs's halfback position.

The rest of the line-up will find Lott and Kudlac at ends, Ryan and Linares at tackles and Yokomori at the other guard job. Fuqua will take care of the center position. Kaltoneos will call signals in the backfield with McCallum and Stutz, halves, and Bud Reis, full.

Coach Horace Bresee of the Romans reported everything in readiness for the prep classic and while not extremely optimistic about the outcome, still figures that the Romans have a good chance to win.

Bolotin and Posso will start at ends, for the Pioneers, with Andrews and Mitchell at tackles. Schutz and Andrews will take care of the guard jobs, while Capt. Hathaway is slated to start at center. Bob Hoeffer will open at quarter, with Chuck Cheshire and Max McClain at halves and McKenzie, full.

Melo Almada, the Romans' left-handed passer and general all-around backfield threat, hasn't been functioning so well of late, but will no doubt see action before the game is over.

In a game that will undoubtedly push the City League race further into the complications, Vic Kelley's Hollywood Redskins take on the powerful Manual Arts Toilers on the Hollywood field today.

From a rather bad outlook at the start of the season, Kelley has welded together a smooth-running machine and harbors secret hopes of drubbing the potent Toiler aggregation.

Latest reports from the Manual camp have Bill Howard's injured elbow in good enough shape for the star fullback to open against the Redskirts. Kelly Gregory and Dave Anderson, who have also been nursing injuries, are ready to start.

Three other games are scheduled, Jefferson at Fremont, Fairfax at Belmont and Roosevelt at Garfield.

The Rough Riders should drub the Bulldogs, while the other two contests figure on being pretty even. The Pathfinders have a slight edge over the Democrats, while the Hilltoppers have a little the better of the Colonials.

Ancient rivalries seem to be the main grid menu today, Pasadena and Long Beach meeting in their annual encounter on the Bulldog field, while Venice and Santa Monica collide on the U.C.L.A. field at Westwood.

Although Venice and Santa Monica are meeting for the Bay League cellar championship a huge crowd will be on hand to witness the festivities.

In the other tussle the Jackrabbits are heavy favorites to win, but the Pasadena boys may get all fired up and surprise the Long Beach outfit. The game is a regular Coast League game.

INGLEWOOD, SAN PEDRO IN FEATURE GAME

Inglewood and San Pedro will clash in the fourth Bay League encounter for each institution at Bodenoch Field, Inglewood, today, in a game that will go a long way toward determining the Bay League championship. By virtue of a 19-13 victory over Redondo last week, Inglewood has a wonderful opportunity to secure her first Bay League pennant.

Inglewood now leads the league with an undefeated record, while the Pedro Pirates are tied for second with Huntington Park and Redondo.

If the Sentinels bow to the Pirates the Bay League pennant will be a free-for-all scramble, with Huntington Park, Redondo and the two above teams playing major roles.

CHAFFEY TEAM OUT TO BEAT SAN BERNARDINO

COVINA, Nov. 6.—Prepared for a stiff battle, the Chaffey high football team will clash with the San Bernardino Cardinals tomorrow at Ontario, determined to stay within shooting distance of the league-leading Covina Colts by taking a decision from Coach Renfroes's scrappy eleven.

Only a fighting chance is conceded Coach Renfroes's Cards, who have been unable to get started so far this season, but should Capt. Willard Black, Cardinal backfield ace, have one of his good days San Bernardino's chances of winning will take quite a boost. Two other Citrus Belt League contests are on tap for the afternoon. Covina tangles with Riverside Poly at Riverside, while Redlands plays host to the Pomona Cardinals. Coach Ted Gerrell has announced that the Colt reserves will have a chance to show their wares against Les Leveille's Poly gridders. Covina has a hard game with Bakersfield High on Armistice Day and Gerrell cannot afford to take a chance of injuries to his regulars.

Coach Archie Nisbet's Pomona Cardinals should defeat Coach Daniels's Terriers by rather an impressive score despite the fact that the Terriers have shown lots of improvement in the past two weeks, holding the powerful San Bernardino crew to a 7-to-6 score last Friday.

PIRATE BABES WIN OVER INGLEWOOD

Tallying all of their points in the first half, the San Pedro lightweights trimmed the Inglewood babes, 20 to 12, yesterday in a game played on the victor's gridiron. The Pirates scored three times in the first half while holding the Sentinels scoreless. Playing against the second string in the last half, Inglewood managed to score twice.

SHED A TEAR FOR K. K. ROCKNE

Bald Knute Hears of Trojan-Stanford Score and Hates to Think What Southern California Will Do to Irish in Big Game Here on December 6

BY BRAVEN DYER

A little "Hearts and Flowers," professor, and go kinda light on that trombone, please, for poor, old Knute Rockne, the bald sage of South Bend, is in a bad way. Yessir, the old wizard of windiana is fretting away great loads of poundage worrying over his football team. It seems that somebody slipped Knute a copy of a newspaper telling of Southern California's 41-to-12 victory over Stanford and after the redoubtable "Rock" came out of his faint he managed, between sinking spells, to emit the following interview:

KNUTE ROCKNE

"Whew! My, oh my! Did you see how Southern California ladled it to Stanford?" groaned Knute Rockne, the main monkey wrench of Notre Dame, as he thumbed a ragged newspaper that showed the result of much reading.

"Why, actually, I am just afraid to think what Southern California will do to our boys when we go out there in December.

"How much did I say Carnegie Tech would beat Notre Dame? Six or seven touchdowns, I believe. Well, the Trojans may score a dozen or more. I just dread thinking about it.'

"Rockne has started to fear Southern California. The way Ames Stagg used to fear Purdue was just child's fear compared to the way Rockne is going to fret about the Californians. Usually Rockne only frets from week to week. But after looking over his schedule he found it next to impossible for a high-class fretter like himself to enjoy a thorough exhaustion about Indiana, Pennsylvania, or Drake. Maybe, when his games against Northwestern and Army come along he can enjoy some moderate worries. But an old agonizer like Rockne could not go through weeks and smile all the while, so he is taking time by the pompadour and getting well ahead on his Southern California worrying."

There you have it, and when I got through reading the yarn, which appeared under the name of Francis J. Powers in an eastern paper of recent date, my eyes were wet with tears and I wanted to go right out and dig up a few football players to help Knute in that game here on December 6. Like fun I did. M. Rockne may need help that day, but he won't need any more football players. Not with 300 out for practice annually.

Two gentlemen of the gridiron who have not received their full share of credit for the performance of their respective teams on the field of battle this year are Clifton B. Herd and Buck Bailey. Mr. Herd is famous as chief scout for the Trojans and his up-to-the-minute reports on the doings of Pop Warner's Stanford boys have had much to do with Southern California's string of three consecutive victories over the Cardinals. Cliff is rather generally recognized as the best scout on the Pacific Coast and he richly deserves the title. Used to be quite a football player himself in the old days, starring for dear old Cornell at fullback.

Bailey is the huge Texan who used to play several line positions at the same time for the Olympic Club. When Babe Hollingbery went to Washington State he took Buck along. Mr. Bailey is largely responsible for the vicious and brilliant line play of the battling Cougars. Poor Buck hasn't seen his team play all year and probably won't until a week from Saturday, when the terrible Cougars meet Washington at Seattle. Even then he may be called upon to go east and scout Villanova, for Washington State plays this team later.

Pomona and Whittier tangle at Whittier on Armistice Day. It seems that last year I said something about Chief Newman's team having no offense worthy of the name. The Chief resented that and he sends out word that his team is going to sock the Sagehens heavily for no other reason than to show me up as a bum. He won't be the first guy to do that, but will probably get a lot of satisfaction out of it, anyway. The only comfort in the sad situation is that the Sagehens, after losing several games on their own hook this year, can lay the blame on me if they get defeated Armistice Day.

Did you know that the Trojans were the last team to trim Notre Dame? That was in 1928 when Southern California won, 27 to 14. But three other teams also licked the Irish that year, so, maybe, it doesn't mean so much after all.

QUINN IS THREATENED BY STUBBLEFIELD, MAY

While Jimmy Sharp, San Pedro's racing pride, turned up at offices of the track yesterday afternoon with his arm still hanging from a sling, officials of the Legion Ascot Speedway predicted that Francis Quinn will have no walk-away in the race for the 1930 championship Sharp being disabled as a result of that Fresno crash more than a month ago, Quinn has forged far into the lead in the rush for the title. The "little giant" has 371 points to his credit while Sharp, apparently out of the cockpit for the rest of the year, has a total of 275.

However, the dashing young "Stubby" Stubblefield and the quiet and highly popular Walt May are the boys who may give Quinn a fight for the crown. May has 321 points while "Stubby" has 280.

May has split with the Val brothers, owners of the Padre Special, it was learned yesterday. The Alhambran had little luck at the wheel of No. 1 and has decided to handle No. 69 in the 100-lap fall classic Sunday. "Speed" Hinkley, Pasadena daredevil, will replace May at the helm of No. 1, according to present plans.

Managers and Fighters May Be Under Bond

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 6. (AP)—Suggestions that all fighters and managers be bonded and a position of "chief executive inspector," who would practically rule boxing circles in the State, be created were heard today at the first meeting of the special commission appointed to investigate boxing conditions in California.

The commission, headed by Allen B. Bixby, director of the State Department of Military and Veterans' Affairs, included six other citizens representative of the north and south sections of the State.

Another idea proposed was appointment of a full-time employee who would rank just under the commissioners, but would have full authority to make decisions on fight matters. He would be known as the chief executive inspector and divide his time between the larger boxing centers.

BEVERLY HILLS ANNEXES TITLE

Jim Purcell's Outfit Takes League Championship

Coach Jim Purcell's Beverly Hills varsity football team cinched the San Fernando Valley League championship yesterday by scoring a well-earned 19-to-0 victory over the North Hollywood gridders on the U.C.L.A. field. The Tartars have but one more game to play and that with the tottering Owensmouth eleven which has won but one game to date. The outcome will have no bearing on the championship.

Purcell, coaching his first year at Beverly Hills, molded together a team which has swept all before it, beating San Fernando, 33-27; Van Nuys, 14-7; University, 25-6; Eagle Rock, 27-0 and now North Hollywood's Huskies.

The first score came in the third quarter, Sherer passing to Thomas over the goal line. In the last period, Purcell's team tallied twice, Olson going over from the 2-yard line and Higgins plunging over from the 3-yard strip.

HOLLYWOOD BABES NOSE OUT MANUAL ARTS

The Hollywood lightweight football team removed another obstacle from its path toward the championship yesterday when it nosed out a hard-fighting Manual Arts eleven, 12 to 7, on the loser's gridiron. Coach Pash's Foothillers are undefeated and have but two more games left to play. One with the scrappy Belmont babes and the other with the weak Roosevelt Roughriders.

Coach Williams's Toilers completely dominated the play during the first half in which they tallied one touchdown and held the Foothillers scoreless. In the last half, however, the Hollywood team began to function, rolling up two touchdowns and keeping the Toiler offense well in hand.

FAIRFAX HUMBLES BELMONT BABES

Coach Shaffer's flashy Colonial lightweight gridders chalked up an 8-to-6 win over a fighting Belmont aggregation yesterday on the victor's turf. The Hilltoppers led the Fairfax squad at the half, but fell before the superior offensive of the Colonial running attack during the last two periods. The Fairfax team retains the loop leadership along with Hollywood, who downed Manual.

Coach Clarence Eber's team scored early in the initial quarter, blocking an attempted punt on the Fairfax 2-yard stripe. Black blocked and recovered the kick over the goal line for a touchdown, but the try for conversion was wide.

The SPORT LIGHT by Grantland Rice

Some Hard Guessing

There are some games Saturday that look to be fairly simple picking and others that are replete with prophetic knots.

For example—

Notre Dame figures to beat Pennsylvania;

Army rates a few notches above Illinois.

Southern California is well beyond California;

Pittsburgh has just an edge on Carnegie Tech;

Colgate has too much power for Columbia.

Alabama is stronger than Florida, and Vanderbilt has something on Georgia Tech.

There may be upsets here, but these are not the tough ones to guess, forecast or prophesy.

The hard ones are Harvard vs. Michigan, Georgia vs. N.Y.U., Navy vs. Ohio State and Fordham vs. Detroit. And most of the tough guessing is due to a matter of physical and mental fitness on the part of several teams. And this can play a tremendous part in any football game, a far more decisive part than is generally estimated.

The Tough Ones

Take Harvard and Michigan, for instance. Harvard had great prospects at the start of the season. Michigan opened slowly. But Harvard has run into a swirl of dismal luck and the Crimson hasn't won a game since early October. Michigan, with a strong line and a star passer, who is also smart, is physically and mentally set for this contest. Harvard isn't. And while I would pick Harvard at its full strength to beat Michigan, Harvard's strength tomorrow must remain a guess until the game is on.

In the same way, take Georgia and N.Y.U. Georgia brought a team to New Haven that was in great physical and mental shape on October 11. That was a month ago. Georgia showed the effects of this early form and condition against Florida last week, when the keen edge was gone.

The Georgia team that beat Yale looked stronger than Yale, Army, Harvard or Dartmouth. But Georgia has been slipping a trifle and N.Y.U. has been coming along in a hurry. If one could be sure that Georgia would be as fit against N.Y.U. as the Red and Black was against Yale, Georgia would be the pick. But Georgia, with a hard schedule, may not reach that peak again. If Georgia can come most of the way back after her Florida shock, then Georgia should win.

The same is true of Fordham facing Detroit University. Fordham hasn't lost a game since 1926 Fordham has already fought her way through Boston College, Holy Cross, N.Y.U. and West Virginia. Her peak game was against N.Y.U.

A fresh, keen Fordham team would be a little too good for even as strong a team as Detroit University is. Detroit will be better off mentally and physically on Saturday and this can make a vital difference. Why isn't the same true of Notre Dame? It may be, before the season is over. But so far Notre Dame has outclassed her opponents by too wide a margin to have been under any big strain. Her first team has smashed the opposition before the reserves were needed.

Mike Sweeney of Hill

Mike Sweeney has been at Hill School for thirty years with as fine a record of all-around accomplishment as anyone has ever gotten from instruction in sport. So they are paying tribute to Mike at Hill School tomorrow in the form of ceremonial exercises that will dedicate the Michael F. Sweeney Gymnasium.

Nearly forty years ago Mike Sweeney broke the high jump record and he later broke this record, indoor and outdoor, six times, finally setting a mark at 6ft. 5 5-8in. which stood for eighteen years.

Mike Sweeney was one of the star all-around athletes of his day. But his greatest record has been made at Hill, where he came thirty years ago to take charge of the school's athletic work. He came there, above all, as an educator where his main work has been to teach boys to control natural instincts and emotions and to school mind and body together. His success along this line has been remarkable. He has developed more than his share of star athletes, and his influence for good has been beyond any summarizing.

Sweeney has done one of the big jobs of his time and he deserves every honor Hill School and its graduates can pay him.

Logical—and Yet—

There would be much more of a rush and crowding for a Sharkey-Stribling meeting if the promoters were a little surer that there would be no repetition of the Miami affair.

It so happens that Sharkey and Stribling are both too canny and too strong defensively to provide the needed contrast in the way of a slashing, stirring heavyweight match. Yet as they are so far in front of all other challengers or contenders there is apparently no way out, if another elimination is to be held. It may be at another meeting that each will realize he is in the midst of a last stand. And it may be that each won't. Such things have happened before.

Georgia's next three games are with N.Y.U., Tulane and Alabama. Which is about all any team can be asked to wrap up in a bundle and take home.

Times are changing. So far no announcement has been made to this effect—"Yale fears Alfred."

Almost before you know what has happened the all-America teams will all be picked and sixteen major league ball clubs will be on their way to the sun again.

REISTER MAY BATTLE SORIO

Wadhams Makes Offers to Popular Punchers

Baby Sal Faces Porter in Tuesday Clash

Taylor Down to Weight for Holtzer Tangle

Another local natural loomed yesterday when Matchmaker Wad Wadhams of the Olympic made Bobby Reister a tentative offer to box Baby Sal Sorio. Reister scored a big hit last Tuesday night when he stopped Dan Burchard with a perfect solar-plexus blow.

BOBBY REISTER

Sal bones the eight-round semi-wind-up Monday at the Grand-avenue club. He meets Len Porter, a flashy Negro heavy lightweight, on the Bud Taylor-Maurice Holtzer card.

In nine starts as a flatic comeback Sal has scored eight knockouts and is back in popular favor. The Sal-Reister bout hinges on the outcome of the Porter scrap next week, Wadhams said.

Sal and Reister are both great hitters and it is the best little natural on the local horizon. The two fighters weigh about the same, tipping around 142 pounds. Reister scored his thirteenth knockout when he clicked Burchard in his sixteenth professional fight.

Taylor hit featherweight poundage yesterday for the first time. He scaled 126 pounds after his workout at the Manhattan gymnasium. On his arrival here he was a junior lightweight.

Bud is grooming a youngster whom he claims looks and fights like he did when he was a youngster. The boy is Carl Johnson from Spokane. Johnson is a blond fellow around 21 years old and has the tiger spirit.

Johnson will box one of the six-rounders Monday night. His debut will be against Willie Fausto. The Taylor pupil has won five professional fights in the Northwest.

Holtzer, who defeated Goldie Hess here recently, will remain at Soper's ranch for all of his training. The French windmill is conceded an even chance against the popular Taylor.

Young Corbett came through his fight with Farmer Joe Cooper with a one-round knockout last Wednesday night. The Fresno southpaw is expected here the last of the week to open training for the Paulie Walker shot November 18.

Walker is working at Soper's ranch. He and Holtzer are helping each other to condition by boxing together.

Wad Wadhams announced yesterday that Cecil Payne and Eddie Mack were signed to headline the Olympic bill on the 28th inst.

OXY, CALTECH MIX TONIGHT

The other battle will find the La Verne Leopards playing the Cal.-Christian Panthers at the Loyola High Field on Venice Boulevard.

While neither the Leopards nor the Panthers have won a game this season, both have made good records against Southern California Conference teams and each is determined to break into the win column in this game. Past records mean little or nothing when these two schools meet. They are about the same size numerically, and keen rivalry exists between them, and with a large crowd of fans and alumni on hand to spur them on a good game is anticipated.

Ralph Welch at Christian College has had a rather hard year of it. He had a large squad at the beginning of the season, but this has steadily been cut down by injuries and illness, and only last week the faculty athletic committee lopped off three stellar players for ineligibilities.

ROMAN LIGHTWEIGHTS DOWN MECHANICS

The Los Angeles lightweight football team of Coach Bert La Brucherie, former U.C.L.A. star, defeated the Polytechnic Class B eleven, 6-0, yesterday afternoon on the Mechanics' field. The Romans scored in the last six minutes of play when Wiley, quarterback, tossed a 15-yard pass to Shed, end. Shed caught the ball on his own 45-yard line and sped the rest of the way for the lone touchdown of the game.

THE CALIFORNIA SITUATION

AS NIBS PRICE prepares to lead his California Bears into the city this morning last-minute reports on tomorrow's gridiron struggle with the Trojans seep down from Berkeley.

Mr. Jack Silver, the campus correspondent, says the boys at Berkeley are doing a lot of praying, and the general opinion is that the Trojans will not be caught overconfident again.

That in his mind the great strength of the Trojans as against the comparative inexperience of the Californians will tell the story.

He adds that "Price is working hard for a good showing, and will make one, but that after all he will probably play for the one game he may be able to take—the Stanford contest on the 22nd inst."

"The backfield men on the California team," he continues, "are not veterans who have played long periods in each other's company. Griffiths and Gill were on the first string last season.

"But Griffiths still has a bad ankle. Lee Valianos is a sophomore. Hank Schaldach, Bill McCutcheon and Ray East are doing first-string service for the first time. Joe Hickingbotham and Clarence (Moose) Garrity are not hitting smoothly. Gus Castro is only a sophomore.

"The line is tough and experienced, but Price is plenty worried about his backfield. He thinks the secondary defense will have a lot to do in the Trojan game and he doesn't feel his gang is experienced enough to turn in a winning job."

HOW DID IRISH WIN?

ALLEGED quotations by Coach Wally Steffen of Carnegie Tech:

"The 1929 Notre Dame team had no passing game at all and no team that met them feared passes coming from them. No modern team can be called great unless it is equipped with a good passing game. If for that reason, and none other, the 'Four Horsemen' team was far superior to the 1929 team."

And, if necessary, call in Howard Jones as a major witness in the case.

Notre Dame beat Southern California, 13 to 12, by virtue of its aerial game at Chicago—and by no other means.

If Notre Dame had no passing attack may I ask how it was that Brill and Conley got together on one for a gain of 37 yards in the first quarter?

How Conley happened to have a clear field for a touchdown on a pass from Schwartz in the same period, but dropped the ball?

How it was that Elder fired a long one to Conley for 54 yards and a touchdown in the second period?

How Elder and Colrick collaborated on a pass for a 30-yard gain in the last period?

No passing attack, eh?

And, Coach Steffen, can you name me a backfield man on the Notre Dame team coached to a national football championship by Tom Lieb last year that Don Miller of the "Four Horsemen" could have displaced.

THE NEW YEAR'S BUG

THE Denver boys are registering agitation over the "Utah for the Tournament of Roses" slogan.

Curley Grieve in the Rocky Mountain News says that if the University of Utah completes its present football campaign undefeated, "I for one am going to start a campaign entitled 'Utah for the Tournament of Roses.'"

And then he pins this statement on Jeff Cravath, coach of the Denver U. eleven and former Trojan hero:

"Utah could have beaten Southern California today." (This after Utah had beaten Denver, 59 to 0.)

Another from Ben Lingenfelder, former Utah football official and a former assistant to Ike Armstrong, coach at Utah: "No team in the country can humiliate that Utah team. It is the best Ike has built."

Well, that's fine. Let's have 'em on the Trojan schedule.

After watching the Trojan regulars score two touchdowns in four minutes against Denver U. last Saturday I rather imagine the regulars would have had no trouble in rolling up a score of 100 to 0 against the same team Utah beat 59 to 0.

With the two scores donated by the regulars the Trojan second and third stringers managed to beat Denver U. 33 to 13.

BEARS ON WAY TO SOUTHLAND

was not the steam roller effort of the Trojan thunderers on his less-experienced team, but just what he was going to do about the quarterback berth. There is not a completely fit quarterback at Price's call. Ed Griffiths has a bad ankle. Ed Kirwan is still in bad shape from the St. Mary's game. Sheldon Potter, the third-string quarter, has a bad shoulder. In an effort to find a capable relief man, Price today gave turns to Schaldach, East, McCutcheon and Valianos. Just what he will do in the game Saturday to cope with this emergency, only Price knows.

JIMMY SLATTERY LOSES DECISION

CHICAGO, Nov. 6. (Exclusive)—The pipe organist at the Chicago Stadium tonight had to play as he never played before to drown the Bronx cheer that protested a verdict which said King Levinsky had whipped Jimmy Slattery in ten rounds of fisticuffs. The tremendous squawk which seemed to have come unanimously from the 18,367 customers who paid $55,769.52 to see the show, was the second outburst of the evening, there having been almost as pronounced a landslide for old Jack Renault, who had been adjudged by officials the loser in his engagement with Otto Von Porat, which was the semi-wind-up of the show.

MAPLE LEAFS WIN ICE HOCKEY GAME

Ray Halderson scored a goal with just 50 seconds to go, to give the Maple Leafs a 3-2 victory over the Hollywood Monarchs in an ice hockey game played last night at the Palais de Glace. The Monarchs led, 2-1, going into the third period, but Ralph Weaver tied it up, and then Halderson came through with his winning shot. A couple of fist fights temporarily delayed the game.

LIONS TIED FOR LEAD

The Shell Oil Lions trimmed the Union Oil Pirates, 6 to 5, in an overtime game played at the Winter Garden rink last night. By virtue of their victory the Lions are now tied with the Sun Freze Bears for first place in the Southern California Ice Hockey League. Dale Wells scored the deciding goal two minutes before the overtime period ended.

CHICAGO CUBS OBTAIN BAECHT

Cincy Reds, at second base. Schulte, a .300 hitting catcher who bats from the left side of the plate, will give the Cherubs a punch behind the plate and also give Truck Hannah a rest that he didn't get this season.

With the outfielder to be named later and Jimmy Welsh, who came to the Angels in the Schulmerich deal, the Seraphs will be well fortified in the outer gardens, so it looks as though the Lelivelt'ans are all set for the 1930 campaign to start.

Lelivelt and Reichow will attend the national convention of the minor leaguers in Montreal next month and attempt to purchase another catcher for the Cherubs.

To return to Baecht, though, big Ed was a handsome pick-up for the Angels. Baecht was turned lose by the Toledo American Association and Philadelphia National loop clubs after the 1928 season had started. The Cherubs signed Baecht by forwarding him transportation to the Coast and now they realize approximately $100,000 on the deal. Good business, we call it.

Baecht, who is still a youngster as pitching ages go, was signed at the tender age of 17 by the Phillies. They farmed him hither and thither and finally let him go. Baecht "arrived" in 1928, winning fourteen and losing seven games for the Angels after joining them in June. This year big Ed won twenty-six games and lost twelve, pitching in forty-nine games or a total of 362 innings, and fanning 187 batsmen.

CARR LOSES COMEBACK BOUT WITH GONZALES

Alphonso Gonzales threw a monkey wrench into the comeback plans of Jackie Carr at the Pasadena Arena last night. Gonzales scored a seven-round technical knockout over the boy who not so long ago whipped Mushy Callahan. In the semi-wind-up Don Kennedy outpointed Elliott Badico. Cliff Wilkens won the decision over Ed Guango in the special event. In the other bouts Ben Moselle decisioned Henry Gaitten. Joe Skube won over Dutch Hart and Lew Ayla scored a two-round technical knockout over Primo Jorial in the curtain raiser.

JELLIFFE WINS ON NINETEENTH

Bachelder Loses Extra-Hole Match at Fox Hills

Invitational Tournament in Second Round Today

Marchetti Sets Record to Cop 10 and 8 Decision

BY EDWARD LAWRENCE

Bill Jelliffe almost burned his fingers pulling a match with H. K. Bachelder of Rancho out of the fire in the feature first-round contest of the Fox Hills invitation tournament yesterday afternoon.

MILO MARCHETTI

One down and one to go, Bill bagged a birdie 4 on the 510-yard eighteenth hole to square the match, and then went on to win with a par on the nineteenth. Bachelder made it awfully tough from start to finish and can blame a missed approach shot on the ninth hole for his defeat.

The Bachelder-Jelliffe match shared interest with the 10 and 8 walloping administered to L. B. Harbour of Hollywood by Milo Marchetti, Rancho sharpshooter. Beating pars was duck soup for Milo, who started out with five birdies in a row and rounded the turn 9 up with a medal of 31 for a new record.

H. A. Bingham of Fox Hills upset F. V. Delcot of Wilshire, 1 up, and today meets Ernie Combs of Virginia in a good match. Guy Hanson of California tackles Chuck Berdrow of Fox Hills in another outstanding tussle. Young Berdrow eliminated L. P. Ferguson of Girard yesterday.

A few highlights of the Bachelder-Jelliffe match would not be out of place, so here goes:

All square going to the ninth, Bachelder was short of the green in two. Jelliffe got on in three, laying a niblic out of the rough fifteen feet past the pin. Bachelder hit his approach shot fat, the ball going only a few feet. His fourth was ten feet short and he missed the putt to be 1 down.

Coming in Jelliffe won ten and thirteen with birdies and Bachelder took eleven and twelve with birdies. The Rancho player squared the match on the 200-yard fifteenth with a par 3, and went 1 up at the sixteenth where Jelliffe had a ball out of bounds. Bill was twenty feet past the cup in four and canned the putt for a 5, but Bachelder rolled his in from ten feet away for a win.

Jelliffe was short in two on eighteen, laid an approach six feet past the cup and holed the putt to win with a birdie 4. On the nineteenth, Jelliffe was on the edge in two and Bachelder was over. Bill laid his approach stiff for a sure 4, Bachelder being four feet past. Bachelder missed the putt, the ball just hitting the edge of the cup.

The cards:

Par (Out)	435	443	445	—36
Jelliffe	444	445	545	—39
Bachelder	446	454	446	—41
Par (In)	534	444	344	—36—72
Jelliffe	444	354	544	—37—76
Bachelder	623	553	445	—37—78

Defaults were much in evidence again yesterday, nineteen golfers failing to put in an appearance.

An eighteen-hole consolation round is scheduled this morning for those who failed to qualify and players defeated in first-round matches. Mixed foursomes are on tap tomorrow.

KHJ and KECA invite you to sit in at the council table of the United States government at approximately 5:15 o'clock tonight Col. Arthur H. Woods, who was selected by President Hoover to head the government's efforts to effect unemployment relief throughout the country, will speak from Washington.

Every listener-in will be asked to consider himself a member of a national investigating staff, listen to the plans early developed and send in suggestions for solution of the unemployment problem. At intervals of approximately a week between the 19th inst. and January 4, 1931, the Emergency Relief Committee, which includes some of the country's leading statesmen, financiers, educators and churchmen, will broadcast its plans for unemployment relief.
